PUBLISHERS' PREFACE.

IN accordance with their original plan the Publishers are continuing to keep "THE ENGLISH AND EMPIRE DIGEST" up to date, the method adopted being very similar to that employed in the case of the "LAWS OF ENGLAND," and the system has been found by Subscribers to be equally satisfactory in use.

Supplement No. 5, to which this note is a preface, brings the Work up to January 1st, 1930.

The use of this Supplement will enable subscribers to find with the minimum of time and trouble all the judicial decisions and annotations reported since the Volumes were each and severally published.

As regards English cases additional citations and annotations are preceded by the number of the case in the original volume, while new cases follow as far as possible the arrangement in the original volume, and are given the number of the case which they should follow, with the addition of a letter of the alphabet, beginning with the letter "a."

In dealing with the Scottish and Irish decisions, and the decisions of the Overseas Dominions, where they can be justifiably connected with a specific English case in the original volume, or in the Supplement, or with a specific Colonial case in the original volume, that fact is indicated by giving them the number borne by the English case, or the letter of the alphabet borne by the Colonial case, followed by a serial number in Roman numerals. Cases that cannot be joined in this manner are marked with two letters of the alphabet, the first one being the letter "s," and are placed as near as possible to the English or Colonial case which they most resemble.

As regards the Table of Cases to the Supplement the name of the title in which the case is cited is given in an abbreviated form between the number of the original volume in which the title appears and, as regards English cases, the number of the case, or, as regards Scottish and Irish cases and decisions of the Overseas Dominions, the number of the page of the Supplement on which the case is dealt with. The abbreviated forms of the titles are set out below :—

Just as the Supplement to "THE LAWS OF ENGLAND" has helped that great Work to establish its unrivalled position in the British Commonwealth of Nations, so do the Publishers confidently believe that the Supplement to "THE ENGLISH AND EMPIRE DIGEST" will assist in making "THE ENGLISH AND EMPIRE DIGEST" not only always complete and up to date, but also indispensable wherever the great system of law practised by the English-speaking nations is in force.

MEANING OF TERMS

USED IN CLASSIFYING ANNOTATING CASES.

THE different expressions used to describe the effect of the annotating cases have the following meanings, and the classification of the annotating cases has been done strictly in accordance with these meanings. The annotating cases, except such as are classified as "Mentioned," are grouped according to the points in the case which they annotate: within these groups they are listed chronologically, except such as are classified as "Referred to," which come at the end of the group and are arranged inter se in chronological order. Cases which annotate the annotated case generally are grouped together after cases which annotate specific points, similarly arranged, and are followed by cases classified as "Mentioned" arranged chronologically inter se. The terms used in classifying the annotating cases are as follows:—

- "APPLIED" (Apld.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the principle of law enunciated in the annotated case has been applied to a new set of facts and circumstances in the annotating case.
- "APPROVED" (Apprvd.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the annotated case has been considered to be good law in the annotating case where the latter is in a higher court than the former.
- "CONSIDERED" (Consd.).—This expression is used where the remarks in the annotating case are devoid of adverse criticism and merely denote the giving of more or less careful consideration to the annotated case.
- "DISTINGUISHED" (Distd.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but where some essential difference (either on the facts or in law) between it and the annotated case is pointed out.
- "DOUBTED" (Dbtd.).—This expression is used where the court in the annotating case without definitely going to the length of saying that the annotated case is wrong, adduces reasons which seem to show that it is not accurate.
- "EXPLAINED" (Expld.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but the decision arrived at is justified or accounted for by calling attention to some point of fact or of law which is usually, but not necessarily, one not obvious on the face of the report.
- "EXTENDED" (Extd.).—Compare "APPLIED," supra.
- "FOLLOWED" (Folld.).—This expression is used to denote that the same principles of law are applied in the two cases. It does not necessarily imply that the facts are substantially identical in the two cases.
- "NOT FOLLOWED" (N.F.).—Compare "FOLLOWED," supra, to which it is the adverse.
- "OVERRULED" (Overd.).—This expression is used where the annotating case is on substantially identical facts with the annotated case and in a higher court and the rule in the latter case is held to be wrong.
- "REFERRED" (Refd.).—This expression is used only where the annotating case deals with the point of the Digest paragraph and is without comment of any definite character on the case annotated, and where there is no delicate shade of approval or disapproval which would justify the use of any of the foregoing words.
- "MENTIONED" (Mentd.).—This expression is used only where none of the foregoing terms apply. In other words, it is used only where the case annotated is cited on a point having nothing to do with the point in the Digest paragraph.

TABLE OF CASES.

INCLUDING CASES FROM THE COURTS OF SCOTLAND, IRELAND, THE EMPIRE OF INDIA, AND DOMINIONS BEYOND THE SEAS.

The Figures in Black Type relate to Volumes.

The Figures in Ordinary Type relate as regards English cases to the number of the case, and as regards other cases to the page in the Supplement on which the case appears.

- 90a. ———.]—The Food Controller requisitioned certain cattle feeding stuffs under Defence of the Realm Regulations, but whether under reg. 2 B. or reg. 2 F. was doubtful. By reg. 2 B. the price to be paid for goods taken thereunder was to be determined by the tribunal by which claims for compensation under Defence of the Realm Regulations were determined, but was not to exceed a certain maximum price fixed by an Ord. in Council. By reg. 2 F. compensation for goods taken thereunder was to be paid as determined by an arbitrator, taking into account the cost of production of the goods & a reasonable profit. The maximum price fixed by the Ord. in Council has been paid. The Defence of the Realm Losses Commission having refused to entertain a claim for compensation, the owners of the goods presented a petition of right, claiming that the Food Controller had acted under reg. 2 F., & that they were entitled to compensation fixed by arbn. thereunder. At the trial the judge held that the Controller had acted under reg. 2 B., & dismissed the petition. On July 22, 1920, suppliants gave notice of appeal. On Aug. 16, 1920, Indemnity Act, 1920 (c. 48), was passed :—Held : (1) the appeal was not a "proceeding instituted" within sect. 1 of the Act; (2) those words do not include a final judgment given before the passing of the Act, & therefore the appeal well lay.—ROBINSON (J.) & Co. v. PART I. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 5.

sa. Action—Claim for damages & injunction—Transfer of Land Act, 1893 (No. 14), s. 117.—The term "action at law" in the above sect. embraces an action of the nature of a suit in equity, e.g. a claim for an injunction & damages in respect of trespass & interference with a right of way.—STREITZ v. BRITNALL (1912), 15 W. A. L. R. 12.—AUS.

sb. — Divorce petition—Insolvency Act, 1915 (No. 2671), s. 174.—The word "action" in the above sect. does not include a proceeding by petition in divorce.—Re HARVEY, [1920] V. L. R. 142.—AUS.

sc. — Petition of right.—A petition of right is not an "action." The definitions of "actions" in Judicature Act & rules are merely a conventional method of interpreting the statute & rules, adopted for the sake of brevity & simplicity, & not for the purpose of changing the true nature of things.—MILLAR v. R., [1921] 49 O. L. R. 93; 19 O. W. N. 458; 58 D. L. R. 585.—CAN.

sd. Proceeding in action—Application for relief against distraint—War Relief Act.—The above Act empowers a judge of the Supreme Ct. to dispense with the restrictions therein contained. Apld. distrainted against resp. under a mtge. notwithstanding that resp. was within the protection of the Act. Resp. applied to a county ct. judge as "local judge" of the Supreme Ct. for relief, who made an order against resp. dispensing with the restrictions of the Act:—Held: the local judge had no jurisdiction, as the proceeding was not a proceeding in an "action," as required under the wording of the Ord. in Council, June 16, 1906. Resp.'s proper remedy against applt. was by injunction to restrain applt. from invading his rights under the Act.—HANNA v. COSTERTON, [1919] 1 W. W. R. 930; 44 D. L. R. 478.—CAN.

se. Suit or proceeding—Meaning dependent on context of statute.—The words "suits" & "proceedings" have different meanings in different statutes, & it is not possible to lay down a general rule which would be applicable to all cases. In each particular case the question has to be examined in reference to the context, & that meaning is to be preferred which will best fit in with it.—KIRPA SINGH v. AJAI PAL SINGH (1928), 1 L. R. 10 Lah. 165.—IND.

PART I. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 1.

104 ii. —]—The expression "a cause of action" in Supreme Ct. Act, 1916 (No. 2733), s. 141, means the particular act or omission occasioning the injury complained of, & so giving rise to pltf.'s claim, not every fact material to be proved in order to entitle pltf. to succeed.—CHIDZEY v. BRECKLER, [1920] V. L. R. 558.—AUS.

104 iii. —]—The "cause of action" in District Cts. Act, R. S. S., 1920 (c. 40), s. 29, means the whole cause of action, including every material fact which pltf. must allege & prove to give him a right to judgment, & therefore if the whole cause of a district ct. action did not arise in one judicial district the action should be brought in that district where deft. or one of several defts. resides or carries on business. Notwithstanding sect. 2, sub-sect. 2 (2), of the Act providing that in the Act unless there is something in the subject or context repugnant thereto the expressions "cause" & "action" shall respectively have the same meaning as the same expressions have in King's Bench Act, the words "the cause of action" in sect. 29 should not be construed in the same way as in King's Bench Act, s. 35, because in sect. 29 "there is something in the subject or context repugnant thereto," namely, the fact that sect. 29 confers jurisdiction on an inferior ct. & therefore must be strictly construed, jurisdiction not being assumed beyond what is clearly conferred, whereas a different principle applies in sect. 35 which does not affect to deal with jurisdiction but simply deals with practice & procedure in a superior ct.—HOWELL v. WARNER, [1921] 3 W. W. R. 587.—CAN.

PART I. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—A.

st. Sale of goods—To be delivered at place named—Payment to be made elsewhere.—Deft., in Perth, gave to B., who was agent for pltf., a written order for certain goods at a price. This order B. transmitted to his principal in Melbourne, who declined it, but authorised B. to inform deft. that pltf. would accept the order at increased prices, added in ink on the original order. These new prices were subsequently submitted by B. to deft., who agreed to take certain of the good at the increased prices. By the contract the goods were to be delivered f.o.b. Melbourne, payment to be by draft payable at Perth, cost of exchange to be added. Pltf. shipped the goods to deft. in Perth, who refused to accept the draft, alleging inferiority of the goods:—Held: the contract was made in Perth; & the only breach of the contract took place in Perth; & although delivery had to be made f.o.b. Melbourne, there was not a cause of action arising within Victoria.—CHIDZEY v. BRECKLER, [1920] V. L. R. 558.—AUS.

sg. —]—A "cause of action" on a breach of contract includes the contract & its breach. If a purchaser of machinery promises to pay the purchase price to the vendor at M. but signs the agreement & receives the machinery at W. the vendor's cause of action for the purchaser's failure to pay cannot be said to arise at M.—WESTERN CANADA AUTO TRACTOR Co., LTD. v. BJARNASON, [1920] 1 W. W. R. 621.—CAN.

sk. —]—Pltf. sold & delivered a motor car to deft. at Prince Albert, & deft. gave him notes therefor signed at Prince Albert but payable at Saskatoon:—Held: the suit for balance due thereon was properly entered in the Saskatoon judicial district as the "cause of action" arose there.—OLMSTEAD v. SCOTT, [1921] 1 W. W. R. 1033.—CAN.

sl. Contract—Where act or omission giving cause of complaint occurs.—A "cause of action" as applied to actions in the Ct. of King's Bench & for the purposes of King's Bench Act, R. S. S., 1920 (c. 39), s. 35, arises where, with regard to a contract, the act or omission of deft. occurs which gives pltf. his cause of complaint, although the term may have a different construction in cases involving the local jurisdiction of inferior cts.—ST. LOUIS RURAL MUNICIPALITY v. MARKHAM, [1921] 1 W. W. R. 950.—CAN.

PART I. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.—B.

sm. Breach of trust—Failure to account.—The wrong of a sale of land in breach of trust & the wrong of a failure to account are entirely different things; & in this case there was a joinder of different causes of action, in which the different defts. were not

- Where the sole exor. under a will never made any claim against the beneficiaries for repayment of certain costs which he had been ordered to pay to them, all he did having been to reserve his right to claim such repayment under a deed of indemnity that the beneficiaries had executed in his favour :—Held : the ct. had no jurisdiction to make a declaratory judgment under R. 205b. Mental shock caused by negligence.]—Defts.' servant had a motor lorry at the top of an incline in a street, with the handbrake on, the engine running, & the wheels straight. The lorry began to run down the incline & it struck & injured pltf.'s daughter, a child, & pltf.'s wife suffered a severe shock & died in hospital about ten days later. Pltf. claimed damages under Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (c. 93), for negligence causing the death of his wife :—Held : pltf. would establish a cause of action if he established that the death of his wife resulted from the shock occasioned by negligence involved in the all interested. An order was made requiring pltf. to elect upon which cause of action he would proceed.—THOMAS v. DAY (Alta.) (1912), 21 W. L. R. 244; 2 W. W. R. 133; 4 D. L. R. 238.—CAN.

which damages could be assessed. On appeal the trial judge's view, as to the absence of evidence of damages, was sustained, but it was held that as a breach of warranty had been shown pltf. was entitled to a judgment for nominal damages, but that since the action was one for the recovery of substantial damages & not merely to assert a legal right there should be no costs of the trial or appeal to either party.—*SMITH v. 237 iii. ———.—]—Pltfs. complained that defts. dug holes in the beach upon their lands on the shore of a lake, where the sand met the grass-covered bank, that sand swept from pltf's lands by storms was carried by the wind across defts.' beach, & came to rest in these holes, & that, when the next storm came, the sand remained in the holes & was not blown back to pltf's lands. Pltfs. contended that it was wrongfully detained by defts.:—Held: pltfs. had no cause of action, as the sand could not be considered a chattel upon its severance by the wind from its original situs, if shifting sand could be said to have a situs.—*BREMNER v. lawful means may not comprise any specific act which is per se actionable & actual malice is not proved. The element of conspiracy in a case of this kind is of importance only in considering the weight of the acts alleged & the extent of the damage resulting therefrom.

Defts., the British Medical Association, a body incorporated for the purpose of maintaining "the honour & interests of the medical profession," & other defts., who were members of the Association, instituted & pursued a system of professional & social ostracism or boycott against plffs., who were medical men, by means of threats & widely extended coercive action. Defts. sought to justify the boycott on the ground that the conduct of plffs. in acting as the medical officers of a certain medical dispensary was detrimental to the honour & interests of the profession. As a result of the boycott plffs. suffered pecuniary loss in the exercise of their profession:—Held: plffs. had a good cause of action against all defts. for damages.—PRATT v. The claim was based upon an alleged agreement between the parties & also upon orders alleged to have been made by the Paper Comptroller appointed by the Canadian Government in Nov. 1917:—Held: although plff. co. sustained a substantial loss of profit by reason of its having been compelled by the Government to supply the Western Canadian publishers with newsprint at prices fixed by the Comptroller when it could have been sold to limited states ens-

Plffs., who were members of the co., complained that the deft. had induced certain of the sailors to break the contract by promising to get them employment & by obtaining other engagements for them. By amendment it was further alleged that deft. had wrongfully continued persons in her employment with the knowledge that by being in her employment those persons were breaking a contract with plffs.:—Held: assuming an action lies to recover damages on the latter ground, the foundation of this action is that there shall be notice to deft. of a subsisting contract which one party, at all events, is still willing & able to perform; & there being sufficient evidence before the county ct. judge that the partnership had for all practical purposes come to an end, no action lay.—LONG v. 259a. —.— Damage by rats.]—A firm of artificial manure manufacturers had on their premises, for the purposes of their business, a heap of bones which attracted rats. The occupier of adjoining premises was a farmer. The rats made runs between the factory & the fields & entered the farmer's land, & damaged his crops. The business had been carried on for at least thirty years, & there was no evidence to show that the bone heap had been increased beyond what it had been in past years, or anything to show that an increase which had actually taken place in the numbers of the rats was due to anything done by the manufacturers. In an action by the farmer against the manufacturers:—Held: in the absence of evidence showing that there had been an unusual & excessive collection of bones on the factory premises, or of anything unusual or excessive done by defts., or of any duty neglected by defts., plff. could not maintain an action for damages.—STEARNS v. 376a. ———.]—A foreign Sovereign suing in the cts. of this country submits to the jurisdiction to the extent only that he must give discovery, & cross proceedings in mitigation of the relief claimed by him can be taken against him.

A foreign State sued to restrain dealing with, & for the appointment of a new trustee of, funds lodged in England in the names of a trustee for plffs. & a trustee for defts. who held a concession from plffs. for the construction of a railway in their territory. A counterclaim for damages in respect of alleged breaches of the terms of the concession was struck out.—*SOUTH AFRICAN REPUBLIC v. 376b. ———.]—In 1916 a Russian Govt. Committee, of which deft. was a member, was set up in London by the Imperial Russian Govt. & continued by its successor, the Russian Provisional Govt., & the committee, which incurred large financial obligations, had possession of certain documents, which related to those obligations & were the property of those Govts. The committee ceased to operate in 1918, & the documents were handed over to a board of trustees appointed by the Chargé d'Affaires of the Russian Provincial Govt., & deft. became president of the board. The documents had become the property of plffs., the present Russian Govt., whose sovereignty had been recognised by the British Govt., but they were still in the possession of deft. Certain actions were pending against deft. as a member of the Russian Govt. Committee with regard to the transactions to which the documents related. Plffs. claimed the delivery up of the documents, & deft. contended that he was entitled to a lien on the documents until he had received an indemnity in respect of the other actions, & he set up the contention by way of defence & counterclaim :—Held : although where a sovereign state was a pltf. a counterclaim could be maintained against it, yet the counterclaim must be in respect of matters immediately connected with the claim, & as the indemnity sought by deft. was not in respect of any liability incurred by him in & about the custody of the documents, & was not in respect of matters immediately connected with the claim, the action succeeded & the counterclaim failed.—*SOVIET REPUBLICS UNION v. 387a. ——— Notwithstanding restrictions on exercise of sovereign rights.—(1) It is the settled practice of the ct. to take judicial notice of the status of any foreign Govt., & for that purpose, in any case of uncertainty, to seek information from a Secretary of State; & the information so received is conclusive.

(2) A Govt. recognised as sovereign by His Majesty's Govt. is not the less exempt from the jurisdiction of our cts. because it has agreed to restrictions on the exercise of its sovereign rights.

By a deed dated in July, 1912, the Govt. of Kelantan granted to applt. co. certain mining & other rights to be exercised in that State, & the deed contained an arbn. clause, which incorporated Arbn. Act, 1889 (c. 40), so far as applicable. Disputes having arisen as to the effect of the deed, they were referred to an arbitrator, who made an award in favour of the co. & directed the Govt. to pay the costs of the arbn. In Dec. 1921, the Govt. applied to the Ch. Div., under Arbn. Act, 1889, s. 11, to set aside the award, but the application was refused. In June, 1922, the co. obtained from the K. B. Div., under sect. 12 of the Act, an order giving leave to enforce the award, but the order was set aside, on the application of the Govt., on the ground that Kelantan was a sovereign independent State. Before setting aside the order the master asked the Secretary of State for the Colonies for information as to the status of Kelantan, & received in reply an official letter stating that Kelantan was an independent State & its Sultan the sovereign ruler thereof, & that the King did not exercise or claim any rights of sovereignty over Kelantan, & enclosing an agreement regulating the relations between the Sultan & the King. By this agreement the Sultan agreed to have no political relations with any foreign power except through the medium of the King, & in all matters of administration, other than those touching the Mohammedan religion & Malay custom, to follow the advice of an adviser appointed by the King :—Held : (1) the statement in the letter as to the sovereignty of Kelantan & its rulers was not intended to be qualified by the terms of the agreement, & the letter was conclusive; (3) the Govt. of Kelantan had not submitted to the jurisdiction of the ct. for the purpose of the proceedings to enforce the award, either by assenting to the arbn. clause or by applying to the ct. to set aside the award.—*DUFF DEVELOPMENT CO. v. - 392a. ———.—(1) In proceedings in the cts. of this country by or against the ruler of a colonial State whose status is disputed a written statement by the Secretary of State for the Colonies that the ruler is an independent foreign sovereign is equivalent to a communication from the Crown & therefore, conclusive, & the ct. will accept it without considering whether it is borne out by documents which are appended to it.
In an arbn. in this country between pltf. co. & the Govt. of Kelantan an award was made in favour of the co. with costs. The Govt. of Kelantan then moved to set aside the award & this motion was dismissed with costs. An appeal from this decision was also dismissed with costs. No portion of these costs had been paid. The co. obtained a garnishee order nisi to attach money in the hands of the Crown agents of the Colonies on behalf of the Govt. of Kelantan. Upon an application by the co. for payment by the garnishees the Govt. of Kelantan & the Crown agents appeared together & contended that Kelantan was an independent sovereign State & the ct. had no jurisdiction to execute the orders for costs by a levy on the property of that State :—Held : (2) although the Govt. of Kelantan had, by initiating proceedings to set aside the award of the arbitrator, submitted to the jurisdiction of the ct., (3) that submission had not the effect of rendering liable to execution any property belonging to the Govt. within the jurisdiction. —DUFF DEVELOPMENT CO. v. PART V. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 1.

498 ii. ————]—Claim under Criminal Injuries Code of Ireland.—The rule or doctrine that no civil remedy will lie against the perpetrators of a felonious act until they have been prosecuted to conviction is not applicable to a claim for compensation under Criminal Injuries Code of Ireland for goods stolen in the course of rioting.—TYLER v. CORK COUNTY COUNCIL, [1921] 2 I. R. 8.—IR.

499 i. ————]—A criminal charge was laid by plff. bank against deft. in respect of $1,800 which the bank alleged it had overpaid deft. Before decision in the criminal trial had been given, plffs. instituted an action to recover the money. It was contended on behalf of deft. that immediately the evidence disclosed a criminal offence on the part of deft., which had not been prosecuted to conviction or acquittal, plffs. should not have been allowed to proceed with the action, but should have been non-suited :—Held : as a criminal prosecution had actually been carried through, even though the decision was under advisement, the action could be maintained.—STANDARD BANK OF CANADA v. SIUEN WAH, [1919] 1 W. W. R. 586; 26 B. C. R. 441.—CAN.

499 ii. ————]—Where, in an action for assault & battery, plff. proves that the injury caused grievous bodily harm, plff. will be nonsuited unless it appears that proceedings have been taken against deft. for the criminal offence.—SCHOON v. KAY (1862), 10 N. B. R. (5 A.L.) 211.—CAN.

504 iii. ————]—The rule that where plff. sues in respect of a wrong which is a tort & also a felony, deft. should be prosecuted in respect of the felony before the civil action is heard, does not make such criminal prosecution an indispensable condition precedent to the right to maintain the civil action. In its modern application the rule is merely suspensory of the civil rights, & is subject to the exercise of judicial discretion. In exercising such discretion the ct. may consider circumstances, such as the infancy, ignorance, or poverty of plff., which may afford excuse for the failure to prosecute in respect of the felony. Where plff. has obtained a verdict in the civil action, the ct., on motion for a new trial or for judgment, may consider the circumstance that between verdict & motion deft. has been prosecuted in respect of the felony.—CARLISLE v. ORR (No. 2), [1918] 2 I. R. 442.—IR.

504 iv. ————]—On Aug. 12, 1920, an information for theft was laid by defts. against plff. On Aug. 23, 1920, plff. began an action in a division ct. against defts. to recover $99 for wages; on Aug. 30, defts. counter-claimed in the division ct. action for money & tickets amounting to $202.74. "fraudulently & without colour of right" converted by plff. to his own use, the subject of conversion being the same as that in respect of which the criminal charge was made; on Sept. 22 plff. was committed for trial on the criminal charge, & on Sept. 30, a true bill was found against him in the sessions. On a subsequent day the judge of the division ct. heard argument as to whether the action should be proceeded with before the criminal charge was taken up; he decided that it should, & fixed a day for trial, but on Dec. 10, 1920, neither the action nor the criminal proceeding having been tried, an order was made by a judge of the Supreme Ct. of Ontario, upon the application of defts., prohibiting the judge of the division court from proceeding in the action until after the final disposition of the criminal prosecution. Plff. appealed from this order, & before the completion of the argument of the appeal plff. was tried upon the criminal charge & acquitted :—Held : the division ct. judge had the right, the claim & counterclaim being within the jurisdiction of the ct., to stay proceedings or otherwise deal with the case; & prohibition did not lie, even if the judge erred in the conclusion to which he came.—Re BRYANT v. CITY DARTY CO. (1921), 61 D. L. R. 283; 37 Can. Crim. Cas. 405; 50 O. L. R. 40.—CAN.

The action resulted in judgment for defts. on the claim, with damages for £75 for C. on the counterclaim. The assocn. before the hearing of the action had passed resolutions to indemnify C. & W. against any liability or costs arising from the action against them, & that the indemnity should extend to the costs of any counterclaim that counsel might advise should be made, provided that any costs of the action for which the assocn. would be liable should be paid pro tanto out of any moneys recovered in the action. 598a. ———.]—Percentage.—Pltf. was retained by deft. to act as his solr. in an action brought against him. Deft. had a counterclaim, & while the action was proceeding, an agreement was made that in the event of deft.'s recovering more than sufficient to pay his creditors in full & all legal expenses he would pay his solr. a percentage on the amount, the solr. agreeing to conduct the counterclaim on the above terms, & not to look to deft. for any costs of the counterclaim except out-of-pocket expenses in the event of the success of pltf. in that action. Deft. lost the action, & his solr. sued him for the costs :—Held : pltf. could not recover as (1) (BANKES, L.J.) the agreement was champertous, & its effect was to make it an essential part of pltf.'s cause of action on his original retainer that he should negative the event in which he was to get no costs, namely, the event of the success of pltf. in the previous action; (2) (ATKIN, L.J.) the champertous nature of the agreement prevented pltf. from completing his services lawfully, & consequently he could not recover on a quantum meruit.—*WILD v. 599a. ———.]—Pltf. carried on business as the "Turf Register," which in a prospectus issued by him was called a "society"; but he was the sole proprietor of the business, though he described himself in the prospectus as secretary. In consideration of a subscription, & of a commission on the amount recovered, he undertook to collect for the subscribers betting debts which, under the provisions of Gaming Acts, were not recoverable. It was agreed between him & deft. in the terms of the prospectus, that in consideration of pltf. "putting up all the necessary disbursements for the institution & conduct of legal or other proceedings, the net profits accruing directly or indirectly is to be equally divided between claimant & the society." Pltf. brought an action to 604a. ——— Assignment of option to take lease.—In 1853 the L. & C. Ry. Co., the predecessors of deft. co., leased land adjacent to the station at Carlisle to H. for 999 years, for the purpose of erecting an hotel thereon. The lease contained a covenant by the co. with H., his exors., administrators & limited assigns that "the co. & their successors & assigns shall permit the tenant or occupier of the hotel for the time being & his servants to have access to the platforms of the station & that the tenant or occupier of the hotel shall have the option of renting the refreshment rooms" at a rent to be fixed as there mentioned, "in preference to any other party." In 1860 H. granted a sub-lease of the hotel premises to B. for 21 years, & the co. also granted to B. a lease of the refreshment rooms for 21 years. In 1866 pltf. co. obtained an assignment from B. of his interest under these two documents, & an assignment from H. of the land comprised in the lease of 1853 & "All & singular other premises comprised in & demised by the said recited indenture of lease of Aug. 1, 1853." From 1866 onwards pltf. managed & conducted both hotel & refreshment rooms, & after the expiration of the 21 years' term granted by the sub-lease of 1860 to B., they continued in occupation of the rooms upon such terms of that sub-lease as were applicable. In 1879 defts. succeeded by statute to the contracts of the L. & C. Ry. Co. On April 2, 1891, defts. & the Caledonian Ry. Co. demised to pltf. a plot of land adjacent to the hotel for 962 years. The deed recited the lease of 1853, & referred to it as the "principal indenture"; & it also provided that "these presents are without prejudice to any of the covenants conditions & agreements contained in the principal indenture," which were to remain & be in full force. On Mar. 24, 1916, defts. gave six months' notice to pltf. to determine their occupation of the refreshment rooms. Pltf. gave up possession, & then served a written notice on defts.

stating their desire to exercise the option contained in the lease of 1853, & requesting to be informed as to terms. Defts. having ignored the notice, pltf., on Oct. 16, 1916, obtained an express assignment from the personal representatives of H., who had died in 1876, of "all that the benefit right title & interest, if any, now remaining outstanding of or otherwise vested in them or any or either of them of & in the railway obligations." Pltf. claimed (a) a declaration that defts. by the lease of 1853 were under an obligation to put & keep the occupier of pltf.' hotel in occupation of the refreshment rooms, upon the terms of paying therefor a fixed market rent; (b) to have such rent fixed under the direction of the ct.; (c) damages for the breach of such obligation by defts.:—Held: (1) the option clause did not run with the land, & pass ipso facto by the assignment of the lease of 1853, as it did not touch or concern the thing demised; (2) the option clause was assignable, & was not a covenant merely personal to the covenantor; (3) the benefit of this clause was not assigned by the deed of 1866, inasmuch as the word "premises" therein referred to the land & buildings demised, & not to the option clause; (4) the deed of 1891 was not a fresh grant of the option rights to pltf., & did not constitute a binding recognition of pltf. as the assignees of the option clause; (5) the assignment of Oct. 16, 1916, by the personal representatives of H., of the option clause in the lease of 1853, being an assignment of a right of property, was not invalid for champerty; (6) the option clause was void for uncertainty; (7) the option clause was ultra vires of the railway co., as it fettered injuriously & gravely their obligations of performing efficiently their public duties.—*COUNTY HOTEL & WINE CO. v. 621a. ——— Dilapidations.—A freehold mesu-age & tenement were the subject of the following leases : (a) a head lease which expired on Dec. 25, 1917 ; (b) an underlease which expired on Dec. 18, 1917 ; (c) a sub-underlease which expired on Dec. 15, 1917. All three leases contained onerous covenants to repair the premises & to keep them & yield them up in good repair. The sub-underlease became vested by assignment in deft. On Dec. 18, 1917, pltf. who had been a tenant to deft. of the same premises, & was liable to him under a covenant to repair less onerous than those in the three leases above mentioned, agreed to purchase, & on May 1, 1918, took a conveyance of the fee simple of the premises together with the benefit of the covenants in the head lease. At the expiration of all the leases the premises were out of repair & deft. was threatening pltf.
with an action on his covenant. Thereupon ptlf. obtained an assignment of the full benefit of the lessee's covenants to repair contained in the sub-underlease, & commenced an action against deft. as assignee of the sub-underlease for breaches of the lessee's covenants therein :—Held : the assignment was free from objection on the ground of maintenance or champerty, the right of action on the covenants being so connected with the enjoyment of property as to be more than a bare right to litigate.—

637a. ——— Actions for infringement of copyright— Society for protection of copyright interests of members.—Pltf. society was formed as a limited co. to protect the copyright interests of members, who assigned their copyrights to the society. By the rules of the society fees & damages recovered were pooled, & the fund so formed was divided among the members after the deduction of expenses.
The assignments were real & substantial transactions, & the provision as to the division of the damages was only subsidiary.
In an action by the society for the infringement of copyrights which had been assigned to the society by two members :—Held :
the arrangement between the society & its members was made for legitimate busi-

620 i. Purchase of lands in litigation—
Pending actions relating to property purchased—Specific performance.—
Ptfs. having filed a bill for specific performance of a contract by one R.
to sell a certain mine to them, it was agreed between ptfs. & T., one of the now defts., pending such suit, that certain persons should purchase said mine from ptfs. ; that they should deposit the money required for the security for costs which ptfs. had been ordered to give in said suit & pay all costs incurred or to be incurred therein, or in any other suit brought or defended by them respecting said mine, & pay all moneys due for the purchase thereof,

& allot to each of ptfs. a twentieth share therein, if they should succeed in getting a title through the suit ; & that they would settle all claims of Messrs. R. & G. against ptfs. Ptfs.
having sued defts. on the last-mentioned covenant :—Held : the agreement was void for champerty & maintenance, &
they therefore could not recover.—

properties in the neighbourhood were flooded. The Crown expropriated the right so to flood these properties including the one in question herein, which at the time of the expropriation belonged to V. Subsequently V. sold the property to H. together with V.'s right to recover the compensation from the Crown for all damages caused him by the flooding & expropriation.
The Crown exhibited an information acknowledging liability & seeking to have the amount of the compensation fixed, & made H. deft. :—Held : the assignment from V. to H. was not an assignment of litigious rights.—Lt. v.

sa. Equitable jurisdiction.—M. obtained judgment for wages, etc., against the A., the owners having made default to appear. D. & Co., the owners of the cargo, intervened. The vessel was duly seized, sold at auction by the sheriff, & purchased by D. & Co., who made the necessary deposit. Money had been wired by applt. to discharge pltf.'s claim, but arrived too late to stop the sale. D. & Co. afterwards tendered the balance of the price, which was refused on account of an application to set aside the sale, & to redeem the vessel. D. & Co., on purchasing the vessel, made arrangements for repairs thereto, & at the time the application was originally made, they were negotiating for the sale thereof. The application was refused:—Held: while the Admty. Ct. exercised an unquestionable equitable jurisdiction, inasmuch as applt. had failed to show a superior equity to those arising in favour of the purchasers, the order refusing the application should

The Provisional Govt. entered appearances under protest, & motions were set down to set aside the writs & all subsequent proceedings on the grounds (inter alia) that the vessels were in the service of the Provisional Govt. & therefore immune from arrest; & that the dispute was between foreigners as to the possession of foreign ships, & therefore that, even if the ct. had jurisdiction, it should decline to exercise it. The judge invited the assistance of the Foreign Office as to the status of the Provisional Govt. of Northern Russia, & was informed by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs that, while the Allied Powers were co-operating with the Provisional Govt. in the opposition which that Govt. was making to the forces of the Russian Soviet Govt., the Provisional Govt. had not been "formally recognised either by H.M. 141d. —[—]—While under requisition by, & manned & operated by, the United States Govt., defts.' steamship was in collision with & did damage to pltf's. steamship. After the vessel had been released from requisition pltf's. commenced an action in rem for their collision damage. In that action defts. pleaded (inter alia) that "at the time when the collision is alleged to have taken place the Sylvan Arrow was under requisition by & under the sole control & management of the Govt. of the United States & was being navigated by persons who were the servants of the Govt. & for whose negligence defts. were & are in no wise responsible. . . . Defts. say that the action is not maintainable in rem by reason of the facts set out" above. On the hearing of this question as a preliminary point of law:—Held: defts. had surrendered their vessel to the United States Govt. under compulsion; in no sense could it be said that the master & crew derived their authority from defts., & in the circumstances no maritime lien attached to the vessel by reason of the collision, & her owners were not, either through their vessel or otherwise, liable to pltf's.—THE SYLVAN ARROW, [1923] P. 220; 92 L. The Union of Socialist Soviet Republics entered an appearance under protest & moved to set the writ aside on the ground that the ship was the property of the Union, a recognised independent sovereign State:—Held: the issue of a writ in rem against a vessel in which a foreign sovereign State claimed an interest was in effect impeaching the sovereign State, & although the right of the sovereign State to possession of the vessel was in dispute, the ct. could not investigate the facts, & the writ must be set aside.—THE JUPITER, [1924] P. 236; 93 L. 147a. ——— Owners liable though possession of vessel transferred—Ship requisitioned.—A Greek steamship owned by defts., a Greek co., was requisitioned by the Greek Govt. during the war in 1922 between Greece & Turkey. Under the terms of requisition the possession or control of the vessel passed to the Greek Govt., & the master & crew ceased to be employed by defts. & were conscripted into the Greek forces. At the end of the period of requisition the vessel had to be returned to defts. in the same condition as at the beginning of the period. While under requisition the vessel stranded, & was saved from possible total loss by the services of

142 i. Vessel of foreign Sovereign—Trading.—The I. was the property of the Govt. of Indo-China, a French possession, administered by a Governor-General for & in the name of the French Republic. Her officers & crew were in the service & pay of that Govt., & at the time of the accident she was on a voyage in the interest of the Govt. of Indo-China:—Held: the I. could not be lawfully arrested. Semle: a sovereign State cannot be implicated indirectly by proceedings in rem against its property. That immunity from arrest of a foreign state-owned ship is not affected by the vessel being used for trading purposes & as a cargo carrier, nor does it matter how the vessel is being employed.—BROWN, JR. v. S.S. INDO-CHINE (1921), 21 Exch. C. R. 416.—CAN.

pltf's. salvage ship. After the vessel had been returned to her owners she was arrested by pltf's. in an action in rem:—Held: the terms of requisition did not dispossess defts. of their property in the vessel; the services were of benefit to defts., as thereby they had their vessel instead of merely a claim against the Greek Govt.; as the services were not those of the crew of the Greek vessel, it was immaterial that the crew were the servants of the Greek Govt., & defts. were liable to 171a. ———.]—By a contract of sale made in London, an English co. on behalf of the Soviet Govt. purported to sell the J. to defts., an Italian co. The vessel had belonged to a Russian co., but the Soviet Govt. asserted that by a decree of nationalisation all vessels of the Russian mercantile marine had become State property, & that the co. had ceased to exist. The Russian co. had moved its business to France, & an action in rem was brought in its French name, & in the name of the persons appointed by the French cts. to administer its affairs, against "the J." claiming possession. The Italian co. entered an appearance & moved to set aside the writ:—Held: (1) there is no established rule that the Admty. Ct. will not entertain possession suits in respect of foreign vessels except at the request of both parties or with the consent of the accredited representative of the country to which the vessel belongs; the matter is one for the discretion of the ct.; (2) the proceedings did not implead the Soviet Govt. directly or indirectly; (3) the question of authority to institute the action was a matter which should be referred to the judge at the trial; (4) the motion to set aside the writ failed.—THE JUPITER (No. 2), [1925] P. 69; 94 L. Pltf's. brought an action in rem against the shipowners, claiming judgment for the validity of the mtges. & an order for sale of the vessel by the marshal. No appearance was entered by defts. & judgment was given condemning the vessel & ordering her sale. Thereupon the charterers intervened & claimed (a) a declaration that the charterparty was binding on the mtgees., who had notice of its existence when the mtges. were executed, & (b) an injunction to restrain pltf's. from exercising their right to an order for sale of the vessel except subject to the terms of the charterparty. The interveners also alleged that the mtges. were invalid:—Held: the interveners had no locus standi to dispute the validity of the mtges., but were only entitled to be heard on the question whether pltf's. ought to be restrained from exercising their rights in such a way as to interfere with the interveners' contractual rights under the charterparty.—THE LORD STRATHCONA, [1925] P. 143; 95 L. - 518a. ————]—In a collision between Swedish & British steamships, for which both ships were held to blame, a seaman on the former vessel was drowned. Under Swedish law the Swedish shipowners paid compensation to the relatives of the seaman. At the reference to assess the collision damage the Swedish shipowners claimed to recover from the owners of the British vessel a moiety of the compensation so paid. The registrar allowed the item. On appeal:—Held: the decision of the registrar was wrong for apart from Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (c. 57), the Ct. of Admty. had no jurisdiction to entertain an action in rem for loss of life, & the Admty. rules as to division of loss had no application to such a claim, & sect. 3 of that Act, which provided for contribution between the owners of wrongdoing vessels in respect of (inter alia) damages for loss of life or personal injuries, only applied to damages recoverable by action, & not to claims for compensation arising out of some statute & independently of fault on the part of the shipowner.—THE MOLIÈRE, [1925] P. 27; 94 L. 512 v. ————]—Pltf., a seaman, brought an action in rem for damages against a barge for bodily injuries sustained by him in an accident alleged to have been occasioned by negligence for which the ship was liable:—Held: the damage done was not "by" the barge, but "on" the barge, & was not such damage as gave pltf. a remedy in rem.—*MULVEY v. On affidavits sworn separately by pltfs., alleging that the goods were either lost or not shipped on any other vessel within a reasonable time, the ship was arrested. The owners of the ship took out a summons to set aside the writ & all proceedings thereunder:—Held: (1) the documents in question were bills of lading within the above sect., & the proceedings being to set aside the writ & it not being denied that some of the goods were received on board, the action should proceed; (2) the action being in rem & the joinder of pltfs. convenient, the view of the full Bench of the Supreme Ct. that pltfs. could properly be joined under the rules locally applicable should not be interfered with.—MARLBOROUGH HILL, SHIP v. The contract did not purport to be made by or on behalf of the ship, but by the shippers, with pltfs., who claimed damages for breach of contract for non-delivery, & at their request a

Pltfs. sought to limit their liability under M. S. 648a. Ship not entitled to be registered as British ship—Ship under jurisdiction of Prize Court.]—A ship registered as a British ship, & nominally owned by a duly registered British co., was in fact owned & controlled by the Hamburg-Amerika Line, of Hamburg, which, in the person of its nominees, owned all the shares in the British co. & appointed its directors. Accordingly, after the outbreak of war with Germany, the ship was seized as prize, & on July 28, 1916, the Prize Ct. pronounced her to have belonged at the time of seizure to enemies of the Crown, & ordered her to be detained by the marshal until further order. Meanwhile on Jan. 11, 1916, under Prize Ct. Rules, Ord. 29, the ship had been requisitioned by the Lords Comrs. of the Admty., & she remained in their possession. On Apr. 5, 1917, the writ in the present action was issued claiming a declaration under M. S. Acts, 1894 (c. 60), & 1906 (c. 48), that the ship was forfeited to the Crown on the ground that she was not entitled to be registered as a British ship:—Held: as the Lords Comrs. of the Admty. had merely temporary possession of the ship & had to return her into the custody of the Prize Ct. which had at some time to make a final decree either of condemnation or release, the Admty. Ct. had no jurisdiction to entertain the forfeiture action & to make the usual order for appraisement & sale, & the action must be dismissed.—THE

C., Ord. 8, r. 1, if, but for the extension of time, the claim would be barred by a statute of limitation. But, inasmuch as Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (c. 57), s. 8, contains provisos for extension of time unknown to any other statutes of limitation, the application to renew a writ in an action which comes within the operation of sect. 8 must be considered on its merits, & if, under the circumstances, the ct. would give leave to issue a writ notwithstanding the lapse of two years, the ct. will allow an extension of time for the renewal of a writ, the time for the renewal of which has expired.—THE ESPANOLETO, [1920] P. 223; 90 L. The owners of the A. agreed pltf.' damages, but refused to pay the costs of the action by pltf. against the W., which had then been prosecuted to the stage of filing pltf.' preliminary act:—Held: pltf. were entitled to amend their writ by adding the owners of the A. as defts. The case came within the principle of R. *st. Mala fide arrest—Abuse of process of court—Rights of other claimants.]—A ship was arrested at the suit of a member of a firm. His independent claim for wages as a "ship's carpenter on board the ship," was in fact only a part of his firm's claim, & immediately after the ship was arrested his firm's action was instituted:—Held: those facts so obviously disclosed mala fides & an abuse of the process of the ct. that the arrest could be viewed as a sham proceeding & as not having any legal existence as regards the firm, but other*

781b. Undertaking to put in bail—Afterwards withdrawn—Effect of subsequent arrest of vessel.]—On June 22, 1920, defts.' solrs. gave an undertaking to enter an appearance & put in bail in respect of a writ in rem claiming damages in respect of loss by collision. In consequence defts.' vessel was not arrested. On Feb. 17, 1921, defts.' solrs. wrote to plfts.' solrs. that their clients were unable to make arrangements for bail, that accordingly the undertaking for bail was withdrawn, & that, as the vessel was within the jurisdiction of the ct., plfts. could arrest her. Plfts.' solrs. arrested the vessel, but wrote to defts.' solrs. that they reserved all their clients' rights under the undertaking for bail. On Mar. 16, 1921, the vessel was appraised as being at that time of a value of £600. Defts. provided bail in that sum & the vessel was released. On Apr. 12, plfts. applied for an order that defts.' solrs. should forthwith provide good & sufficient bail, pursuant to their undertaking. It appeared that in June, 1920, the value of the vessel was much in excess of £600, & plfts. estimated her value at £4,500 :—Held: (1) the undertaking to give bail could not be withdrawn by substituting the vessel for the bail; (2) plfts. had not waived their rights under the undertaking by arresting the vessel; (3) defts.' solrs. must complete their undertaking by putting in bail to the value of the vessel as on June 22, 1920; (4) nature of bail discussed.—THE BORRE, [1921] P. 390; 91 L. 781e. Benefit of bail—Action in name of cargo owners—Some owners not joining in proceedings.]—The steamships W. & J. came into collision & the W. & her cargo were damaged. Before the issue of the writ an undertaking to put in bail to the amount of £100,000, had been given on behalf of the owners of the J. The writ was in the names of "The owners of the steamship W. & cargo v. the owners of the steamship J.," but at that time no authority from any of the cargo owners had been received. While the litigation was proceeding the owners of the W. asked the various underwriters on the cargo, subrogated to the rights of the respective cargo owners, to join in the proceedings or share in the costs. Some assented & some declined. The litigation proceeded to the House of Lords, where the J. was held alone to blame. The sum of £100,000 being insufficient to satisfy all the claims, the owners of the W. contended that having sued as owners of the ship & bailees of the cargo they were entitled to receive the whole of the bail for which the undertaking had been given, pay themselves the amount of their own damage as shipowners in priority to all other claimants, & that the non-assenting cargo owners had no right to share in the fund :—Held: (1) although, as bailees of the cargo, the shipowners were entitled to recover the full value of the damage to the cargo, represented by the bail, they must account to all the owners of the damaged parcels of cargo for their share; (2) it was the duty of the ct., when the bail was recovered, to see that all persons having a claim on the fund, including the non-assenting cargo owners, shared in the distribution.—THE JOANNIS VATIS, [1922] P. 92; 91 L. J. P. 182; 126 L. T. 718; 15 Asp. M. L. C. 506, C. A.

781f. ——— Several salvage actions.]—A vessel which had stranded on rocks & sustained heavy damage got off with the assistance of various salvors & was placed in dock for temporary repairs. In respect of these services various salvage actions & an action by the ship repairers for salvage &/or necessities were instituted. No defence was put in, but in the first action an appearance was entered & an undertaking given to put in bail for ship, cargo & freight in the sum of £1,000. The cargo & freight were valued at £327. Before the other actions were instituted the cargo had been landed & dispersed. After some temporary repairs had been effected the vessel was sold by the marshal. She only realised £839 :—Held: the bail for cargo & freight did not constitute a fund in which all the salvors could share; the undertaking was given in one action only, & plfts. in that action, in which the total values were £1,217, could treat ³²⁷_{1,217} of £1,000 as bail representing

781g. Amount of bail—Value of ship & freight—Limit of liability—Facts disputed by plaintiffs.]—It, in an action of damage by collision, the amount for which the action is brought exceeds the statutory limit provided by M. S. Act, 1894 (c. 60), s. 503, deft. shipowners on filing an affidavit in the damage action stating the tonnage of their ship & that the collision happened without their actual fault or privity, will, if these facts are not denied by plft. shipowners, be entitled to have the ship released on bail being given to an amount sufficient to cover the statutory limit, together with interest & costs. But if plffs. dispute the facts on which the right to limit liability depends, bail must be given to the full value of defts.' ship.—THE CHARLOTTE, [1920] P. 78; 89 L. J. P. 62; 123 L. 856a. —[1] In a consolidated salvage action the tender by defts. of a lump sum to answer several claims of salvors is a valid tender; but, where defts. have adopted this course, they run the risk that the ct. may hold that it was reasonable for plffs. to proceed to trial although the tender is upheld.

In a consolidated salvage suit where the owners of two tugs, separately owned, joined in one writ, & the masters & crews in another, defts. tendered a lump sum which the ct. upheld, but as defts.' affidavit of values was only handed to plffs. on the day of the trial:—Held: (2) plffs., the tug owners, who had been given the conduct of the consolidated action, were entitled to their costs; (3) the interests of the masters & crews being identical with those of the owners, the masters & crews were not entitled to be separately represented at the expense of defts. 894a. — Action between parties whose vessels have not been in collision with each other.]—Where the parties to a damage action are the owners of vessels which have not been in collision with each other the practice as to requiring preliminary acts under R. S. C., Ord. 19, r. 28, is a matter for the discretion of the ct. In such cases the proper course is that there should be the communication between the solrs. which commonly takes place in admty. cases, & that the solrs. should ascertain whether the parties are ready to file preliminary acts under Ord. 19, r. 28. If both parties are not ready to deliver preliminary acts, or one of them declares himself unable or unwilling, then the matter should be raised by summons. If in such a case an order is made for preliminary acts to be filed, such order is not properly complied with by the party whose vessel has not been in collision filing a blank preliminary act.—THE EL OSO (1925), 133 L. Plffs. issued a writ in rem against the owners of the C., & the usual preliminary acts were filed by both parties. In their defence the owners of the C. blamed the B., & plffs. added the owners of the B. as second defts. Thereupon the owners of the C. obtained an order that the owners of the B. should forthwith file a preliminary act:—Held: (1) the only parties entitled as against second defts. to a preliminary act were plffs., & they would be so entitled when they had filed a preliminary act against second defts.; first defts. were not entitled to require second defts. to file a preliminary act unless they chose to become plffs. & issue a writ against second defts., & the order must be set aside; (2) if it were a matter of discretion, the guiding principle, that of mutuality, Defts. directed that a report on a printed form headed "Confidential report for the information of the Authority's solr." should be made by the master of the vessel. The report was subsequently passed through various departments in defts.' offices until it reached the solr.'s hands. It was then dealt with by the solr. in the course of his professional conduct. A report was made in these circumstances by the master of a vessel belonging to defts. in respect of a collision with pltf.'s vessel. Pltfs. claimed to have this report produced to them:—Held: the report having been obtained for the solr., in the sense of being procured as materials upon which professional advice should be taken in proceedings pending or threatened or anticipated, it was privileged from production.—THE HOPPER No. 13, [1925] P. 52; 94 L. Defts. denied liability alleging that the loss was due to pilferage by an organised band of thieves. Defts. had called for reports from the first, second, third, & fourth officers of the steamer, in order to investigate the question of the management of the vessel & the conduct of their officers in the prevention of theft, which reports were in due course obtained through defts.' agents in China. Defts. claimed that these reports were privileged from discovery:—Held: (1) the reports were not privileged.

Log of defendants' vessel—Right of plaintiffs to put in—After admission of facts by defendants.]—Defts. to an action of salvage by their defence admitted that all pltfs. had rendered salvage services & that the allegations of the facts of such services set out in the respective statements of claim were in substance correct, but they denied that the various inferences sought to be drawn from those facts were accurate or well founded, & that their vessel was ever in any real danger. They also pleaded certain soundings which differed from those pleaded by certain of pltfs. Pltfs. by their reply joined issue upon the defence save in so far as the same consisted of admissions:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to put in the logs of defts.' vessel with a view to proving that the ship was in real danger, & also a graphic representation of the soundings based on sketches in defts.' log, but not to call evidence as to the facts, e.g. the displacement of certain tugs.—THE WOODARRA (1921), 38 T. 1196 iii. — — — — —.]—Two ships collided on a very bad night. The collision was caused by the M., which was light, dragging her anchors, & coming down on the R., which was holding to her moorings. When the M. was dragging her anchors she had steam up but did not use it, by which failure she omitted to take a reasonable measure which might have avoided the accident. In an action for damages by the R. against the M. there was uncontradicted evidence to the effect that the steam had not been used because those in charge of the M. did not & could not know owing to the darkness & the weather that they were dragging their anchors. The Lord Ordinary, without expressing any opinion as to whether he credited that evidence or not, accepted an opinion expressed by the nautical assessor to the effect that it would not have been difficult for those on the M. to know that they were dragging their anchors:—Held: it was for the Lord Ordinary & not for the nautical assessor to pronounce upon the trustworthiness of that evidence, & to say whether or not the master of the M. ought to have known when his anchor began to drag, & on the ground that the evidence did not establish the fault, the M. absolved.—CAMBO SHIPPING CO., LTD. (ROSSETTI (OWNERS)) DAMPSKIRSELSKABET MAGNUS, [1920] S. C. 96; 57 Sc. T. R. 59.—SCOT

Thereupon certain charterers, to whom the mtgors. had chartered the ship for a term of years, intervened, claiming a declaration that the charterparty was binding on the mtgees.; & by an order of Mar. 3 the sale of the ship stood over pending the trial of the issue, upon the interveners giving security in an amount satisfactory to the registrar for loss arising from delay & any loss on sale due to a fall in shipping values. On July 15 the ct. gave judgment that plffs. were not bound by the charterparty, that they were entitled to the judgment they had obtained, & that the costs of & occasioned by the intervention should be paid by the interveners. On Oct. 14 the ship was sold by the marshal for £20,000 less than she had been valued at nine months previously. Plffs. took out a summons for further security:—Held: although judgment had been given against the interveners & they were not appealing against that decision, the matter was still at large, as they were contesting plffs.' claims before the registrar, & the interveners could be ordered to give further security in respect of possible loss of capital & interest & for the marshal's expenses; the case must be referred to the registrar to find what amount should be

A taxing master should bear in mind that a witness duly summoned is bound to attend, & the witness is not entitled to receive, as the measure of his compensation, the exact sum he may prove he has lost by reason of the detention. He is, however, entitled to some compensation, & not merely to the conduct money given him with his subpoena; & the wages he is earning may afford an important indication of what is fair compensation. But although this is correct in the case of seamen, as regards captains & other officers, as in the case of professional witnesses, their earnings cannot be taken as a fair criterion on which to base the allowance.—THE IBIS VI, [1921] P. 255; 90 L. 1551a. — Unascertained liability—Right of plaintiffs in limitation suit to claim against fund.—In Feb. 1917, two Norwegian vessels, the C. & the O., came into collision & the C. sank. In Mar. 1917, the owners of the cargo laden on board the C. began an action against the owners of the O. in the Admty. Ct. The action was heard in May, 1919, when both vessels were pronounced to blame, & accordingly it was adjudged that pltf's. were entitled to receive a moiety of the amount of their damage from debts. Thereupon debts., the owners of the O., commenced a limitation action against the owners of the C., the owners of her cargo, & all persons claiming to have received damage by reason of the collision. This action was heard in Feb. 1920, when a decree was pronounced limiting the liability of the owners of the O. to £8 per ton on the registered tonnage of the O. calculated in accordance with M. S. Act, 1894 (c. 60). The decree provided that all claims were to be brought in within three months & that claims not so brought in would be excluded from sharing in the limitation fund. Claims were filed by the owners of the cargo on the C., but although the owners of the C. entered an appearance they took no further steps in the limitation proceedings. Meanwhile, however, in Feb. 1919, the owners of the C. had commenced an action in Norway against the owners of the O. & in June, 1920, when the reference was held in the limitation proceedings & the registrar made his report, the trial of the Norwegian action was still pending. The owners of the O. accordingly took out a summons asking that the report be not confirmed & that they might have leave to file a claim against the fund in respect of any liability they might incur under the Norwegian proceedings. The judge declined to postpone the distribution of the fund & dismissed the summons. Pltf's., the owners of the O., appealed:—Held: (1) pltf's. had no absolute right under the limitation sects. of M. S. Act, 1894 (c. 60), to have the distribution of the fund stayed & to bring forward a claim when ascertained; (2) limitation proceedings do not contemplate claims by pltf's., & the owners of the O. could not file a claim against the fund in their own right; (3) had an application been made in proper form the ct. would have had a discretion to extend the time before distributing the fund, in order to allow pltf's. to ascertain their liability under the pending Norwegian judgment & to apply to the ct. to adjust the distribution of the fund so that plffs. might obtain credit for the amount payable under the Norwegian judgment; but, having regard to the lapse of time & to the fact that limitation proceedings contemplate that claims shall be brought in promptly & the distribution of the fund not be unreasonably delayed, the ct. had rightly exercised its discretion in refusing to postpone the distribution of the fund.—THE KRONPRINZ OLAV, [1921] P. 52; 90 L. 108 i. Broker.]—A broker is an agent of a special kind. A broker who approaches a buyer or seller acts in the first instance as agent of the person who employs him, but directly the other party is aware of the fact that he is a broker, he becomes the agent of both parties, not with a plenary power to bind both parties as he chooses, but to communicate between them until they are ad idem.—*JACOBS LEVITATZ & BRAUDE v. 149 iii. —.]—Statute of Alberta, 1906 (c. 27).]—It is merely the terms of the agency agreement, whether they may be meagre or detailed, that must be in writing under the above Act. The price & the other terms of the proposed sale may or may not be mentioned. If they are, in the circumstances, an essential part of the agency agreement they ought to be in writing. But it is a question of interpretation, even since the statute, whether the terms mentioned as those of the proposed sale are intended merely as a basis on which the agent may negotiate or are intended to bind the agent strictly to a sale on the named terms before he can claim his commission.—*KING v. Dft. agreed, & on the same day pltf. introduced B. to dft. with whom a sale was arranged. Pltf. in his evidence stated that he was not a land agent, & for the preceding five years had had no transactions for the sale of land except the one in question.—Held: the arrangement between the parties was not one of a series nor the commencement of a series of transactions, but a solitary transaction, & pltf. was not a land agent within the above Act.—*COOKE v. SECT. 4.—AGENCY OF NECESSITY (Vol. I., p. 293).

For "See HUSBAND & WIFE: SHIPPING & NAVIGATION," substitute as follows:—

215a. Extent of doctrine.—An agency of necessity can arise in other cases than that of carriers by land or sea or the acceptor of a bill of exchange for the honour of the drawer. Extraordinary circumstances, such as war conditions, which make it impossible for a buyer of goods on behalf of a principal abroad either to despatch them or to communicate with him, would entitle the buyer to sell the goods as an agent of necessity. But in order to establish an agency of necessity the agent must prove that there was an actual & definite commercial necessity for the sale, & that the transaction was bond fide in the interest of the principal.

Where an agent in London bought skins in 1915 & 1916 to be forwarded to his principal in Roumania as the principal might direct, & in consequence of the occupation of Roumania by the Germans in 1916, the agent was unable to send the skins to his principal or communicate with him, & the agent thereupon sold the skins without authority:—Held: the agent had failed to establish agency of necessity because (a) the deterioration of the furs might have been prevented by putting them in cold storage at a comparatively small expense, & moreover, they had steadily increased in value, & (b) the agent had not acted bond fide in selling the skins.—*PRAGER v. 277 v. ———.]—A bare power of attorney to make & indorse notes, cheques, etc., does not authorise the attorney to raise loans on his principal's credit for the principal himself or for the attorney's own accommodation or for a third party; nor is such authority conferred by a general power given the attorney to do all "other acts & things for the purpose of carrying on any business in my name." The power to borrow money must be conferred in express terms, & when this power is alleged to be based on a power of attorney, the document must be read strictly.—*BANK OF TORONTO v. In an action by pltf. to recover from defts. the proceeds of the cheque:—Held: as defts. knew that T. was paying his own debt to them with pltf.'s money, & as T. had no authority to pay his own debts therewith, pltf. was entitled to recover.—*RECKITT v. 332b. ———.]—Pltf. gave to one T., who was a solr., a power of attorney & authorised him to draw cheques on his, pltf.'s, behalf. T. was also acting as solr. for deft. & obtained from her a cheque for nearly £5,000 for the discharge of certain liabilities of which T. had informed her. At that time deft.'s banking account was, though deft. was not aware of it, about £1,500 short of the amount of the cheque & T. drew a bearer cheque for £1,500 on pltf.'s account & paid it into deft.'s account, the cheque showing on its face that it was drawn by T. as attorney for pltf. T. was thus enabled to cash deft.'s cheque. Pltf., on ascertaining the facts, brought this action against deft. for a declaration that he was entitled to recover from her the proceeds of the £1,500 cheque:—Held: as deft.'s bank had notice on the face of the £1,500 cheque that it represented money belonging to pltf., & as they had received it as agents for deft. & had credited it to her account, pltf. was entitled to succeed.—RECKITT v. NUNBURNHOLME (1929), 45 T. L. R. 629.

338a. ——— Authority to sign for business purposes.]—Resps. had two accounts with applt. bank at Sydney in connection with a business which they there carried on. They informed the bank in writing that the two managers of their business had authority together to sign & indorse cheques, to draw & indorse promissory notes & bills of exchange, & to transact on their behalf all business connected with the accounts. Banks in Australia frequently issue to a customer, in exchange for a cheque in favour of the bank, a cheque, described as a "bank cheque," drawn by the bank on itself in favour of a person designated by him, or to bearer. In exchange for cheques drawn in favour of applt. bank by the managers, the bank issued to one of the managers bank cheques payable to a name designated by him; these cheques he fraudulently appropriated:—Held: applt. bank was not entitled to debit the bank of price by instalments.—Defts. signed & gave to an agent a document in the following terms:—"We hereby agree to sell the property for £6,700 nett, provided a sale takes place within fourteen days from date hereof. The above price to be clear of all commission charges." The agent, within the fourteen days, signed a contract of sale by which the property was sold to pltf. for £6,700, payable £1,000 deposit (£50 preliminary deposit, to be increased to £1,000 within one month), £2,250 within three months, & £3,450 within six months, possession to be given after the second payment £2,250 at the end of the three months. There was no provision for interest on the balance:—Held: the document signed by defts. was not an authority to the agent to sign a contract containing the above terms as to payment.—*BOYD v. - 485a. — Improper sale.—Pltf. was the owner of the A. tapestry & the L. tapestry, & he gave to P., a dealer in antiques, a limited authority to obtain & submit offers from possible purchasers. P. falsely represented to pltf. that he could the A. tapestry, & pltf. allowed him to take it away for delivery to a purchaser, who in fact did not exist. P. then sold the A. tapestry to deft. for £250. Subsequently P., who never had authority to sell the L. tapestry, stole it from pltf. & sold it to deft. In an action for conversion deft. contended that P. had been in possession of the tapestries as a mercantile agent within the Act of 1889, & that as he had bought them from P. in good faith he had acquired the property in them. He also contended that pltf. had held out P. as a person with authority to sell & was estopped from saying that P. had no such authority in fact:—Held: (1) although P.'s authority was limited, & although he was not acting for any principal other than pltf., yet these facts did not prevent him from being a mercantile agent & in the circumstances he was a mercantile agent & in possession of the A. tapestry with the consent of pltf., & as to that tapestry the defence under the Act of 1889 was established; (2) as to the L. tapestry, as P. was never in possession of it with pltf.'s consent, the defence under the Act failed, & as pltf. had never represented to deft. that P. had authority to sell it, there was no estoppel, & pltf. was entitled to recover the value of the L. tapestry alone.—*LOWTHER v. The agent submitted the property to pltf., who elected to take a lease. The agent drew up an agreement to lease the property upon the terms mentioned by deft., & signed it on deft.'s behalf.—Held: deft.'s letter did not authorise the agent to bind him by a concluded contract, but merely amounted to an authority to find a purchaser.—QUICK v. WINTER, [1920] N. Z. L. R. 98.—N.Z.

& the agent agreed that the car should not be sold at less than a specified price without the owner's permission. The agent intended from the beginning to sell the car immediately for the best price he could get & to use the proceeds for his own purposes. On the day on which he got the car he sold it for less than the specified price to a purchaser who bought it in good faith & without notice of the agent's fraud. The agent misappropriated the proceeds. The car was subsequently purchased by deft. In an action of detinue by the owner of the car against deft.:—Held: (1) deft. acquired a good title by virtue of 1889 Act, s. 2; (2) the mercantile agent had not rendered himself liable to be convicted of larceny by a trick, inasmuch as he was authorised by pltf. to pass the property in the car to a purchaser; (3) as pltf. in fact consented to the mercantile agent having possession of the car, it was immaterial whether the latter committed larceny by a trick.—FOLKES v. KING, [1923] 1 K. B. 282; 92 L. J. K. B. 125; 128 L. T. 405; 39 T. L. R. 77; 67 Sol. Jo. 227; 28 Com. Cas. 110; 86 J. P. Jo. 552, C. A.

495b. ——— To specified person—Sale to third party.—Pltf., desiring to sell his motor car for £210, & being informed by N. that he had a friend H., who would probably buy it for that price, allowed N. to have possession of the car for the sole purpose of showing it & endeavouring to sell it to H. There was no such person as H., & N. represented that there was with the intention of obtaining the car for his own benefit. N. afterwards through an intermediary sold the car to defts. for £110. Before N. got possession of the car he had been convicted of theft & other offences, but that was not known to any of the parties. While N. was in possession of the car he obtained an appointment as car salesman to a firm of motor engineers. In an action by pltf. against defts. for the return of the car or its value & damages for its detention:—Held: (1) N. had obtained the car from pltf. by larceny by a trick, pltf. never having given any real consent to his having or passing the property therein, & pltf. should succeed in the action unless defts. had some valid defence thereto; (2) defts. could not rely upon the defence that under 1889 Act, s. 2 (1), the sale to them was as valid as if the seller had been expressly authorised by pltf. to make the same, inasmuch as N. was not a "mercantile agent," & if he was, the sale by him was not a sale in the ordinary course of his business as a mercantile agent, within that sub-section; & further, because defts. had failed to satisfy the proviso to that sub-section by showing that they had not at the time of the disposition notice that N. had not authority to sell the car; & defts. had no defence to the action.

(3) Under 1889 Act, s. 2 (1), proviso, the onus is on the person taking under the disposition of the goods made by the mercantile agent of proving that he acted in good faith & without notice of the agent's want of authority, & is not upon the person whose goods have been disposed of by the agent of proving the contrary.—*HEAP v. A. (a) vii.

sp. Act of 1889—"When acting in ordinary course of business" defined.—The expression "when acting in the ordinary course of business of a mercantile agent," means when acting within business hours, at a proper place of business, & in other respects in the ordinary way in which a mercantile agent would act, so that there is nothing to lead the pledgee to suppose that anything wrong is being done, or to give him notice that the disposition is one which the mercantile agent had no authority to make.—*ACME STEEL GOODS CO. st. Act of 1889—"Necessity for proof of mala fides of purchaser."—Where an owner of goods, who has placed them with a mercantile agent, sues an alleged purchaser thereof from the agent for wrongful conversion, & deft. relies on [the above Act] the actual payment of money by deft. to the agent will not destroy the fact of mala fides, but the fact that the transaction is found not to have been an ordinary sale, i.e. a sale to one desirous of either using the goods or disposing of them to advantage, can of itself have a bearing only on the question of good faith, & proof of the dishonesty of the agent is not sufficient; it must be shown that deft. acted in bad faith, & the evidence should be such as to prove to the hilt the mala fides of the alleged sale.—*ACME STEEL GOODS CO. W. was authorised to receive payment in cash for coal supplied by pltfs. to their customers. Pltfs. had notified their customers, including defts., that all cheques must be made payable to pltfs.' order, & not to that of W. Defts. nevertheless paid for coal supplied to them by pltfs. by cheques made payable to W. or order. All these cheques were duly honoured on presentation. W. paid seven of defts.' cheques into his own private account & embezzled the proceeds:—Held: as W. was authorised by pltfs. to receive payment in cash for coal supplied, & defts. had paid W. by cheques payable to his order, & the cheques were duly honoured, defts. were discharged, notwith-

746 i. Agent.]—An agent authorised to receive money for his principal may not receive anything but money. cf. ——— Authority to collect debts—Cashing cheques received.—A clerk employed in the business of the Canadian Govt. elevators, whose express duties were to collect amounts due from grain dealers for freight charges, etc., & on presentation of bills of lading & payment of charges to hand out warehouse receipts, & deposit all money collected to the credit of the Receiver-General in a designated bank & at certain intervals to remit by draft to the head office of the business, & which charges were almost always paid to him by accepted cheque, although they might have been received in cash if so tendered:—Held: to have no authority to cash any cheques paid to him or any ostensible authority justifying any bank giving him the cash for any such cheque.—R. v. ROYAL BANK OF CANADA, [1920] 1 W. W. R. 198; 50 D. L. R. 293; 30 Man. L. R. 104.—CAN.

PART V. SECT.

804 i. Agent.—Implied authority from circumstances—Husband authorised to purchase stock for wife.—The fact that a husband was authorised to act, & has acted, as his wife's agent in the purchase of stock through brokers does not in itself justify the brokers in assuming that he is her agent to direct a sale of it; & even assuming that the rules of the stock exchange subject to which the order to purchase was placed confer on the husband authority to direct such sale, the brokers' responsibility to the wife for the proceeds of the sale is not discharged by payment to the husband unless they show that he had authority, either express or implied, to receive the money.—AIKMAN v. 808 v. ——— Break in market.—Instructions by an owner of wheat to his agent to "sell" without more means "sell as soon as possible," unless there is something in the circumstances or the custom of a particular trade known to both parties to give the words a different meaning. Where instructions to sell, without stipulating any price, were given after the close of the market on May 3:—Held: the agent was justified in selling without further instructions at the opening of the market on May 4, though the market had broken by reason of the Grain Exchange having withdrawn option trading & the possibility of the Govt. fixing the price.—GHARHART v. QUAKER OATS CO., [1919] 3 W. W. R. 888.—CAN.

809 ii a. ———.]—Deft. wired to S., a land agent: "Bed-rock, £13,250 net, £400 down, stock & furniture at valuation." S. replied, "Your wire says £400 down; suppose you mean £1,000, wire us giving authority to sell if we can get your net price." Deft. then wired, "Four thousand down. Sell if you can get my net price." S. replied, "Have sold in accordance with your wire, freehold for £13,750, stock & furniture at valuation, showing you £13,250 net, £4,000 to be paid down, balance to be arranged on mtge. by you. Possession as soon as license granted, not later than Aug. 20, £500 deposit paid":—Held: S. had no authority to sell on the terms on which he did sell.—PRINGLE v. MCKAY, [1922] N. Z. L. 834a. ———.]—A general authority to an agent to find a purchaser of a house does not authorise the agent to sign a contract binding on the vendor. There must, to justify such a signing, be a special & express authority to sign.—LEWCOCK v. BROMLEY (1920), 127 L. T. 116; 37 T. L. R. 48; 65 Sol. Jo. 75.

834b. ———.]—The mere employment of an estate agent by an owner to dispose of a house confers no authority to make a contract. The agent is solely employed to find some one to negotiate with the owner. But if the agent is definitely instructed to sell at a certain price, those instructions involve authority to make a binding contract & to sign an agreement.

But the authority is limited to signing an open contract & does not authorise the agent to sign a contract with special conditions, e.g. as to title with which it is no part of an estate agent's duty to deal.—KEEN v. MEAR, [1920] 2 Ch. 574; 89 L. J. Ch. 513; 124 L. T. 19.

an amount. The offer having been withdrawn, the agent agreed to sell the property to deft. for £825, & let him into possession. On the tender of the formal contract to pltf. for execution a month later he learned about the mistake in the telegram for the first time & refused to complete:—Held: the specific authority originally given to the agent did not authorise the sale of pltf.'s property for less than £900, & no land agent as such is held out as having a general authority on behalf of his client to sell on any terms or at any price.—SHORTAL v. BUCHANAN, [1920] N. Z. L. R. 103.—N.Z.

815 v. ———.]—Pltfs., an incorporated co., owning lots of land, appointed C. their general manager to supervise the sale of the lots. In the agreement between pltf. & C. it was provided that he had no authority to make any representation as to pltf.'s properties other than those contained in their printed matter, & that he should have authority to accept offers for the purchase of lots according to pltf.'s price-list. Pltf. employed G. to sell their lots. G., in Mar. 1914, telephoned to deft. from pltf.'s office & induced deft. to buy two of the lots, upon the express agreement that pltf. would resell the lots not later than Aug. 1914, at a profit of $100 on each lot; G. informed deft. that he was authorised by C. to make this arrangement. C. was present when G. was telephoning, & heard what G. said; C. told G. that he should not have said that pltf. would resell the lots; but, according to the testimony of G., C. himself was not called as a witness. C. ratified the representation made in his name & ostensibly by his authority:—Held: C., as general manager, had ostensible autho-riety to make or ratify the collateral agreement, & any secret restriction of his authority would not affect deft., who relied upon his being the general manager.—CANADIAN GENERAL SECURITIES CO., LTD. v. GEORGE (1918), 42 O. L. R. 560; 13 O. W. N. 355; 14 O. W. N. 71; 43 D. L. R. 20.—CAN.

817 ii. ———.]—Implied authority.—A broker who had purchased corn on margin for a customer:—Held: justified in selling on the customer falling to forward margin money when a slump occurred in the market-price, a general condition of the broker transacting such business being that he reserved the right to close transactions without further notice when margins were unsatisfactory, which condition the ct. inferred must have been known to the customer who had been for some time a "room trader" & dealer on a larger scale in the broker's office.—MALOOF v. BICKELL, [1920] 1 W. W. R. 407; 50 D. L. R. 590; 17 O. W. N. 294; 59 S. C. R. 429.—CAN.

817 iii. ———.]—Authority to find purchaser.—On Jan. 20, 1920, deft. handed to his brokers a letter in these terms: "I authorise you to procure a buyer of the above premises for Rs. 45,000 & on your sending same, I shall pay you as remuneration at 1 per cent. on the purchase-money. The same will be paid at the registration of the conveyance, otherwise not." The offer contained in the letter was accepted by pltf. & thereupon the fact of such acceptance was communicated on the same day to deft.:—Held: the offer contained in the letter amounted only to an offer to be put into touch with intending buyers of the premises & it was in no sense an authority to the brokers to sell deft.'s property or an offer on 836a. ———.]—KEEN v. MEAR, No. 834b, ante.

836b. ———.]—Authority alleged to be limited to state price.—Action for specific performance of a contract alleged to have been entered into by letters between pltf. & H. & R., estate agents, whom pltf. alleged were agents for the first deft. for the sale to pltf. of freehold premises. The defence was that the agents had a limited authority to state a price only. The premises had been offered for sale by auction by order of the mtgees. under particulars & conditions of sale referred to in the correspondence on Jan. 18. H. & R. inclosed plan & auction particulars to pltf. stating in their letter that their client would be willing to sell the freehold at £550. On Jan. 27, pltf. offered £400. On the 28th H. & R. submitted that offer to the first deft., & asked for her instructions. On Feb. 8, the first deft.'s husband communicated with H. & R. over the telephone, & on Feb. 10, they wrote to pltf. stating that their client would not accept £400, & that "we are now authorised to close with you if you will increase your offer to £450." Pltf., on Feb. 14, wrote to H. & R. referring to the letter of Feb. 10, & stating "we are prepared to accept your offer of this property agreeing to the price of £450. Kindly forward the contract in due course." On Feb. 17, H. & R. wrote informing the first deft. that, as instructed by her husband, they had offered the property to pltf. for £450, & that pltf. had agreed to buy. The second deft. was prepared to purchase the property from the mtgees. at a price more than £450:—Held: the agents had authority to conclude the part of the vendor to sell the premises to whoever might be brought in touch with the vendor by the brokers.—PURNA CHANDRA DUTT v. INDRA CHANDRA ROY (1921), 1 L. R. 49 Cal. 389.—IND.

821 i. ———.]—General authority.—Sale in own name.—Held: position of pltf. being that of brokers, in selling in their own name they acted beyond the scope of their authority.—PATERSON v. MCCALLUM, [1921] N. Z. L. R. 869.—N.Z.

833 xiii a. ———.]—Instructions to procure purchaser at specified sum.—In negotiations for the sale of property a notification by a principal to his agent that he will accept a purchaser at a specified sum will not authorise the agent to conclude a contract.—CARNEY v. sk. Solicitor.—Authority to receive tenders.—Tenders to be sent either to agent or principal.—Exors. gave instructions to solrs. to advertise for tenders for a property & they told the solrs. to insert in the advertisement a notice to the effect that tenders might be sent either to the solrs. or to either of the exors.; this latter the solrs. did not do. A tender was received by the solrs. & forwarded by them to the exors. & they wrote acknowledging the receipt thereof. Some days later the tenant of the property forwarded a tender to one of the exors., who did not communicate with his co-exor. or the solrs. about it. The solrs., having heard no more from the exors. entered into a contract to sell the property to the person who made the first tender:—Held: the solrs. had no authority to give notice to the person making the first offer that his tender was accepted.—DEANS v. - 1033a. ——. After issue of notice to abate—Before institution of proceedings.]—By a bye-law of the city council of W., which was the sanitary authority of W., it was provided that whenever the council was in vacation the mayor & the chairmen of the respective committees of the council might give such instructions as were requisite with respect to any matter of an urgent nature, provided that all such acts were in due course reported to the council. The council of W. held no meeting between July 26, 1917, & Oct. 18, 1917—the summer vacation, & the public health committee of the council did not sit between July 17, 1917, & Oct. 9, 1917. On July 17, 1917, the public health committee passed a resolution appointing its chairman, & in his absence the acting vice-chairman, to deal with all urgent matters on behalf of the committee during the summer vacation. This resolution was reported to the council & approved by them on July 26, 1917. About the middle of Sept. 1917, the medical officer of health, being satisfied that a nuisance existed upon certain premises in the district of the council & city of W., caused a written notice of the fact of its existence to be served on the owner of the premises under Public Health London Act, 1891 (c. 70), s. 3. As the nuisance was not abated, the matter was reported by the medical officer to the chairman of the public health committee, & the latter, considering that the matter was urgent, & acting under the authority conferred upon him by the resolution of the public health committee, which had been confirmed by the council, as before stated, directed that a notice should be served upon the owner of the premises requiring him to abate the nuisance in accordance with the provisions of sect. 4 of the Act. This notice, which was issued in due form, was served upon the owner on Sept. 25, 1917. This action of the chairman was reported to the public health committee at their first meeting after the summer vacation, on Oct. 9, 1917, & approved by them, & the matter was later on, on Oct. 18, 1917, reported to & approved by the council. As the nuisance still continued, proceedings were taken against the owner by the sanitary inspector, & on Dec. 5, 1917, an order was made for its abatement by the magistrate who heard the complaint. The owner thereupon applied for & was granted a rule nisi for certiorari to quash the order of the magistrate on the ground that the same was made without jurisdiction, the notice of Sept. 25, 1917, not having been given by the authority

1214 iv. ———.]—Negligent misrepresentation.—An agent who in breach of his duty to his principal induces him by negligent misrepresentation to enter into a contract is liable to make good to his principal the loss arising therefrom.

In such a case the principal may recover either in tort or in contract, & it is no answer to his claim that he is also entitled to recover from the other party to the contract induced by his agent.—YOUNG v. TASSELL, [1918] N. Z. L. R. 924.—N.Z.

1214 v. ———.]—The duty of a paid agent to his principal is to exercise care, skill, & honesty, & if he takes on himself to convey information which he considers it material that his principal should know, & which he recommends & intends his principal to adopt, it is his duty to use reasonable care & skill in ensuring the accuracy of that information.—BROWN v. THORNES, [1920] N. Z. L. R. 306.—N.Z.

firm, stated the amount of "cash at the bank" as it appeared in the books, without examining the bank pass-book, or obtaining any statement in reference thereto from the bank, or informing the firm that they had not done so. The entries in the books were falsely made by a fraudulent clerk, whose defalcations were not discovered, as they would have been if the entries in the books had been checked by reference to the pass-book.—Held: (1) the accountants were negligent; (2) they were liable in damages for the amount of the defalcations of each year which would have been discovered if the proper steps had been taken as to the pass-book.—*Fox & Son v. 1263a. —[—]—Agents employed to sell land are generally employed to obtain the best purchase price reasonably obtainable. Their duty to their principal does not cease when they have procured an offer to purchase which he accepts subject to contract. It is still their duty to inform him of any offer which they receive at a higher price than that so accepted, & they remain subject to this duty until final contracts of sale & purchase have been signed & exchanged.—*KEPPEL v. PART VIII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2. — B. (b).

1245 iv. —[—]—A law-agent, to whom a client entrusted money for investment on heritable security to yield 5 per cent., invested £1,000 of the amount in 1903 on a heritable bond which bore to be secured over tenement property, & £200 on a postponed bond over other subjects. These properties both belonged to another client of the agent's firm, who, in 1905, died insolvent, & heavily indebted to the firm. He had granted an ex facie absolute disposition of the tenement property in favour of the firm prior in date to the bond for £1,000, which loan was accordingly not validly secured; & the postponed bond for £200 was worthless, as the prior bond exhausted the value of the security subjects. None of these facts were communicated to the lender:—Held: while the agents were not guilty of negligence in investing the money as they did in 1903, in view of the fact that they were called upon to obtain a 5 per cent. investment, they were guilty of negligence upon the death of the borrower in 1905, in respect that, a conflict of interest having then arisen between them & the lender in connection with the £1,000 bond, they failed to inform their client of the position, failed to realise her investments, & failed to advise her to seek independent legal advice.—WERNHAM v. McLEAN, BAIRD & NEILSON, [1925] S. C. 407.—SCOT.

1260 i. Factor.—Where advances are made by a factor on the security of a world commodity, such as grain, consigned to him for sale, it is his duty to deal with the goods in such a way as to guard, not only himself, but the principal also, against loss. There is implied in every such transaction a right on the part of the factor to realise on his security whenever the exigency of the case demands it.—UNITED GRAIN GROWERS, LTD. v. MABEY, [1925] 1 D. L. R. 301; [1925] 1 W. W. R. 19.—CAN.

1262 ii. —Extent of duties.—If a local agent is entrusted by an absent owner with looking after & renting a furnished house, then, although he is not an insurer of the safety of the property, he must use reasonable care & diligence in its protection & preservation, & if he fails to do so he will be liable for the resulting loss. If furniture disappears or is damaged beyond reasonable wear & tear, he is prima facie liable to account for it. Evidence sufficient to excuse him from liability would in some instances be quite light, in others more burdensome, depending on such questions as the checking over or not of the articles of the furniture, the character of the tenants & the constituents of the tenant's family, the value & nature of the missing articles, etc.

When the owner claims damages against the agent for lost or damaged articles the question of liability may be directly involved in regard to each article, & that liability is a question for the judge, & in such case the value of any article or the damage done to it can be most conveniently determined by the judge when deciding the question of liability, rather than by a referee.—CARLILE v. NORTHERN TRUSTS Co., [1924] 2 W. W. R. 961.—CAN.

1262 iii. —[—]—A house agent, employed to look after the renting of a furnished house, must keep a proper inventory of the furniture & check it over carefully with each incoming & outgoing tenant, & he must exercise care in seeing that tenants to whom he rents the house are the proper sort of persons to occupy it; but, in the absence of a special contract, the agent is not a guarantor of the rent, or bound to pay the taxes, or to notify the owner so as to prevent a sale of the house for non-payment thereof.—HYLAND v. COSTERTON (R. C.), [1927] 1 D. L. R. 1166; [1927] 1 W. W. R. 340.—CAN.

1264 ii. —Acting for vendor & purchaser.—Payment of rents to vendor after notice of claim by purchaser.—Where an agent who acted for both parties in connection with a sale of immovable property on the terms of "cash against transfer," received the rents &, after notice that they were claimed by the purchaser, paid them over to the seller as having, in his opinion, the better title thereto:—Held: he was personally liable to the purchaser therefor.—DE KOCK v. FINCHAM (1902), 19 S. C. 136.—S. AF.

sw. Wool broker.—A wool broker, in cases where he receives wool from a customer upon which a limit has been placed, is not in law bound to indicate to the customer the state of the market from time to time, so as to be

ii. —Purser employed on ship by railway company.—Money advanced by company to enable ship to be procured.—Held: the co. were not liable to account to the shipowner for money received by the purser & not paid over, for he was accountable to the shipowner.—VANEVRY v. BUFFALO & LAKE HURON RY. Co. (1861), 20 U. C. R. 630.—CAN.

1276 i. Failure to keep accounts.—Liability for charges of accountant preparing accounts.—Doft., employed by pltf. to administer his affairs, exhibited gross negligence in carrying out his trust. He failed to keep proper books or records of pltf.'s affairs or to render accounts. Pltf. was compelled to employ accountants to prepare accounts between the parties:—Held: pltf. was entitled to claim the charges of two accountants for preparing accounts between the parties as damages due to doft.'s negligence, which doft. should have contemplated as the natural result of such negligence.—MEAD v. CLARKE, [1922] E. D. L. 49.—S. AF.

xy. Accounts framed on wrong basis & containing incorrect items.—Doft. was employed by pltf., the exors. of an estate, to administer the estate on their behalf. Pltf. having sued doft. for an account:—Held: as the accounts rendered by doft. were framed on a wrong basis as between principal & agent & were incorrect in certain particulars, doft. must render an account within fourteen days.—*KRIEG v. The bank, as principals, sent the goods to defts., as their agents, who knew that ptf. & F. were the original consignors. Afterwards the revolution broke out in Russia, & in Dec. 1917, all private banks in Russia were abolished by decree of the Govt., & in 1918 their assets & liabilities were taken over by the People's Bank of the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic. In 1920 the People's Bank was by further decree abolished & its assets & liabilities were transferred to the Central Budget & Accounts Administration of the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic. One result of this legislation was that the head office of the Odessa bank in Petrograd was raided & its shares were confiscated, but the Odessa bank was allowed to carry on its business as usual until 1920, when it was closed by a local soviet. This permission was the result of the establishment of an independent republican Govt. over the

Ukraine—the Ukrainian Soviet Govt., over which the Russian Soviet Govt. claimed neither a de facto nor de jure jurisdiction, & which was also recognised by foreign powers as an independent Govt. Later on a full federation was entered into between the Ukraine Republic & the Russian Soviet Republic & recognised as a de facto & recently, as a de jure Govt. by the Govt. of this country. During transit of the goods to England some of the goods respectively consigned by pltf. & by F. became inextricably mixed, with the result that F. assigned all his rights in his consignment to pltf., & notice of the assignment was given to defts. Before the closing of the bank at Odessa the bank ceded all their rights in the bristles consigned to them to pltf. & F. The bristles consigned to defts. were sold by them in 1920, & pltf. demanded payment of the amount of the proceeds, less the amount of defts.' commission, but defts. refused payment, alleging (inter alia) that the goods belonged to the bank at Odessa & that defts. were entitled to set off against pltf.'s claim a debt due to them from the People's Bank in Russia & the Russian Soviet Govt., & pltf. in 1923 brought this action:—Held: (1) assuming that the bank at Odessa was an effective bank up to the time when the bank was closed, the bank's instructions to defts., followed by the transfer of the bank's rights to pltf. & F. & the transfer of F.'s rights to pltf., made it clear that the bank's title to the bristles had gone; (2) assuming that the bank was non-existent & that some other person or persons had given the instructions to sell, the sale by defts. was without the authority of the bank, & in that case the bank's title had gone. 1529a. — Unless full disclosure—Sufficiency of disclosure.—Deft. bought shares in the B. Co. on the recommendation of T., who was in the office of E. & Co., stockbrokers. E. & Co. carried through the transaction & sent deft. two contract notes, on which were the words "bought of ourselves as principals," & no commission was charged. By arrangement deft. paid 25 per cent. of the price of the shares, the balance being carried over. E. & Co. subsequently became bkpt. & their trustee in bkpy. claimed the balance then due on the account from deft. :—Held : E. & Co. had made a sufficiently full & accurate disclosure to deft. that they were selling as principals & deft. with full knowledge gave his assent to their position, & the trustee's claim succeeded.—ELLIS & CO.'S TRUSTEE v.), 155 L. 1550a. — Broker.—Applt. employed a broker to make speculative purchases of cotton for him, & became heavily indebted to him owing to the fall of prices in the cotton market. The broker, as he was entitled to do by the terms of his agency, closed the account by selling the cotton which he had bought for applt. He sold (inter alia) two lots of foreign cotton to different jobbers at the respective market prices of the day & immediately bought back from the same jobbers at the same prices equivalent amounts broker having assigned his property for the benefit of his creditors, resp. as trustee of the deed of assignment, sued applt. to enforce the broker's claim to be indemnified. Defts. were originally appointed in 1908, & up to 1911 had the repairs executed by outside contractors. In 1911 defts. opened their own repairs yard, did the repairs themselves, & charged the "usual trade prices," which included a profit. Quarterly statements of account were regularly furnished by defts. to pltf. from the commencement of the agency. Pltf. claimed to have the accounts reopened on the ground that she had been charged a secret profit by defts. on the repairs executed by them in addition to their commission.—Held: as pltf. knew & approved of the repair work being executed by defts., & defts. had made sufficient disclosure to pltf. that they were charging a profit, & the charges were not shown to have been unfair or unusual, pltf. was not entitled to have the accounts reopened.—SHERARD v. 1871 viii. ———.] In the absence of an express contract as to the commission which a real estate agent is to receive, he is entitled to a reasonable remuneration having regard to the circumstances of the particular case. The fact that the agents in a certain town have established a custom among themselves as to the rate of commission, does not render such custom binding upon those who do business with them in the absence of notice, express or implied, that the charges for their services are to be based on such custom.—(GAILLARD v. NEWMAN (1922), 66 D. L. R. 770; 32 Man. L. R. 1; [1922] 1 W. W. R. 867.—CAN.

1871 ix. — When implied contract negatived. — Deft. advertised his business for sale in a local newspaper. The following day plffs., having seen the advertisement, called on deft. & inquired the price. Plffs. then entered into communication with A., who ultimately bought the business: — Held: deft. had never considered that he was employing plffs. to act as his agents, & plffs. had failed to prove any implied contract by deft. to remunerate them. — CHAPLE V. MOSS, [1920] 22 W. A. L. R. 74. — AUS.

1871 x. ————, p.—Pltf. was asked by defts. to find a purchaser for a wagon, & he succeeded in introducing defts. H., who bought the wagon from them. Defts. denied that H. was agreed that pltf. should be paid a commission, but it was admitted that they knew that he received commission for wagons sold by him. H. stated that he was sent to defts. by pltf. & would not have bought the wagon if he had not been persuaded by pltf. to do so.—Held: an agreement to pay commission was implied.—NICHOLAS v. DUMOULIN (1919), 46 D. L. R. 687.—CAN.

1871 xi. ————.]—An implied contract to pay a real estate agent a commission for his services if he found a purchaser for a property is negatived by the fact that the owner refused to list the property with him, although she gave him the terms upon which she was willing to sell.—TOLLEY & Co. v. SKUCE (1922), 63 D. L. R. 602.—CAN.

1871 xii. ———]—It is not a general principle of law that whenever a man, having found out from the owner of property the terms upon which it can be sold or leased, produces a third party who will buy or lease on those terms, he thereby & without more entitles himself to payment of a commission by such owner. There must be, in addition to this, an intimation to the owner that a commission would be expected from him in the event of a sale or lease being effected upon the terms stated. The intimation of expectancy of a commission not negatived by the owner who permits the other to go to the trouble of finding a customer in the expectation of earning a commission, may well be a fact from which a promise to pay a commission may be inferred. A mere volunteer who acts as a go-between between buyer & seller & ultimately produces a sale cannot upon that fact alone found a legal claim for commission, nor can a third party, who acting for a possible purchaser, obtains from a property owner terms of sale or lease, & thus brings about a completed transaction upon those identical terms, legally claim a commission from the owner in the absence of some promise to pay a commission, either express or implied.—CHAMBERLIN v. MAW (1922), 68 D. L. R. 754; [1922] 1 W. W. R. 299.—CAN.

1879 v. ——— Deposit on sale of land.—A licensed land agent, who does not hold from his principal a written authority to sell, & who, having effected a sale of his principal's land, has received from the purchaser, without his principal's knowledge, a deposit, is not entitled to retain thereout his commission.—SMITH v. BABON, [1921] N. Z. L. R. 467.—N.Z.

1679 v. ————, j.—When a deposit on a sale of land is paid to a land agent he must pay it over to him on demand, subject to the agent's right to apply the same in payment of expenses, commission, or other charges incidental to the sale; but commission which is made irrecoverable by law is not a just allowance deductible by the agent.—BUCHANAN v. SAMSON, [1922] N. Z. L. R. 558.—N.Z.

an. Amount of remuneration—Sale of mortgaged property—As if free from incumbrances.—Resp. placed a farm in the hands of applts. for sale on exchange & undertook, should a sale or exchange be effected by them, to pay commission at specified rates. Applts. found a purchaser for the property & an agreement was executed whereby resp. agreed to sell the property "as if free from incumbrances." Applts. sued for commission on the full value of resp.'s property unincumbered, but the magistrate held them entitled only to commission on the value of the equity of redemption:—Held: commission was payable on the gross price of the property sold.—KNYVETZ & PRATT v. SMITH, [1918] N. Z. L. R. 53.—N.Z.

80. Necessity for compliance with Land Agents Act, 1922.—Pltf., who was a land agent, received instructions from deft. to sell deft.'s property, & obtained a buyer at the price authorised, who paid pltf. a deposit of £200. On the same day that pltf. sold the property deft. sold it to another buyer & in effect repudiated the contract of sale effected by pltf. on his behalf. On the repudiation of the contract pltf. utilised the deposit of £200 received from his purchaser in the purchase of another property by the first buyer. Pltf. notwithstanding that he did not forward the deposit, with the signed contract to deft., less his commission, sued deft. for commission on the sale. Deft. applied for a nonsuit on the ground that pltf. had not complied with the provisions of Land Agents Act, 1922, s. 8, deducting his commission from the deposit, & handing the balance to deft. The magistrate having nonsuited pltf. Held: s. 8 deals with the application of trust moneys & if the deal was going through it was the duty of pltf. as agent to act in compliance with it, but if the deal was not going through, if there had been repudiation as the magistrate found sect. 8 had no

1693 xiv. —.]—An auctioneer was employed to sell property by auction on condition that if the reserve price was not reached no commission was to be charged. The reserve price not being reached, the property was not sold. A prospective purchaser, who was present at the auction & who knew who the owner of the property was, was about to approach the owner after the conclusion of the auction with a view to negotiating for the purchase of the property when the auctioneer formally introduced them. After protracted negotiations the prospective purchaser bought the property. — Held: the auctioneer's agency terminated the moment he failed to sell by auction. — MARTIN v. CUTRIE, [1921] T. P. Pltf.s mentioned the property to one F., who thereafter negotiated with deft. for the purchase of the property, & concealed from him the fact that pltf.s had sent him. Deft., then, without any knowledge of pltf.s, intervention, sold to F., on terms less advantageous to himself than those contemplated in the agreement between pltf.s & himself. There was nothing in the circumstances to put deft. upon his inquiry as to whether pltf.s had sent F. to him. — Held: pltf.s could recover neither a commission on the sale nor anything for their services by way of quantum meruit. — *ELVIN v. In the meantime a member of S.'s staff indirectly approached C., who decided to purchase. — Held: H. had established a chain of causation between his efforts & the result, & he was entitled to half the commission. — *HEALY v. 1702 xi. —.]—Pltf. as agent for the owner of certain property introduced it to A. The owner was asking £17 17s. per week. Pltf. gave A. the key, on which was a label bearing only the name of the owner. A. told pltf. the property was unsuitable, & returned the key. About a fortnight later A., through seeing the owner's name on the label & consulting the telephone directory, discovered the owner's address, & met him to discuss the letting of the property, but did not tell him that she had seen pltf. After negotiations between A. & the owner extending over some days the owner agreed to let the property to A. for twelve months at £13 13s. per week. — Held: pltf. was entitled to commission. — *SYMONS v. Pltf.s brought the property under the notice of A., who got into personal communication with deft. & decided that it would suit him in every way, except as to price. After a delay of some weeks deft. & A. resumed negotiations, which led to a sale of the property to A. for £7,300. — Held: the relation of buyer & seller was really brought about by pltf.s, who were entitled to commission. — *BIRCHNELL v. knowledge or consent, entered into an agreement with P. for sale of the land & of certain chattels used in farming it. The price of the land was somewhat less, & the cash payment considerably less, than as given in the listing. — Held: pltf. was wrongfully deprived of the right which the listing gave him to earn his commission. — *GILBERT BROTHERS, LTD. v. 1706 xvii. ———.—]—Pltf. endeavoured to effect a sale of deft.'s land to a co., of which H. was a director, & introduced H. to deft. The parties agreed to agree upon terms & the negotiations ended, & pltf. made no further effort to sell the land. Subsequently deft. through another agent sold the land to H., who purchased it on behalf of another co.:—Held: pltf. was not entitled to commission.—NEVE v. LEESON, [1921] 1 W. W. R. 904.—CAN.

1706 xviii. ———.—]—After pltf., with whom a house had been listed, introduced a prospective purchaser to the vendor, the purchaser endeavoured to induce the vendor to reduce the price. The vendor was unwilling to fix a figure agreeable to the purchaser, & the latter then negotiated through other agents, with whom the house had also been listed, & finally bought it:—Held: pltf. was entitled to commission.—BROOK & ALLISON v. HENDRICKS (1922), 66 D. L. R. 825; 15 Sask. L. R. 439; [1922] 2 W. W. R. 580.—CAN.

1706 xix. ———.—]—Deft. listed a property with pltf. with instructions to find a purchaser at the price of $5,000. A month later deft. listed the property with another broker at $4,750, the second broker having his offices across the hall from pltf.'s offices in the same building. Pltf. interested S. in the property & brought her to view it. Shortly after S. went to pltf.'s offices with a view to purchasing, & when about to enter the offices saw a picture of the property in the window across the hall marked for sale at $4,750. She went into pltf.'s offices, discussed the sale but went out without making the purchase, crossed the hall & purchased the property from the second broker at $4,750:—Held: pltf. was entitled to their commission.—TURNER MEAKIN & Co. v. 1706 xxi. ———.—]—Pltf. received written authority from deft. to enter into a contract with a purchaser for the sale of his farm & stock. The rate of remuneration was stated to be a certain percentage on the value of the land sold. Pltf. introduced the property to a prospective buyer, who ultimately purchased the property, but through the instrumentality of another agent. Pltf. claimed from deft. £171 19s. in respect of the land sold, & £65 in respect of the stock & implements. The jury found that the sale had resulted from the introduction of the purchaser from pltf.:—Held: pltf.'s right to commission depended on the terms of his authority, & this did not authorise any commission on the sale of the stock.—ROWE v. BUTLER, [1921] N. Z. L. R. 437.—N.Z.

1706 xxii. ———.—]—Deft. agreed to pay pltf. commission if a sale of deft.'s house to X., who was introduced by pltf., went through. Deft. also agreed to let pltf. know should he be prepared to sell his house for a smaller amount than he had mentioned to pltf. Deft. subsequently instructed another attorney to offer the house to X. at a reduced price, & a sale was thereupon concluded:—Held: pltf. was entitled to the commission agreed upon.—VAN DER WALT v. HOFMEYER, [1920] C. P. D. 50.—S. AF.

1706 xxiii. ———.—]—A agreed to give B. a commission in case of a sale of certain premises. B. introduced C., but no sale resulted. C., of his own motion & not as an agent of B., subsequently introduced D., & A. sold the premises to D.:—Held: B. was not entitled to commission.—GODDARD v. ARNOLD, [1922] T. P. D. 167.—S. AF.

1729 iii. —.—Sale of remainder of land.—Pltf. employed deft. to sell a house & portion of the block of land on which it stood. Deft. found a purchaser & a contract of sale was signed under which pltf. gave the purchaser certain provisional rights over the unsold portion. Afterwards pltf. endeavoured to obtain from the purchaser a modification of the contract with regard to the rights over the unsold portion, & deft. did considerable work in trying to induce the purchaser to vary the contract in this respect. During the negotiations left. repeatedly urged pltf. to sell the whole of the land. Negotiations having failed pltf. behind the back of deft. sold the remainder of the land to the original purchaser & the whole was included in a single transfer:—Held: deft. was not entitled to commission on the sale.—*MCANDREW v. sw. Transaction similar — Further sale.—A. in 1911 employed pltf. to sell a Crown lease, & an agreement was entered into which provided that if pltf. sold the lease for £25,000 he was to receive £5,000. In 1914 through the instrumentality of pltf. the lease was transferred to S. & on payment by S. of £5,000, pltf. received £1,000 as commission. In 1919 A. & S. sold the lease to T. for £14,000. Some years prior to this sale pltf. had submitted full particulars of the lease to T., who would not then buy. L., who was employed for that purpose by A. & S., had brought about the sale to T. Pltf. claimed commission in respect of the sale to T.:—Held: pltf. was not entitled to commission.—DREWNEY v. MATHESON, [1923] S. A. S. R. 105.—AUS.

sb. Agent to procure loan to third party—Loan raised by third party.—Pltf. claimed a commission of 1 per cent. from deft. on the ground that the latter had requested him to raise a loan of £27,500, subsequently increased to £35,000, not on behalf of deft. but on behalf of one F. It was admitted that deft. had sold a certain property to F. for a sum of £45,000, £10,000 to be paid in cash & the balance to be secured by a bond over the property; through pltf.'s efforts the manager of a certain insurance co. was prepared to advance £27,500 to F. on a first mtge. over the property & that thereafter a sum of £35,000 was in fact advanced by the insurance co. upon that security, together with certain additional securities. Deft. denied that he had made the contract alleged with pltf. & stated that the real arrangement between them was that pltf. should raise a loan of £27,500 on behalf of deft. himself & not for F., & further, that if F. paid off the whole amount of the purchase price in cash pltf. was not entitled to any commission whatever, & that F. had personally raised on his own behalf a loan of £35,000 not on the security of the property alone but on additional securities belonging to him. At the trial pltf. applied for leave to amend his declaration so as to base his claim on a mandate to raise a loan of £27,000 only. The trial ct. refused to grant the amendment & held pltf. had earned commission on £35,000, the sum actually advanced to F., but as pltf. had declared himself satisfied with £275 awarded the latter amount. Deft. having appealed:—Held: commission of 1 per cent. was promised pltf. by deft. if the former was instrumental in obtaining a loan of £27,500 from the insurance co. to F.; further, in view of application for amendment, which should have been granted, it was unnecessary to consider whether pltf. was entitled to commission on the whole sum advanced, & as on the facts, it was clear that £27,500 would have been advanced on the property alone, the fact that £35,000 had been lent upon the property, together with additional security, did not debar pltf. from recovering commission on £27,500.—*SAMMEL v. pi. —.—Pltf. claimed for commission on sale of timber holdings of deft. co. The shareholders had passed a resolution authorising a sale at a fixed minimum price upon terms agreeable to the directors, & a letter from the co.'s managing director to pltf. offered £35,000 commission should pltf. make a sale at a certain named price, which price would net the co. such minimum price. A sale was made through other agents, not for a lump sum, but for a price based on board measurement to be paid for as the timber was taken, with an additional sum to be paid when the timber had been logged:—Held: the sale was not a sale within the contract.—*ROBAY v. yi. —.—E. requested S., a servant of pltf., to obtain a buyer for his property. E. told S. that he wanted £850, & would pay commission. S. then asked E. if he would consider an offer. E. replied he wanted £800 clear. S. introduced K. to E., but the price offered was too low, & after various negotiations no sale took place. Six months later E. sold the property to K. for £800:—

On the day when the charterparty was signed defts. signed & gave to pltfs. a commission note in these terms: "We hereby agree to pay you . . . 5 per cent. brokerage on hire. . . . Should the option of purchase contained in the charter be availed of, the brokerage on purchase to be 3½ per cent. . . ." The charterparty was acted upon until June, 1921, when defts. sold the steamship to the charterers for £65,000. Pltfs. brought an action against defts., claiming (inter alia) 3½ per cent. commission on £65,000, the price paid by the charterers for the steamship, &, in the alternative, a quantum meruit for their alleged services in effecting the same:—Held: (1) the former of these claims failed, the option of purchase mentioned in the commission note never having been exercised, & the sale effected being a sale at a different price from that upon which alone the brokerage of 3½ per cent. was to become payable; (2) the latter claim also failed inasmuch as the parties having reduced their bargain into writing in the commission note, there was no scope for the operation of the principle of quantum meruit.—*HOWARD-HOULDER & PARTNERS, LTD. v. sl. Principal not negotiating in good faith.—Where under an agreement to pay an agent commission on a sale of real estate, the agent is to be entitled to the commission only when the principal concludes a sale to a purchaser found by the agent, the law implies an agreement by the principal to negotiate in good faith with the purchaser proposed & to demand only such terms as, considering all the circumstances, might be conceivably demanded in perfect good faith. Where the principal does not negotiate in good faith & the sale is thereby prevented, the agent is entitled to damages.—MCLINTYRE & CO. v. LAW, [1918] 2 W. W. R. 359; 13 Alta. L. R. 273; 40 D. L. sm. Principal selling ship to charterers—Commission payable under charter.—Pltf. negotiated a charterparty, which contained a clause providing for payment of commission on the estimated gross amount of hire as earned & paid. Subsequently the owners & the charterers entered into a contract of sale, which contained a clause cancelling the charter & so cancelling the clause therein providing for the commission:—Held: pltf. were entitled to the amount of commission which would have been payable if the charterparty had not been cancelled, but, especially having regard to the fact that the action was brought before the period of hiring under the charterparty had expired, subject to a fair deduction in view of the risk of the hire ceasing apart from any voluntary action by the owners.—*ROXBURGH v. The principals afterwards by arrangements between themselves cancelled the contract on the ground that the purchaser found himself unable to make the first payment, & the purchaser agreed to forfeit the $250.—Held: deft. was entitled to retain the $250, but was not entitled to anything further.—*DE WOLF v. fi. —]—W., having agreed to sell shares to a co., entered into a contract to pay C. a commission for services in effecting the sale. The purchase price of the shares was to be paid by instalments & the commission was to be paid out of the respective instalments. The contract provided that if the payments were not made by the purchasers W. would be under no liability to pay the commission. The initial payment was made & the commission thereon paid to C. When the next payment fell due the purchasers defaulted & shortly after the co. was placed in liquidation. The liquidator offered the assets for sale & accepted the tender of W. & H. The successful tenderers received all the assets of the estate including the stock sold by C. There was no evidence that the assets had a cash value equivalent to the amount of the unpaid purchase price of the shares:—Held: W. had not received payment for the shares, & the commission was not earned.—*Cecil v. They paid this $300 to deft., who paid pltf. $150, retaining the balance, $150, as his commission on the whole purchase price. 1780a. —.]—Pltfs. D. & Co., who were partnership agents, claimed to recover from deft. the sum of £92 10s., being the balance of commission on the sale of deft.'s business premises at T., effected by pltfs. Deft. had advertised the property for sale, & pltfs. had sent him a "particular form" which was in blank, except the words: "I hereby instruct you to sell my business premises as per particulars above, which I declare to be correct, & agree to pay you a commission 5 per cent. on the total price paid by the purchaser & appoint you agents," which, as pltfs. alleged, they had inserted on the form before sending it to deft. On July 8, 1928, deft. filled in the form & returned it to pltfs., but he subsequently denied that the above words were on the form when he signed it. A firm of G. & Co., estate agents, believing that they had secured a likely customer for the property, communicated with pltfs. & sent their representative, P., to them, & pltfs. introduced P. to deft. Deft. alleged that P. had been introduced to him as a purchaser, but pltfs. contended that he had been introduced to deft. as another agent who would be likely to find a purchaser. Ultimately P. found a purchaser in one T., who agreed to pay £4,000 for deft.'s property. In the "particulars form" deft. had stated: "Lowest price for goodwill, fixtures, & fittings, £4,500," but he eventually accepted £4,000. Meanwhile pltfs. & G. & Co. had agreed to share the commission. Deft. subsequently paid commission amounting to £107 10s. to G. & Co. As this amount was £92 10s. short of £200, the 5 per cent. commission on £4,000, pltfs. on Nov. 2, 1928, issued a writ claiming the balance from deft. The completion of the purchase did not take place until Nov. 15, 1928, & deft. contended (inter alia) that he was not liable to pay commission until he had received the purchase price. The jury found (a) that the words in relation to the 5 per cent. commission were in the particulars form of July 8, 1928, when deft. signed it, (b) that the property was sub-agents for pltfs.:—Held: (1) pltfs. were not to be deprived of their commission by reason of the fact that the property was ultimately sold for £4,000 instead of the £4,500 asked by deft. in the particulars form; (2) the jury's findings that the words about 5 per cent. commissions were in the document when deft. signed it, the property was sold through the instrumentality of the pltfs., & that G. & Co. were acting as sub-agents for pltfs., could not be interfered with; & (3) although pltfs. had done all the work required to entitle them to their commission, they were not in a position to claim payment of their commission until the purchase was completed, & as the writ was issued thirteen days before the date of the actual completion of the purchase, it was issued too soon & the action failed.—PRICE, DAVIES & Co. v. Deft. found a purchaser, entered into an agreement of sale with him, & a deposit of £200 was paid by the purchaser to deft. employed by deft. to sell a station property & to find a lease for another, found A., who was ready & willing to purchase the one & to lease the other, & with him deft. entered into a contract. Subsequently the contract having fallen through, pltf. was employed by deft. to raise money for him which it was hoped would enable the purchase & lease by A. to be carried through, & a written agreement was entered into between pltf. & deft., by which it was provided that in the event of the completion of the sale & lease deft. should pay to pltf. a certain sum "representing commission due to" pltf. "on these transactions." The sale & leasing were never completed. In an action to recover the sum mentioned in the agreement, the trial judge found that when the agreement was entered into pltf. had a right to recover a reasonable sum for commission in respect of the work he had then done, & that the contract did not deprive him of that right.—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover a sum made up of 1 per cent. of the purchase money & 5 per cent. of a year's rent.—FRY v. Deft. thinking that A. had agreed to all the prescribed conditions, submitted to A.'s solr. a contract of sale containing all the prescribed conditions. A. refused to sign the contract unless the two prescribed conditions were struck out.—Held: pltf. was not entitled to any commission or other remuneration from deft.—TYNAN v. No hire was in fact earned under the charterparty:—Held: (1) the charterers, as trustees for the brokers, could enforce the clause against the shipowners; (2) a custom by which commission was payable only if hire was earned under the

Pltf. had been duly licensed under above Act, at & from the time of the listing; his employee, however, was not licensed under above Act when he introduced the buyer & conducted the negotiations although he obtained his licence before the sale was made:—Held: under above Act his employee's lack of a licence while he was doing the work rendered the work illegal & prevented pltf. from recovering the commission.—*ANDERSON v. Services were to be rendered by D., a member of the Parliament of Victoria, who was employed by pltfs. as their representative on the terms that he should receive a share of their commission on the sale. D.'s services were an effective cause of the sale. In an action by pltfs. against deft. to recover commission on the sale:—Held: the transaction was contrary to public policy, & pltfs.' action failed.—HORNE v. BARBER (1920), 27 C. L. The contract did not refer to the use by the agent of any influence as a member of the committee in effectuating the sale; the agent took no part in the discussion by the committee of the report of a sub-committee as to the expediency of the purchase by the board of such land, & acted throughout bona fide & without concealment of the fact of his agency, & he was not at any time a member of any valuation sub-committee:—Held: the contract was valid as being against public policy, & the agent's claim for commission failed.—*WOOD v. 1848a. —.]—Pltf. was employed by deft., a music seller, to find a purchaser of the lease of deft.'s business premises, which were held under a covenant against carrying on any other business. Several tailors expressed to deft. their willingness to buy the lease for £2,500, but deft., believing that the landlords would not consent to the carrying on of a tailoring business, did not approach the landlords. Pltf., however, having found a tailoring co. who wanted to purchase the lease, received an assurance from the landlords that they would consent to a tailoring business, & he, by concealing this fact from deft., induced him to agree to sell the lease to the tailoring co. for £2,250 in ignorance of the fact that the proposed purchasers carried on a tailoring business. Pltf., who was the owner of a stationery business, sold it in Aug. 1919, to defts., a limited co. One of the terms on which the business was sold was that as from Dec. 31, 1918, until Sept. 15, 1919, pltf. should be deemed to have been carrying on the business on account of & for the benefit of the purchasers, & that pltf. should account & be entitled to be indemnified accordingly. For his services until the date of completion pltf. was to be paid a fixed sum monthly. Pltf. was assessed for super-tax on the profits of the business from Apr. 6, 1919, to Aug. 22, 1919. He paid the amount demanded & claimed to recover an indemnity from defts.:—Held: pltf., as agent of defts., was entitled of purchaser, paid him back the deposit without communicating with applt.:—Held: resps. had been guilty of a wilful breach of the duty which, under Land Agents Act, 1912, s. 8, they owed to applt., & such breach deprived them of their right to recover any commission at all.—*BUCHANAN v. usual commission on a sale, did not legally entitle the agent to recover such half from her.—HACKNEY LYNE, [1925] 4 D. L. R. 861; [1925] 3 W. W. R. 614.—CAN.

sp. Forwarding agent acting in accordance with ordinary duty.]-Defendants, forwarding agents in Durban, who acted as the agents of plaintiff in clearing & forwarding goods consigned to him from India, on Oct. 21, received a letter from a firm in India informing them that they had shipped a consignment of goods on behalf of plaintiff. The goods arrived on Oct. 20, and on Oct. 22 defendants cleared & trucked the goods to Johannesburg & sent plaintiff a consignment note which he received on Oct. 23. Immediately thereafter one of the defendants telegraphed to defendants instructing them to keep the goods for sale in Durban. Defendants, on the instructions of plaintiff, had the trucks stopped & returned to Durban. Defendants, in order to obtain delivery of the goods paid the railway charges & upon plaintiff's appointed pltf's. to be sole agents for the United Kingdom, with certain exceptions, for a period of three years. Pltf's. were to be paid a commission at the rate of 22 per cent. on all goods sold throughout the United Kingdom, with the exceptions above referred to, whether the goods were sold through the instrumentality of pltf's. or not, & def't. agreed with pltf's. that he would keep them fully supplied with samples, & would execute all orders with due diligence, & would not, directly or indirectly, canvass orders or in any manner approach or solicit any of the customers, or potential customers, of pltf's. in respect of the sales of his goods. Before the expiry of the three years def't. broke these undertakings & then wrote to pltf's. cancelling the agreement :—Held : as it was a necessary implication from the terms of the contract that pltf's. would not decline reasonably to introduce customers, the agreement was not void for lack of mutuality, & although the mere appointment of an agent on commission for a term of years does not carry with it the necessary implication that the business shall be carried on for that term, yet, as def't. had undertaken certain obligations to facilitate the earning of the commission & had broken his undertakings, he could not, by a purported cancellation of the contract, limit his liability for damages to the period prior to such purported cancellation.—*WARREN & Co. v. of those goods for the term of seven years, if the agent should so long live, & thereafter until the agreement should be determined by six months' notice on either side. The agent was to use his best endeavours to obtain orders for the co.'s goods at prices to be from time to time agreed upon, & all orders obtained by the agent were at once to be communicated to the co., who upon approving or rejecting the same were to inform the agent thereof & who were to carry out such orders as were accepted without undue delay; & the agent was not definitely to accept orders for the co., but only subject to confirmation or acceptance by the co., such confirmation or acceptance not to be unreasonably withheld. The co. were to pay the agent a commission upon the invoiced prices of all goods delivered by the co., & duly paid for by the respective purchasers. A few months afterwards the co. required fresh capital, & they applied to pltf. to assist them in finding it, telling him that otherwise they would have to close down. Pltf. tried to do so, but failed. The co. then asked pltf. to give up the agency for the Manchester district, telling him that he would have to stand down so far as that district was concerned, in which case they thought that they could find the necessary capital, but he refused. The co. thereupon being insolvent passed resolutions for voluntary winding up & ceased to do business through pltf. & eventually sold their business. In an action to recover damages for breach of the agreement to employ pltf. as their agent for the seven years:—Held: the agreement was to employ pltf. as agent for the seven years & a term could not be implied to the effect that the co. could terminate the agency at any time by ceasing to carry on their business; & the circumstances coupled with the voluntary winding up showed a repudiation by the co. of the agreement, & they were therefore liable in damages for the breach.—*REIGATE v. 1967 ii. ———.—In a five years' agreement between a selling agent & a firm of merchants it was provided that, if at the end of the first three years the agent had not realised a certain turnover, the merchants should be entitled to terminate the agreement. The agreement further provided that the merchants undertook to supply goods to the agent, who was bound to buy exclusively from them. At the end of the three years the value of the goods sold & delivered by the agent failed to reach the stipulated turnover, & the merchants terminated the agreement. The value of the sales effected by the agent had in fact materially exceeded the stipulated figure, but the value of the goods actually delivered by him fell short of it, owing to the failure of the merchants to supply him with the full amount of goods ordered by him. The merchants, who were not manufacturers, were dependent on delivery to themselves by the manufacturers, & owing to war conditions, they were themselves unable to obtain the full supplies they required. They had, however, obtained sufficient goods to have implemented the agent's orders, but they preferred to distribute these goods ratably among all their agents & customers, the agent in question receiving his full share. In an action by the agent against the merchants concluding for damages for unjustifiable termination of the agreement:—Held: debts were not entitled to terminate the agreement.—*DOWLING v. 1978 iii. ———.—Pltf. & debts., an English business house, entered into an agreement by correspondence by which pltf. was to be the selling agent of debts' goods in British Columbia. In the letter from debts. setting out the proposed terms of agreement were the words, "this offer to be firm for one year." Debts. broke the agency agreement during the first year:—Held: pltf. was entitled to damages on the basis of loss of profits on two years' contract, as being reasonable in all the circumstances.—*MACDONALD v. 1978 iv. ———.—In 1911 resps. agreed to employ applts. as under-brokers for the business of a co. during the subsistence of an agreement which they themselves had as brokers to the co.; the latter agreement was for five years. In Aug. 1912, resps. wrongfully determined the agreement with applts. On Dec. 2, 1912, resps., bond fide & not as a means of limiting the damages, made a new agreement with the co., the terms of which were inconsistent with, & thus put an end to, the original agreement between resps. & the co. In Jan. 1913, applts. sued resps. for damages:—Held: the damages recoverable were limited to the amount which applts. would have earned as under-brokers down to Dec. 2, 1912.—*LACHMANDAS, KHANDELWAL v. - 2125a. Action for specific performance—Effect of non-disclosure of principal.—Pltf. procured C. to enter into an agreement to purchase land from defts. C. never disclosed to defts. that he was acting as the agent of pltf. Subsequently C. explained to defts. that he was acting as agent for pltf., & at his request the agreement was cancelled. In an action for specific performance:—Held: the agreement not being one in which any personal qualification by C. was a material factor, the mere non-disclosure of the person actually entitled to the benefit of the contract for the sale of real estate did not amount to misrepresentation.—DYSTER v. RANDALL & SONS, [1926] Ch. 932; 95 L. J. Ch. 504; 135 L. T. 596; 70 Sol. Jo. 797; [1926] B. & C. R. 113, C. A.

- 2126a. — Sold by agent—Effect of misrepresentation as to being principal.—G., employed as a traveller by a firm of builders, owed debt £17 for goods sold. He asked debt. to buy timber from him, telling him that he had left the employment of the builders & had set up as a timber merchant on his own account, & debt. agreed to order timber from him on the terms that G.'s debt of £17 should be set off against the price. G. had not set up in business on his own account, but was employed by pltf. as an agent for sale on commission. Timber was delivered to debt. with invoices & letters bearing the name, address, & description of pltf., which G. told debt. were his own trade name, address, & description. Pltf. brought an action in the county ct. for the price of the timber, & the county ct. judge found that debt. honestly believed that the name, address, & description on the invoices & letters were those of G., but that debt. was put upon inquiry by the invoices & letters, & had notice that G. was not selling as a principal but only as an agent for pltf., & he gave judgment for pltf. for the price of the timber:—Held: debt. had no more than constructive notice that pltf. was the principal of G., & in the circumstances constructive notice was not equivalent to actual notice; debt. had made no contract with pltf., & was entitled to judgment.—*GREER v. - 2130a. — Sub-underwriting agreement.—Pltf., at the suggestion of M., who was a director of E. co. in Nov. 1927, was minded to underwrite shares in debt. co. about to be offered for public subscription. It had not then been started, but its object was to acquire & carry on as going concerns eight greyhound racecourses. An underwriting agreement was entered into by trustees for debt. co. & B. co.

b1. — Goods sold—Knowledge of purchaser.—M. left two hundred & fifty cattle with B., a cattle dealer. He gave B. written authority to sell forty-eight, & B. was to graze the rest. B. sold one hundred cattle to C., purporting to act as M.'s agent, showing the written authority & alleging further oral authority. At B.'s request C. made a cheque for the purchase price payable to him. C. bought in good faith & for value. M. repudiated the sale & sued to vindicate the cattle sold without authority:—Held: the written authority & the request for personal payment should have put the purchaser upon inquiry.—*MULLER v. 2106 i. Agent holding principal's funds—Money paid into agent's banking account—Agent in fiduciary character.—Money received by a commission agent from sales of his customers' property, is, after deduction therefrom of the agent's commission & expenses, money held by him in a fiduciary capacity, & if it is mixed by the agent with his own money in his general banking account & he becomes bkpt., the money can be followed if it is still traceable.—SALTER & ARNOLD, 2120 viii. —J., as agent of pltf., advanced sums to debt. in consideration of debt.'s going to work on a sugar estate, on behalf of K., who supplied money for the advance, to whom J. had to account, & to whom J. stated that he had accounted. Debt. stated that J. had recruited him to work for some person whose name was not given. Debt. contended in an action for refund of the advance that pltf. could not sue without cession of action from K.:—Held: pltf. had a right of action against debt.—GADLELA v. MOUNTJOY, [1921] E. D. L. 151.—S. AF.

sa. Action for money paid under contract.—Pltf., desiring to have ten vessels constructed in Canada, entered into a preliminary agreement with A., whereby A. was to enter into contracts with three builders for the construction of the vessels, called "building contracts," & at the same time into contracts with pltf., called the "vessel contracts," providing for the payment for vessels, the nature of their construction & due delivery thereof. The

"building contract" & the "vessel contract" each expressly stated that a copy of the other was attached to & made a part of it. By the "building contract" debt. covenanted to build the vessels according to the terms of the "vessel contract," & this contract was expressed to be made with pltf. as well as with A., & debt. also confirmed provisions of the "vessel contract" for payment of the instalments of the purchase price to A. & appointed A. his agent to receive payments. Upon the signing of the contracts a first payment made by pltf. to A. was distributed by A. between the three "builders," who proceeded with the construction of the vessels. Upon pltf.'s failure to make the next deposit as provided for in the "vessel" contract, debt. gave notice terminating the contract. Pltf. having brought action for repayment by debt. of money paid on account of the vessels, less such expenses as debt. had incurred by virtue of the contract:—Held: pltf. had no right of action.—VAN HEMELRYCK v. NEW WESTMINSTER CONSTRUCTION & ENGINEERING CO., VAN HEMELRYCK v. NORTHERN CONSTRUCTION CO., VAN HEMELRYCK v. PACIFIC CONSTRUCTION CO. (1920), 29 B. C. R. 39; 55 D. L. R. 589.—CAN.

& a draft prospectus was prepared therein referred to. On the following day M. & O. offered to sub-underwrite 12,000 shares, & sent a cheque for £200 to B. co., which was accepted by them on Dec. 8. On Dec. 12, the co. was incorporated, the underwriting agreement ratified, & a similar prospectus signed by the directors, which, on Dec. 19, was issued to the public. The response not being sufficient, the balance of shares was issued to the underwriters or sub-underwriters. One of such allotments was for 8,160 to M. & O. as sub-underwriters. A number of sub-underwriters had repudiated their agreements on Dec. 16, but this was not known to the directors when they went to allotment on Dec. 17. Subsequently these 8,160 were renounced in favour of pltf. The consequence of the failure of some of the underwriting agreements was that two of the racecourses, representing about two-fifths of the estimated profits, could not be acquired. In these circumstances, this action was brought for rescission on the ground of material misrepresentations in the prospectus. Defts. denied these, & claimed for the balance due. They submitted that, the contract having been made with agents for an undisclosed principal, he could not recover:—Held: pltf. could not establish his case on the basis of principal & agent, as in such a case as this an undisclosed principal could not be substituted for the persons contracting; all the rights of the agents under the contract with the co. did not pass to pltf. by virtue of the agents' renunciation & nomination of pltf., & though there was a contract between pltf. & the co. it was not a contract based on the prospectus.—COLLINS v. ASSOCIATED GREYHOUNDS RACECOURSES, LTD. (1929), 141 L. T. 529; 45 T. L. R. 519.

2139a. Agent acting in his own interest.—Where an agent, in contracting on behalf of his principal, has acted within the terms of a written authority given to him by the principal, but the existence of which was not known to the other party to the contract, the principal cannot, if the other party has acted bona fide, repudiate liability on the contract on the ground that the agent, in making it, acted in his own interests, & not in those of his principal.—*HAMBRO v. 2139b. Account stated & signed by agent.—In Mar. 1918, a tank steamer was damaged by fire & her repairs were entrusted to a firm of ship repairers at A. The steamer was insured. The owners sent out an agent from L. to expedite the repairs & authorised him to sign the repair account with the Lloyds' surveyor as "approved subject to adjustment & conditions of insurances." In Jan. 1919, the repairers delivered to the owners an account of the repairs signed by the owners' agent & by Lloyds' surveyor in the above form after a detailed examination of the account. The owners paid part of the amount due on this account but declined to pay the balance on the ground that the charges were excessive. The repairers sued the owners for the balance of amount due for work & labour done by pltf. & materials supplied at the request of defts., & in the alternative, claimed the balance as being the amount found due from defts. to pltf. on accounts stated between them & contained in an account signed by defts. by their agent, less the sums since paid by defts. in respect thereof. Defts. denied that the agent was authorised to agree the amounts due from defts. to pltf., or that he in fact purported to agree such amount, or that the account constituted an account stated:—Held: the signature of defts.' agent was an agreement by him, with their authority, that the amount charged for the repairs was correct, & there being no ground for re-opening the account, pltf. were entitled to judgment.—*CAMILLO TANK S.S. B. made an approved agreement with pltf. for sale of a lot to be selected by pltf. who sought to recover from defts. the amount of payments made by him:—Held: the fact that pltf.'s agreement was with B., in B.'s own name & under seal, did not prevent recovery from defts. as for money had & received.—*HITCHCOCK v. damages in respect of breach of contract. The actions were conjoined & a proof was led, in the course of which it transpired that the shipowners were not the registered owners of the steamship, as had up to that time been assumed, but merely acted as managers for a co. which owned her. Both parties thereupon amended their records: the shipowners averring in both actions that they had contracted, & were litigating, as agents for the limited co.; & the engineers, as defenders in the counter-action, pleading "no title to sue".—Held: by prosecuting their own action to decree, the engineers had elected to treat debts, as their debtors in the contract.—*CHAIG & Co. v. In answers to interrogatories def't. admitted that she was the registered owner of the motor car; that her son C. & her daughter H. were licensed drivers; that she had purchased the car for pleasure; that she paid for all the petrol & oil; that her son J. resided with her; that she paid the rent for a lock-up garage, the key of which was kept by her son C. A witness stated that he saw J. driving his mother's car more than once prior to the day of the accident. Def't.

denied that she knew that J. had a key of the garage in his possession on the day of the accident, or that she knew he had access to the key, & stated that she never at any time gave J. permission to drive her car, & that he never drove it to her knowledge:—Held: if the answer of the jury that J. at the time of the accident was driving the car with the implied authority of def't., amounted to a finding of agency, it must be set aside, on the ground that there was no evidence to support it.—GIBSON v. sm. — Sale of shares.]—An investor purchased from a chartered accountant 150 shares in a co., paid the price therefor, & received from the chartered accountant a receipt, which ac-knowledgeed payment of the price of 150 shares & concluded with these words: "the transfer for which will be sent you for signature in due course." In an action at the instance of the purchaser against the chartered accountant for transfer of the shares or repayment of the price deft. denied liability, averring that his position in the transaction was merely that of an agent for a disclosed principal:—Held: on the terms of the receipt deft. was personally liable to implement the contract of sale, & it was incompetent for him to adduce parol evidence to show, in contradiction of its terms, that he was merely an agent.—LINDSAY v. sq. Purchase of goods on behalf of firm—Firm having disposed of business.

—Plffs., owners of an apple orchard, were visited by C., acting for deft. co., who represented to plffs. that he was buying on behalf of N. & L., a firm which had been well-known to plffs. in previous years as buyers of apples, & was represented to plffs. by C., as all right, solid as a rock, & "had running since 1847." A paper was containing the proposed sale & to N. & L., or their agents, buyers. Plffs. delivered their apples to deft., & received payment on account in cheques of deft. co. At the time of the transaction N. & L. had gone out of business, having disposed of the same to another co., which, after changing its name several times had gone into liquidation:—Held: deft. co. was liable to plffs. for the balance remaining unpaid on account of the sale.—*BRENNAN v. 2743 v. — In an action for breach of warranty of authority, the cause of action is the breach of the express or implied promise of the person who assumes to act as agent that he has authority so to act, the consideration necessary to make that promise binding being found in the action of the other party in entering into the contract. Pltf. in such an action need not establish that he believed deft.'s representation that he had authority, though it must appear that he acted in reliance upon it.—LEGG v. BROWN, [1923] V. L. on account of the purchase money, but the vendee could not obtain specific performance of the contract:—Held: his remedy against the agent for the return of the deposit was at law, & that a bill for that purpose would not lie.—GRAHAM v. POWELL (1868), 15 Gr. 327.—CAN.

A claim was made to the goods by a chattel mtgee., whose right was contested by pltf. under instructions from deft., whose authority for such proceedings was later repudiated by the landlords:—Held: pltf. could recover from deft. his costs of the interpleader proceedings upon a warranty of authority.—*CONLIFF v. - 2814a. Agent receiving proceeds of sale of goods for credit of foreign Government.—In 1917 plffs., under licence from the Russian Imperial Govt. exported timber to this country, & in accordance with the conditions of the licence, paid the purchase-money received by them for the timber to deft. bankers for the credit of the Russian Govt. They then became entitled to receive from the Govt. in Russia an equivalent amount in roubles at a fixed rate of exchange. In Mar. 1917, the Imperial Govt. was overthrown by a revolution, & was succeeded by a Provisional Govt., which in its turn, was, on Nov. 7, 1917, displaced by the Bolsheviks, who on Dec. 12, 1917, dissolved the Republic. Plffs. having received no roubles in Russia, brought actions against the bankers to recover two sums of money, one of which was paid to them by plffs. in the second action before Nov. 7, & the other by plffs. in the first action on Nov. 9, at which date they did not know of the Bolshevik revolution. Plffs. in both actions alleged that the bankers & the Russian Govt. were merely trustees for them, & the money having been paid under a contract, the consideration for which had entirely failed, they were entitled to recover. Plffs. in the first action further contended that they had paid the money under a mistake of fact, & on that ground also they were entitled to recover it:—Held: (1) this money had been paid to the bank as agents for the Russian Govt., & the ct. would not order payment of it in the absence of that Govt. or its representatives; (2) the bank were entitled to keep the money in their hands, but must undertake not to part with it without notice to plffs. & an order of the ct.—STEAM SAW MILLS CO. v. Applt. did not in fact sign or hand to the syndicate any written application to the co. for the 10,000 shares as contemplated by the sub-underwriting letter, but he handed to the syndicate the letter together with his cheque for £1,250 in their favour. On the issue of the prospectus only 55,000 shares were applied for by the public. On Dec. 12 the syndicate verbally applied in their own name & in the names of several sub-underwriters including applt. for an allotment of the total amount of the shares which they were bound to take up & paid with their own cheque for the total amount of the application money. The elder brother, the active partner, gave notice in writing to the landlord that he intended to leave the farm. Subsequently they declined to remove from the farm, on the ground that the notice being in the name of one of the joint tenants only, was insufficient to prevent renewal of the lease by tacit relocation :—Held : (1) the notice necessary, under A. All the persons whose consents were necessary for the sale subsequently joined in the conveyance to pltf., which was executed after the passing of the Act of 1919:—Held: the contract of sale was entered into with pltf. before the passing of the Act of 1919, & the notice to quit, therefore, was valid, & pltf. was entitled to possession.—*BROOKS v. 30e. Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9)—Farm held under two landlords—Notice to quit given by both—Contract for sale by one for part of farm.]—On May 20, 1912, T. let a farm to C. from year to year from Oct. 11, 1911, at an annual rent of £150. On Dec. 23, 1914, T. conveyed about half the farm to pltf.s, subject to & with the benefit of the tenancy agreement. T. died on Jan. 4, 1919, & C. continued to pay the whole rent to her exors., as he had since the conveyance paid it to T. After Oct. 11, 1922, the rent fell into arrear. By a notice to quit dated Oct. 10, 1923, the agents of T.'s exors. & the agent of pltf.s jointly gave C. notice to quit the whole holding on Oct. 11, 1924. By an agreement dated Oct. 1, 1924, T.'s exors. agreed to sell their part of the farm to C., & it was conveyed to him on Apr. 17, 1925. C. refused to give up possession to pltf.s. of their part of the holding, contending that under sect. 26 of the above Act the contract by T.'s exors. to sell to him rendered the notice to quit null & void. Pltf.s. brought an action for a declaration that the notice to quit was effective, & to recover possession of their land:—Held: as the contract to sell a part was not made by the persons who gave notice to quit the entire holding, but only by some of them, sect. 26 of the above Act did not apply; the tenancy had been duly determined as regards pltf.s.' land, & pltf.s. were entitled to the declaration which they asked & to an order for possession of their land.—*ROCHESTER & CHATIAM JOINT SEWERAGE BOARD v. 56a. — Grass land laid down by tenant.]—By a tenancy agreement made in 1894 the trustees of an estate, of which pltf. was the present tenant for life in possession, agreed to let to deft. certain farm lands & house buildings comprising 138 acres more or less, as described in a schedule attached to the agreement, on a yearly tenancy, at the rent of £48. The tenant covenanted to manage & cultivate the land in a husbandlike manner, & that he would not plough or otherwise break up "any grass land" without the consent of the landlord. In the schedule to the agreement the premises were described as consisting of 130 acres 1 r. 31 p. of arable & 8 acres of grass land. In 1898 the tenant laid down 40 acres more to permanent grass. On notice being given to him to determine the tenancy on Sept. 29, 1919, he claimed the right to plough up this 40 acres of permanent grass which had been arable at the commence-had exercised the right to sell given the lessor under the lease & that his lease was therefore at an end; pltf.'s allowing the purchaser to withdraw from the agreement to purchase did not affect deft.'s rights or reinstate the lease.—*RINK v. ment of his tenancy. In an action by plff. to restrain him from so doing in breach of his covenants an interim order was made granting the injunction on the usual undertaking as to damages. Deft. counterclaimed for damages by reason of the interim order:—Held: (1) on the true construction of the agreement, the covenant not to plough up any grass land was not restricted to the 8 acres of grass at the date of the demise but extended to the grass land in dispute & plff. was entitled to the relief claimed; (2) on the evidence, the proposed dealing with the land would have been a breach of the covenant to cultivate in a husbandlike manner; (3) deft. had suffered no damage from the granting of the interim injunction.—*CLARKE-JERVOISE v. 229a. Incoming tenant agreeing to repay compensation paid by landlord—Action by landlord on agreement—When cause of action arises.]—By an agreement dated Dec. 24, 1915, made under seal, plffs. let to deft. a small-holding from year to year from Feb. 2, 1916, at a rent of £132 10s. a year payable by half-yearly payments on Feb. 2, & Aug. 2, each year. The tenant agreed "to pay on entry any allowance or compensation which may be due from the council to the outgoing tenant in respect of feeding stuffs or manures or any improvements mentioned in A. H. Act, 1908, Sched. 1, Part III." Deft. entered into occupation of the small-holding on Feb. 2, 1916. At that date the amount of the compensation payable to the outgoing tenant had not been fixed, & it was not until Feb. 11, 1918, that the amount of compensation was agreed to. It was then agreed that the council should pay the outgoing tenant £30 17s. 6d., & that sum was paid by the council to the outgoing tenant on Mar. 17, 1921. On Jan. 13, 1923, pltf. council brought an action in the county ct. claiming to recover from deft. the sum of £30 17s. 6d. under the agreement of Dec. 24, 1915. Deft. pleaded that plffs.' cause of action had arisen on Feb. 2, 1916, the date of his entry on the holding, & that therefore the claim was barred by Stat. Limitations, s. 3, because the action was not brought "within six years next after the cause of such action or suit":—Held: plffs.' cause of action against deft. did not arise on Feb. 2, 1916, when deft. entered on the holding but only on Feb. 11, 1918, when the amount of the compensation was ascertained by agreement; therefore the time only began to run from Feb. 11, 1918, & the action was not barred.—*CHESHIRE COUNTY COUNCIL v. The tenant planted trees & bushes in accordance with the agreement. At the end of the tenancy he claimed compensation for the improvement thus made:—Held: he was not entitled to compensation, the improvement being one which he was required to make by the terms of his tenancy & the contract of tenancy having been made before Jan. 1, 1921.—*HUCKELL v. sg. Agricultural Holdings (Scotland) Act, 1908 (c. 61) - Sufficiency of notice.]—A tenant who has, before the determination of his tenancy, made it clear to the landlord that he proposes to claim for unexhausted manures &

- tenant & for breach of contract or otherwise, whereby he claimed for neglect in the care of hedges & ditches on the land & dirty land:—Held: (1) the landlord's claim was not barred by sect. 19 of the above Act; (2) the boozy pasture & the rest of the farm were held under one contract of tenancy; the contract did not finally cease under sect. 10 (7) of the above Act until May 1, 1922, the date of the termination of the boozy tenancy, & the landlord's notice was therefore in time.—Re ARDEN & RUTTER, [1923] 2 K. 265a. — Right to compensation—Tenant holding over after notice to quit.—A tenancy was determined by notice to quit on a certain day. The tenant remained on in possession for about nine months, & was finally ejected. Two days before his ejection he furnished details of his claim for compensation :—Held : the tenant, from the date when his notice expired, was not holding under a contract of tenancy, & the land which he persisted in occupying unlawfully was not a holding within sect. 11 of the above Act, & he, therefore, was not within the benefit of the Act.—CAVE v. 265b. — Liability to pay compensation—“ Landlord ”—Purchaser entitled to rents—Purchase not completed till after claim.]—Certain landowners let a farm to tenants. In 1917 they gave notice to the tenants to quit at Michaelmas, 1918, with a view to the sale of the farm. In Oct. 1917, they agreed to sell the farm to a purchaser. On July 5, 1918, the tenants gave to the purchaser, who was then entitled to the rents & profits, notice in writing under sect. 1 (1) of the Act of 1914 of their intention to claim compensation in terms of sect. 11 of the Act of 1908. On July 18, 1918, the sale of the farm was completed :—Held : (1) the purchaser was the “ landlord ” within the Acts ; (2) the notice of intention to claim compensation was rightly given to him ; (3) he was liable to pay compensation. —*BRADSHAW v. What questions arbitrator may determine—Termination of tenancy:—Agricultural Holdings (Scotland) Act, 1923 (c. 10), s. 15.—In a note of suspension & interdict brought by the landlords of a farm, craving the ct. to interdict proceedings in an arbu. under the above Act upon a claim by the tenant, who had vacated the farm in favour of a new occupier, for compensation for improvements, the complainers maintained that the tenancy had not terminated, & that the appointment of an arbiter under the Act was illegal:—Held: the question of the claimant's title to present a claim was not one of the matters remitted by the Act to the exclusive jurisdiction of the arbiter, but was a question precedent to the existence of a statutory claim, "the ct. had jurisdiction to entertain the action of interdiction.—DONALDSON'S HOSPITAL (EDINBURGH) TRUSTEES v. 265c. ——— Person entitled to rents at end of tenancy.]—(1) Where the tenant of an agricultural holding, who has been disturbed in his tenancy, becomes entitled under sect. 11 of the above Act to compensation for loss in connection with the sale or removal of his household goods, implements, or stock on the condition, among others, of giving to the landlord a reasonable opportunity of making a valuation of such goods, etc., the question whether he has given such a reasonable opportunity is in each case a question of fact depending on the circumstances. The mere lapse of an interval of several months between notice of intention to claim compensation & sale or removal is not of itself sufficient to satisfy the condition.

(2) Where the tenant of an agricultural holding has given notice to his landlord under sect. 11, proviso (b), of his intention to claim compensation for disturbance, & the landlord before the appointment of an arbitrator under that sect. assigns the reversion, the person who is liable to pay such compensation as may be awarded is the person who is entitled to receive the rents at the termination of the tenancy, & the notice of intention to claim so given to the original landlord will enure for the benefit of the tenant as against such last-named person.

(3) Assuming sect. 48 (2) of the above Act to apply to proceedings for compensation for disturbance as well as for improvements, the commencement of the "proceedings" is not the service of notice of intention to claim compensation, but the appointment of the arbitrator.—*DALE v. 266e. Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76)—Right to compensation—Withdrawal of notice to quit—What amounts to.]—In Sept. 1920, a landlord gave to the tenant notice to quit his tenancy of a farm for which he was paying a yearly rental of £506 2s. On Dec. 31, 1920, the landlord wrote to the tenant: "I have received an offer of £670 per annum for your holding. If you choose to give me the same, you are most welcome to continue the tenancy."—Held: having regard to sect. 10 of the above Act, the letter of Dec. 31, 1920, did not constitute an offer in writing to withdraw the notice to quit within the proviso to sect. 10 (1) of that Act.—Re PERRETT & BENNETT-STANFORD, [1922] 2 K. 266f. ——— Ejectment proceedings following notice to quit.]—The landlord of a farm served on the tenant a notice to quit on Mar. 25, 1923. Owing to the illness of his wife, the tenant did not quit the farmhouse at the expiry of the notice, but he quitted the land, save as under the custom of the country, immediately after the expiry of the notice. Ejectment proceedings were brought by the landlord & judgment was obtained by default of appearance. On being served with the notice to quit, the tenant duly served on the landlord a notice of intention to claim compensation for disturbance under sect. 10 of the above Act:—Held: if the tenant was ejected, the ejectment was in consequence of the notice to quit, & therefore, the tenant had quitted the farm in consequence of the notice to quit terminating the tenancy, & the tenant was accordingly entitled to compensation under sect. 10 of the Act.—MILLS v. ROSE (1923), 68 Sol. Jo. 420, C. A.

266g. ——— Necessity for proof of loss or expense—Entire holding in occupation of sub-tenants.]—The effect of sect. 10 (6) of the above Act is that as a condition precedent to his right to compensation for disturbance a tenant must prove that he has incurred some loss or some expense of the kind indicated in the sub-sect.; that on proof of that he is entitled as a minimum to one year's rent of the holding; but that unless he proves some loss or some expense of the kind indicated he does not bring himself within sub-sect. 6 & is not entitled to compensation. Therefore where a lease of a holding under the Act was duly determined by notice to quit & the holding was entirely in the occupation of sub-tenants whose sub-tenancies terminated without notice on the termination of the lease, & the lessee did not sell or remove any household goods, implements of husbandry, fixtures, farm produce or farm stock on or used in connection with the holding:—Held: he was not entitled to compensation for disturbance under sect. 10.—AGRICULTURE & FISHERIES MINISTER v. DEAN, [1924] 1 K. B. 851; 93 L. J. K. B. 374; 130 L. T. 709; 40 T. L. R. 285; 68 Sol. Jo. 401, C. A.

266h. ——— Notice of claim—Time for giving—"Termination of tenancy"—Tenancy of different parts of holding expiring at different times.]—A landlord let a farm, according to the custom of the country, upon a yearly ascertained by arbn. After threshing it was found that the quantity had been underestimated by the arbiters. The outgoing tenant claimed, under the above sect., as compensation for loss in connection with the sale of the farm produce, a sum representing the difference between the price he had received & the price of the actual quantity threshed:—Held: the loss was not "directly attributable to the quitting of the holding," but had arisen from an error of the arbiters.—MCGREGOR v. BOARD OF AGRICULTURE FOR SCOTLAND, [1925] S. C. 613.—SCOT.

sp. Agricultural Holdings (Scotland) Act, 1923 (c. 10), s. 12 (6)—Refusal of landlord to take over stock—Claim for loss on sale.]—The tenant of a farm received notice to quit. Having taken over another farm with a bound stock, he sold his sheep at a displensing sale, the landlord refusing to take them over. tenancy on the terms that the tenant should enter into occupation of the main portion of the land on Apr. 6, & of the farmhouse, farm buildings, & the remainder of the land on May 13, & that "on the termination of the tenancy" he should give up possession of the different portions of the farm on the respective dates, there being one rent reserved for the whole farm:—Held: the "termination of the tenancy" for the purposes of sect. 10 (7) of the above Act took place on May 13, notwithstanding that the main portion of the premises had to be surrendered at the earlier date.—Semble: the proviso to sect. 18 (2) of the above Act applies only to a case where the tenant has been allowed by a landlord to remain on, after the ceasing of the agreement of tenancy, under a new agreement.—*SWINBURNE v. 266i. ——— Given under Act subsequently repealed—Necessity for notice under repealing Act.—A tenant who had on Sept. 29, 1920, received notice to quit his farm on Sept. 29, 1921, gave notice on Nov. 17, 1920, to his landlord of his intention to claim compensation for disturbance under A. H. Act, 1908, s. 11. That sect. was repealed by the Act of 1920, which came into force on Jan. 1, 1921, & by sect. 10 substituted a new right to compensation for disturbance. The tenant gave no notice of his intention to claim compensation under that sect. as required by sub-sect. 7 (b) thereof:—Held: not having given notice under sect. 10 of the Act of 1920, he had no right of claim under that sect., but his right of making a claim under A. H. Act, 1908, s. 11, was preserved by Interpretation Act, 1889 (c. 63), s. 38, notwithstanding the repeal of sect. 11.—HAMILTON-GELL v. WHITE, [1922] 2 K. B. 422; 91 L. J. K. B. 875; 127 L. 266j. Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9)—Right to compensation—Refusal or failure to agree to arbitration.—(1) A landlord of a holding gave the tenant notice to quit, & in the same document stated that he had no desire to terminate the tenancy if the tenant would agree to his demand that the rent should be fixed by arbn. The tenant did not agree to arbn.:—Held: the tenant did not thereby disentitle himself to compensation, for the refusal or failure to agree to arbn. dealt with by sect. 12 (1) (e) of the above Act is a refusal or failure which has taken place before the date of the notice.

(2) It cannot be laid down as a matter of law, that in no case can the minimum compensation of one year's rent provided by sect. 12 (6) be reduced under the provisions of sect. 12 (8) if the tenant, having held two or more holdings as tenant, remains in possession of one of them. But the provisions of sect. 12 (8) have no application to a case in which the tenant remains in possession of the other holding or holdings, not as tenant, but as owner.—*WESTLAKE v. 266l. ——— Liability to pay compensation—"Landlord"—Agreement for sale—Whether purchaser entitled to rents.—In July, 1924, the owner of an estate, which included a farm in the occupation of tenants, agreed to sell the farm to a purchaser, who agreed to pay the purchase money in Oct. 1924. The agreement was subject to conditions of sale, by one of which the purchaser agreed to pay the balance of the purchase money on the day named in the contract, & in that respect time was to be of the essence of the contract; & it was further agreed that "all rents & periodical outgoings" should be "apportioned up to the completion," & added to or deducted from the purchase money as the case might require. On Sept. 23, 1924, notice was given to the tenants to quit the farm on Sept. 29, 1925. The purchase was not in fact completed until Oct. 1925:—Held: (1) "completion" in the condition of sale meant actual completion, & not the date named for completion; (2) on Sept. 29, 1925, the vendor was the "person entitled to receive the rents & profits" of the farm within sect. 57, & he, & not the purchaser, was the "landlord" within sect. 12 & the person to pay compensation to the tenants.—RICHARDS v. PRYSE, [1927] 2 K. B. 76; 96 L. J. K. B. 743; 137 L. T. 170, C. A.

266n. ——— Notice to quit—Reason must be stated—Effect of notice giving alternative reasons.—A tenant in giving a notice to quit under sect. 12 (3) of above Act, on account of the landlord's refusal or failure to agree to the tenant's demand for arbn. as to the rent of the holding, is, as a condition precedent to his right to compensation for disturbance, bound to state correctly the reason for the notice which in fact exists, but he may put himself right by putting his notice in the alternative by stating that the notice given was either for the reason that the landlord had refused or that he had within a reasonable time failed to agree to the demand made on him by the tenant for arbn.

Where the landlord had within a reasonable time failed to agree to such a demand but had not refused to do so & the notice to quit wrongly stated that it was given by reason of the landlord's refusal to agree:—Held: the tenant could not succeed in his claim for compensation for disturbance.—SELLECK v. HELLENS (1928), 98 L. J. K. B. 214; 140 L. T. 353; 45 T. L. R. 179; 73 Sol. Jo. 76, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 3a.—COMPENSATION FOR ENFORCEMENT OF PROPER CULTIVATION.

266o. Corn Production Act, 1917 (c. 46), s. 9 (9)—Who is person interested—Tenant.]—(1) A notice to convert certain land into tillage, made under sub-sect. 1 of the above sect. & Defence of the Realm Regulations, 1914, reg. 2 M, was served on the owner of land who was in occupation. After the service of the notice the owner agreed to let the land to a tenant who entered into occupation & carried out the requirements of the notice. The notice had not been served on the tenant. The tenant claimed compensation for loss alleged to have been suffered by him by reason of his having carried out the requirements of the notice, & the claim was referred to arbn. under the Act, & the arbitrator stated a case in which he asked the ct. certain questions:—Held: the tenant was a "person who was interested in the land in respect of which the notice was served," within sub-sect. 9 of the above sect., inasmuch as he was interested at the time when the loss was alleged to have occurred; & the tenant came within the words of the sub-sect. "who suffers any loss by reason of the exercise of the powers conferred by this sect." & was entitled to compensation for the loss, if any, though the notice had not been served on him, as he had carried out the requirements of the notice.

(2) Two notices were served, each in respect of a different field in a separate farm occupied by the same tenant:—Held: in the circumstances, the loss, if any, in respect of each field should be assessed separately.

(3) The tenant of certain land in respect of which a notice to plough had been served under the Act sent in a claim for compensation on Sept. 28, 1918, for the year 1918, & in 1919 he sent in a claim for compensation for 1919. The arbn. to assess compensation was held after both claims had been sent in:—Held: the assessment should not be based on the loss, if any, in each year separately; (BANKES, L.J.) the arbitrator should take the experience of the two years, setting off any profit in one year against any loss in the other; (SCRUTTON & ATKIN, L.J.J.) the whole effect of the exercise of the powers conferred by the sect. had to be considered by the arbitrator, including an estimate of the probable loss or profit in the future.—Re TODD & NORTH RIDING OF YORKSHIRE AGRICULTURAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, [1921] 1 K. SUB-SECT. 3b.—ASCERTAINMENT OF COMPENSATION.

266s. In respect of what holdings compensation payable—Tenant sub-letting farmhouse.]—By an agreement of tenancy a landlord demised to the tenant a farm of 1,000 acres together with a farmhouse & some cottages. There was a provision that the tenant should use the demised premises for farming purposes. permission of the landlord, sub-let the farmhouse to a lady who used it as a house for paying guests. Upon the determination of the lease, the tenant made a claim for compensation under A. H. Act, 1908:—Held: the ct. must have regard to the substance of what had been done; by the lease the holding was an agricultural one, & the fact that the farmhouse had been let to a sub-tenant did not cause it to cease to be a "holding" within the Act.—Re RUSSELL & HARDING (1922), 128 L. 266t. Notice of claim—To whom given—Purchaser—Taking subject to existing tenancies.]—Appl. was the tenant of an agricultural holding under a tenancy expiring on Sept. 29, 1922. In May, 1922, the landlord contracted to sell the holding, subject to the tenancy, to resp., completion to take place on Sept. 29, 1922. The completion in fact took place on Nov. 2. The contract of sale contained a general condition that the rents, profits or possession of the property should be received or retained & the outgoings discharged by the vendor up to the time appointed for completion, & that current rents should be apportioned. By a special condition it was provided that for the purpose of this general condition any rent payable on Sept. 29 was to be deemed "current rent," & was to be payable by the purchaser on completion. After the determination of the tenancy the purchaser as "landlord" made a claim against the tenant for dilapidations, & the tenant counterclaimed for compensation:—Held: the purchaser was not at the date of the termination of the tenancy the "landlord" within A. H. Act, 1908, s. 48, & Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76), s. 18.—TOMBS v. TURVEY (1923), 93 L. J. K. B. 785; 131 L. T. 330; 68 Sol. Jo. 385, C. A.

266u. Particulars of claim—Sufficiency.]—Held: having regard to the severity of the penalty attached to non-compliance with Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76), s. 18 (2), namely, total extinguishment of the claim, the presumption was that the requirement of "particulars" was not intended to be construed strictly, & for the purpose of keeping the claim alive & enabling the parties to get before the arbitrator, a less degree of particularity was required to satisfy the sect. than would be required of particulars of a statement of claim in an action, notwithstanding that when the parties get before the arbitrator he might be of opinion that the particulars were insufficient, & might order further & better particulars to be given.—*JONES v. Act. That jurisdiction was not excluded by Arbitration Act, 1889 (c. 49), & when the jurisdiction under that Act with reference to arbn. proceedings under the A. H. 266w. — Time for notice of motion to set aside.]—In an arbn. under the A. H. Act, 1908, the award was made on Apr. 8, 1921, & on June 3 applt. gave notice of motion to set aside the award on various grounds. There was no rule either under County Cts. Act, 1888 (c. 43), or under A. H. Act, 1908, dealing with the time within which a notice of motion to set aside an award must be given:—Held: the words "principles of practice" in County Cts. Act, 1888 (c. 43), s. 164, did not refer to specific rules of the High Ct., & the time limit of six weeks under R. S. C., Ord. 64, r. 14, was not a "principle of practice" within that sect. of the Act; therefore the only time limit applicable in the present case was under Stat. Limitations & under the doctrine of laches, & the motion to set aside the award was made in time.—MCCREAGH v. FREARSON (1921), 91 L. J. K. B. 365; 126 L. T. 601, D. C.

PART V. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 3b.
266t i. Particulars of claim—Sufficiency—Agricultural Holdings (Scotland) Act, 1923 (c. 10), s. 15 (2).]—By a letter, written on receipt of a notice from the tenant of his intention to terminate his tenancy of a sheep farm, the landlord intimated that he reserved his claim in respect of depletion of the sheep stock: & by a second letter, written within two months after the termination of the tenancy, in which he referred to his former letter, he stated that only 51 per cent. of the sheep stock had been delivered to the incoming tenant, & that the amount of the claim would be intimated when the exact shortage was determined:—Held: (1) in view of the severity of the penalty attached to non-compliance, the requirements of the above sub-sect. were sufficiently complied with if fair notice was given to the opposite party of the nature of the claim against him & of the case he had to meet; (2) the letters gave such notice, although they did not state the legal basis of the claim or its actual amount.—MONTROSE (DUKE) v. HART, [1925] S. C. 160.—SCOT.

of the landlord, & awarded that each party should pay his own costs. In an action by the landlord to enforce the agreement the judge gave judgment for the tenants, on the ground that the Act gave discretion to the arbitrator as to costs:—Held: the agreement was valid & enforceable.—MANSFIELD v. ROBINSON, [1928] 2 K. B. 353; 97 L. J. K. B. 466; 139 L. T. 319; 92 J. P. 126; 44 T. L. R. 518, D. C.

267a. — “Treated as a market garden.”—

(1) Held: the word “treated” in sect. 42 (1) of the above Act, in the collocation in which it was there used did not mean simply that the holding should be in use or cultivation as a market garden, but that it should be let by one person as landlord & occupied by the other as tenant as a market garden, & so treated as between them for the purpose of governing their rights in respect of the holding as a market garden.

By an agreement in writing dated Dec. 31, 1919, & made between the landlord of the one part & the tenant therein described as “market gardener” of the other part, it was agreed (clause 1): that the landlord should let & the tenant should take the farm therein described for the term of one year from Sept. 19, 1919, & so on from year to year at the yearly rent of £185 by half-yearly payments on Mar. 25 & Sept. 29 in each year, & that the tenant should pay to the landlord as a further rent at the rate of £6 per cent. per annum on all sums of money expended by the landlord in the supply of any fruit trees during the tenancy. By clause 7 the tenant was to cultivate the land on the best & most approved system of gardening in general practice in the neighbourhood, & was not to cut down, grub up, or destroy any fruit trees growing in or upon the land, or at any time to be planted thereon, under the provisions of the agreement, without the consent in writing of the landlord or his agent first had & obtained. By clause 9 the landlord was during the term to supply the tenant at his own expense with all fruit trees which might at any time be agreed between the landlord & tenant to be necessary, & the tenant was to pay a certain additional rent in respect of the fruit trees so supplied.

Clause 11 contained the following proviso: “That nothing herein contained shall be deemed to be an agreement by the landlord that the premises hereby demised or any part thereof shall be let or treated as a market garden or give rise to a claim for compensation for fruit trees or bushes under A. H. Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof”:—Held: (2) clause 11 of the agreement contained the clearest possible expression of the intention of the parties that the holding was not to be treated as a market garden; there was therefore no agreement in writing within sect. 42 (1) of the Act, by which it was agreed that it should be let or treated as a market garden, & therefore no claim to compensation on that basis arose, because the existence of such an agreement was a condition precedent to such a claim; (3) the agreement was not one which was avoided by sect. 5 of the Act, because the condition precedent to the tenant having the right to claim compensation had not been satisfied.—Re MASTERS & DUVEEN, [1923] 2 K. 267c. — — ——Land was cultivated in order that the crops might be sold, & the crops included fruit & rhubarb:—Held: (1) the land was a market garden within A. H. Act, 1923, s. 57; (2) having regard to sect. 54 & other sects. of that Act, sect. 16 should not be read with an unrestricted meaning, & the landlord’s right of action to recover the expense of making up a road had not been affected by the provision for reference to arb. in that sect. - 652a. — — —.]—(1) By a settlement certain hereditaments were settled to the use of certain trustees during the life of A. without impeachment of waste upon the trusts, & with & subject to the powers thereinafter declared, with remainders as therein mentioned, & it was declared that the hereditaments were thereby limited to the trustees upon trust, during the life of A., that if at the time of such limitation taking effect in possession A. should not be or have been bkpt. the trustees should allow him to enter into & remain in the possession or receipt of the rents & profits of the settled estates during his life or until he should become bkpt. By an agreement, dated Dec. 7, 1920, A. agreed to sell all the timber standing in certain portions of the settled estates. On Jan. 18, 1922, a contract was entered into by A. for sale of part of the settled land, subject to the agreement of Dec. 7, 1920, & on Mar. 14, 1922, such land was conveyed to the purchaser, subject to the agreement:—Held: the proceeds of sale of the timber belonged to A.
- (2) At the date of the contract for the sale of land & at the date of the conveyance, part of the timber, to the value of about £500, remained uncut:—Held: although as regards the purchaser of the land the timber was divided from the freehold, yet nevertheless it remained part of the inheritance & subject to the limitations of the settlement; accordingly, it did not vest in A., but being however part of the inheritance & still remaining subject to the limitations of the settlement, on severance it became the property of A., & therefore the £500 belonged to him.—*Re LONDESBOROUGH (EARL), SPICER v. Merchantable timber was to mean & include all trunks & branches of trees not less than six inches in diameter at a height of four feet from the ground. The purchasers took possession of the forest, but shortly afterwards an agrarian law was passed in Latvia under which the forest & all the timber therein became the property of the Latvian State, the agreement became annulled, & all the rights of vendors & purchasers in the forest & the timber became entirely confiscated:—Held: the contract was not an executed contract on the part of the vendors at the date when it was signed, & the property in the timber had not passed, to the purchaser; the performance

804 i. Contract to take timber by valuation—Valuation by joint valuers—Subsequent valuation by valuers of vendor.—Def't. agreed to purchase all merchantable timber whether "standing or down" on four lots belonging to pltf. at $7 per M., def't. to do his own logging & take the timber off. After logging for two years, def't. decided to cease work & as some merchantable timber remained the parties agreed that two cruisers, one appointed by each party, should estimate the quantity left & def't. should pay pltf. $7 per M. for what remained. The cruisers reported, but pltf. being dissatisfied with their finding, had two of his own cruisers to make an estimate & they found that more than double the amount of merchantable timber remained. On examination, the joint cruisers admitted they did not cruise two of the lots, as these lots had been logged by def't. & they concluded, without examination, there was no merchantable timber there. Pltf.'s own cruisers reported that there were 80,000 feet of "down" timber on these two lots which were merchantable. Pltf.'s action to recover the value of the remaining timber as found by his own cruisers was dismissed:—Held: the joint cruise was such a partial estimate of the remaining timber that it could not be regarded as a cruise contemplated by the parties, & it was not binding.—*REINSETH v. Part X.—Fertilisers, Feeding Stuffs and Seeds.

971a. Feeding stuffs—Act of 1906, s. 1 (4).—In Sept. 1922, pltf., a pig-keeper, saw defts.' managing director, who offered to sell him the bakery sweepings as pig food at 2s. 6d. a bag. Pltf. accepted the offer & purchased the sweepings from defts. & fed five pigs with it successfully from Sept. 1922 to Jan. 1923, when the pigs became ill & four of them died. The sweepings consisted of ingredients used in making bread, together with dust & dirt & other odds & ends & string:—Held: the words "on the sale of any article" in the above sub-sect. were wide enough to cover the sale of these bakery sweepings; the effect of the sub-sect. was to put the risk upon the seller, who, knowing the constituents of the article which he chose to sell as food for cattle, was made responsible if in fact it contained some article deleterious; if the seller desired to protect himself against the stringent provisions of the Act, it was competent to him to do so by a special contract made for that purpose.—PULLING v. LIDBETTER, LTD., [1924] 2 K. B. 114; 93 L. J. K. B. 542; 131 L. T. 119; 88 J. P. 83; 68 Sol. Jo. 615; 22 L. G. R. 456, C. A.

978a. — Effect of—“Reasonable excuse.”]—

(1) As the object of the Act of 1906 in requiring the vendor to give the statutory invoice & imposing on him a penalty in the event of his default is to protect the purchasers of fertilisers, the effect of non-compliance with the requirement is not merely to render the vendor liable to the penalty, but also to make the sale illegal & preclude the vendor from suing for the price. (2) The fact that, owing to the nature of the article sold as a fertiliser, an analysis of it would necessitate so expensive a process as to make it impossible to sell it after analysis at a profit, affords no “reasonable excuse” within sect. 6 (1), for omitting to give the invoice required by the Act. Semble: neither will impossibility of analysis afford any excuse, the intention of the statute in that event being to prohibit the sale of the article altogether. (3) The expression “without prejudice to any civil liability” in sect. 6 (1) refers to the civil liability of the vendor, not to that of the purchaser.—ANDERSON, LTD. v. DANIEL, [1924] 1 K. An amending Order in Council made on Nov. 27, 1917, after reciting that doubts had arisen as to the effect of the Order & the proper interpretation of the Proclamation, ordered that the following persons (inter alios) should be deemed to have become British subjects by virtue thereof: "any Ottoman subject who was ordinarily resident & actually present in Cyprus on Nov. 5, 1914." *I*esp., an Ottoman subject by birth, carried on business in Cairo from 1893 to 1913. In Dec. 1913, he went to Cyprus, & after three or four months brought his family there. He rented a house in Cyprus monthly, & while there discontinued his business in Cairo. He was present in Cyprus on Nov. 5, 1914, & remained there until Oct. 1915, when he returned to Cairo, his family following in December. He received a passport describing him as a British subject, & was so registered at the British Consulate at Cairo, but after annual renewals registration was refused in 1919. He sued for a declaration that he was entitled to registration:—Held: if there were any difference between "resident" & "ordinarily resident" the latter became the test by virtue of the interpretative Order of 1917; but on the facts resp. was both "resident" & "ordinarily resident" in Cyprus on Nov. 5, 1914, whether or not Cyprus was then his domicile; & whatever may have been his motive for going there, he was a British subject by virtue of the Order in Council.—*GOUT v. custodian. In an action to obtain release of their property:—Held: the onus was on plffs. to show that they had lost their original German nationality before Jan. 10, 1920, & not on deft. to disprove it.

Plffs. had left their birthplace, Idar, in the district of Birkenfeld, about 1893, & with the exception of short annual visits to their mother, & in the case of one, six weeks' military training in 1896, they had resided uninterruptedly out of Germany from 1893 to 1917 or 1918, when they were repatriated, after war internment, to Idar, where according to the police register entries, if genuine, they were registered as stateless on their arrival, & also on their departure for Amsterdam in 1920. On Jan. 29, 1923, the Birkenfeld Govt. after inquiry as to the period of plffs.' absence from Germany, & as to their German visits during that period, granted them certificates to the effect that during that period they had forfeited their German nationality by ten years' "uninterrupted" residence abroad within North German Nationality Law, 1870, s. 21, & were therefore stateless on Jan. 10, 1920. These certificates were based on the view of the Administrative Cts. which, in considering whether German visits break the ten years' period, look to the number, length, purpose & intent of those visits. They were, however directly contrary to the view of the Leipzig Reichsgericht, which holds that the smallest visit, accidental or otherwise, breaks the period:—Held: (2) the certificates, which were admittedly only prima facie evidence & open to review in any German ct., were not conclusive in an English ct., & the onus was on plffs. to substantiate them; (3) if the Leipzig ct. view was right, the certificates were invalid; (4) even if the Administrative Ct. view was right, plffs. had failed to satisfy the English ct. that an Administrative Ct. on being informed of all the circumstances, including fraudulent conduct by plffs., applications as German nationals in 1915 & 1921, & previous false statements as to their German visits, would necessarily uphold the certificates; (5) having regard to the conflict of opinion in the German cts., plffs. had failed to discharge the onus of proving that by unquestionable & undoubted German law they had lost their nationality on Jan. 10, 1920.—HAHN v. PUBLIC TRUSTEE, [1925] Ch. 715; 95 L. J. Ch. 9; 133 L. T. 713; 14 T. L. R. 586; 69 Sol. Jo. 824

- 49c. ——— British subject marrying German & naturalised as German during war.]—By a settlement dated in 1902 a fund of £5,000 was vested in trustees on trust to invest & pay the income of the trust funds to H. during his life or until he should become bkpt. or charge it, "or until some event shall happen . . . whereby the income or any part thereof if belonging absolutely to him would become vested or charged in favour of some other person or persons or corp'n." & in the event of the determination during the life of H., of the above trust in his favour the trustees were given a discretion to apply the income for the benefit of all or any the said H., & his present or any other after-taken wife & his issue & the persons interested for the time being under the ulterior trusts,

& subject thereto, were directed to hold the capital & income of the trust funds upon trust for the benefit of the issue of H. & in default of issue upon trust for H.'s nephews & nieces. H. was born in England of English parents but had resided in Germany since 1906 & had been twice married there to German wives. During the war, on Aug. 8, 1916, he obtained a certificate of naturalisation as a German. In these circumstances a summons was taken out by the trustees to have it determined whether the life interest of H. in the funds was forfeited by the charge imposed on property of German nationals in this country on Jan. 10, 1920, by the Treaty of Peace with Germany, art. 297, or Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, & how the income accrued since Aug. 4, 1914, ought to be disposed of. It was admitted at the hearing on behalf of H. that in a German ct. applying German law he would be recognised as a German citizen. No question arose as to the income before Nov. 4, 1915, which had been paid over to H.'s agent:—Held: (1) the decision whether a person was a German national within the Treaty & Order fell to be determined exclusively by German municipal law, & accordingly H. was a German national; (2) H.'s interest under the settlement was forfeited as on Jan. 10, 1920, & subject to the payment of costs the accumulations of income in the trustees' hands from Nov. 4, 1915, to Jan. 10, 1920, must be paid to the custodian.—*Re CHAMBERLAIN'S SETTLEMENT, CHAMBERLAIN v. In 1917 an objection was lodged against the re-election of applt., who was a British subject naturalised in this country & denationalised in Germany, at the election to be held in March of that year, on the ground of his enemy birth. Upon the invitation of the committee applt., first in a letter & afterwards at an interview, set forth various facts in proof of his loyalty to the country of his adoption, but eventually the committee refused to re-elect him. Applt. impeached this decision on the ground that the committee had acted arbitrarily & capriciously & had been influenced by irrelevant considerations:—Held: the decision of the committee had proceeded solely upon the ground of applt.'s enemy birth, & before deeming him ineligible for re-election on that ground he had been given an opportunity of being heard. The committee having acted honestly & fairly in the exercise of their discretion & within their competence, it was not open to any ct. to review their decision.—WEINBERGER v. INGLIS, [1919] A. - 198a. ———. —In Jan. 1914, pltf's. entered into a contract with defts., who were a co. incorporated under the laws of Belgium & had their registered office at Antwerp, to sell to them manganese ore deliverable in certain quantities during the second half of 1914 & the three following years alongside steamer in Bombay. In Sept. 1914, when the German armies were threatening Antwerp, the managing director of deft. co. removed all the co.'s goods & the money in bank to London & came himself to London, & there, without any formal authority from the co., carried on business in his own name, but for the benefit of the co. After the German occupation of Antwerp the German authorities placed the co. under compulsory administration. During the German occupation, meetings of the directors & shareholders were held at which formal business was transacted. These meetings were held so as to comply with Belgian law & to keep the co. in existence. The co. also collected & paid debts due to & owing by it in order to prevent the German authorities from winding up the co. & investing the uncalled capital in German War Loan, & with the like object it created a debt against its uncalled capital in favour of its bankers for the purpose of paying arrears of dividend on its preference shares. Pltf's. contended that the co. was an enemy, & they claimed a declaration that the contract was dissolved & was no longer binding on them :—Held : pltf's. were entitled to the declaration claimed; though acts which were necessary merely for the purpose of keeping the co. in existence might not amount to "carrying on business" within the Proclamation of Sept. 14, 1915, the collection of debts & discharge of liabilities with the intention of continuing the business amounted to a "carrying on business," & constituted the co. an "enemy" within the Proclamation.—CENTRAL INDIA MINING CO. v. At the end of the first year there was a balance in favour of pltf's. In an action to recover the amount of the balance defts. pleaded that as the Bolsheviks had in Nov. 1917, usurped supreme power in Russia, & as the British Govt. was carrying on warlike operations against them pltf's. were alien enemies, & that owing to the entire suspension of business in Petrograd by reason of the usurpation the basis of the contract had been destroyed :—Held : as the Bolshevik Govt. had not been recognised by this country as the Russian Govt., & as pltf's. had not adhered to the Bolsheviks pltf's. were not alien enemies; & as defts. with knowledge of the facts had continued to treat the contract as alive by crediting pltf's. with premiums & debiting them with losses, the Bolshevik revolution had not so destroyed the basis of the contract as to put an end to it, & pltf's. were entitled to recover.—EASTERN CARRYING INSURANCE CO. v. 208a. ——— Effect of Trading with Enemy Acts, 1914-1916.—(1) Under the common law of England the Crown has always had &, subject to the effect of the above Acts, still has the right to seize & forfeit private property, including choses in action & equitable interests therein, found in this Kingdom belonging to subjects of an enemy State. That right has not been abandoned by desuetude. The powers conferred by the above Acts, however, are so inconsistent with the exercise of the common law right of forfeiture that that right must be treated as being thereby, at least temporarily, superseded.

212 i. Patent in name of alien enemy—Royalties paid by licensee during suspension of patent—Who entitled to.—Held: (1) royalties paid by the licensee from the date of his licence up to the expiration of six months from the ending of the war, i.e., to Jan. 10, 1920, were not sums belonging to an enemy, & were not properly in the hands of the custodian; (2) royalties paid or to be paid after June 10, 1920, were properly paid or payable in the hands of the custodian as a debt due to an enemy.—Re SYNTHETIC DRUG CO., [1925] Exch. C. R. 196.—CAN.

215 i. Licensed to trade for limited purposes—Banking transactions.—The London agency of a German bank, which at the outbreak of war in 1914 became an enemy, held a bill, drawn by a German subject & accepted by a Scotsman, which had been sent from Germany for collection. It had been the practice of the bank that, if bills so sent were dishonoured, no legal proceedings were taken against acceptors in Great Britain, but the bills were retransmitted to the German office so that proceedings might be taken in the German cts. against the German indorsers. Licences covering the whole period of the war were issued to the London agency, empowering it to carry on banking business under supervision, to the extent of completing current transactions, so as to make its realisable assets available to its creditors, "so far as those transactions would in ordinary course have been carried out through" the London establishment. The bill having been dishonoured on presentation, was retained by the London agency, which debited the German office with the Right to assessment of damages in collision action.—Before the outbreak of war, defts., the German owners of the steamship M., recovered judgment against the British owners of the steamship K. for the amount of the damage arising out of a collision between the two vessels, & the damages were referred to the registrar & merchants for assessment. Before defts. had filed their claim in the registry the war had broken out. A few days before the Peace Treaty was ratified the claim & vouchers were filed, but by consent they were treated as having been filed after the ratification. Thereupon pltf. took out a summons for an order to set aside the filing & service of the claim & vouchers on the ground that under arts. 296 & 297 of the Treaty & Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, s. 1 (xvi & xvii), the parties had no right to litigate the claim in the registry, inasmuch as, being a debt owing to German nationals, it had to be settled through the intervention of clearing houses:—Held: (1) defts.' claim was not a debt but a right, which by the Peace Treaty, art. 297, was subject to the right to be retained & liquidated "in accordance with the law of the allied State . . . concerned," namely, Great Britain; (2) not being a debt, art. 296 did not apply; (3) although defts. would not be able to handle the sum awarded, there was nothing in art. 297 or in Treaty of Peace Order, s. 1 (xvii) to deprive defts. of their right to proceed to a reference, or to prevent pltf. paying money into ct. with a notice that it was in satisfaction of the claim of German subjects.—THE MARIE GARTZ, [1920] P. 172; 89 L. 215b. ——— Debt—Due to German.—Clause 14 of the annex contained in the Sched. to Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, does not affect the rights of an individual British national to resist a claim by the Controller of the British Clearing Office to recover a debt which is admitted to be due to a German amount, & filed a letter, which owing to war conditions could not be sent to the German office intimating the circumstances. In an action on the bill brought in 1922 by the Public Trustee against the Scottish acceptor:—Held: as an action on the bill was not a transaction that would in ordinary course have been carried out through the London agency, the licences conferred no right to sue.—*PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. No part of the annuities could be paid to the annuitants during the war by reason of Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1914 (c. 12), but accumulations were retained by the exors., as no order was made under sect. 4 of the Act vesting the annuitants' interests in the custodian:—Held: (1) as the Act of 1914 only suspended payments to the alien enemies & did not determine the ownership & ultimate destination of their annuities, those annuities were not forfeited ab initio; (2) the annuities were forfeited & determined in the case of the German nationals as from Jan. 10, 1920, by the charge imposed by the Treaty of Peace with Germany & Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, & in the case of the Austrian national as from July 16, 1920, by the charge imposed by the Treaty of Peace with Austria & Treaty of Peace (Austria) Order, 1920; (3) the accumulations of the annuities until those respective dates became subject to the charges & payable therefore to the custodian or the administrator of Austrian property as the case might be.—*Re LEVINSTEIN, LEVINSTEIN v. If neither infant attained a vested interest the annuity passed to the husband, also a German national. The annuity was secured by the covenant of the wife's parents with the trustees, all British subjects, & was payable during the lives of the surviving covenantor & the surviving child, but the trustees were not to be liable for any loss occasioned by their neglect to enforce the covenant. The infants' contingent title accrued in possession on the wife's death on July 17, 1918, but the trustees had not enforced the payment of any instalment since then. The custodian having claimed the annuity, the trustees submitted the matter to the ct. The custodian had not obtained a vesting order:—Held: both the arrears & the contingent future instalments payable after Jan. 10, 1920, were property rights or interests within Peace Treaty Order, 1919, s. 1 (xvi), &, notwithstanding the infants' personal incapacity, were caught by the charge.—*Re NEUBURGER'S SETTLEMENT, FORESHEW v. 215h. ———— Accumulations of annuities.—By his will dated Mar. 31, 1911, a testator bequeathed an annuity of £250 to an Austrian national "until he shall die or voluntarily or involuntarily alienate or encumber . . . the same." Testator died on Aug. 22, 1914, during the war. The annuity was therefore accumulated in the hands of his legal personal representative, who made the proper returns to the custodian under Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1914 (c. 12), s. 3, but no vesting order was made under sect. 4. By Treaty of Peace (Austria) Order, 1920, the annuity & its accumulations were, as from July 16, 1920, charged in favour of the administrator of Austrian Property, to secure (inter alia) payment of debts owing by Austrian to British nationals:—Held: (1) the accumulations up to July 16, 1920, passed to the administrator of Austrian property; (2) the charge created by Treaty of Peace Order was not an involuntary alienation or encumbrance within the meaning of the will, so that the current annuity since July 16, 1920, was not forfeited, but was payable to the administrator of Austrian property.—*Re BIEDERMANN, BEST v. 215l. ——— Belonging to foreign bank in liquidation.]—Pltfs. were the receivers of the Austro-Hungarian Bank appointed by the Reparations Commission under Treaty of Peace with Austria, art. 206, & entrusted with the duty of liquidating the bank for the purpose of distributing the liability on the currency notes of the bank among the several States among which the territory of the former Austro-Hungarian monarchy had been divided. Art. 249 of that Treaty provided that "subject to any contrary stipulation" in the Treaty, the British Govt. might retain & liquidate the property in this country of "nationals of the former Austrian Empire" which expression, as the ct. found, included the Austro-Hungarian Bank, & charge it with the payment of claims by British nationals in respect of (inter alia) debts due to them by Austrian nationals. By the same article Austria undertook to compensate her own nationals for the retention of & charge upon their property. Defts. were the custodian of enemy property in this country & the administrator appointed by Order in Council to liquidate the property of Austrian nationals in this country & administer the above-mentioned charge. Pltfs. claimed that art. 206 was a "contrary stipulation" within art. 249, that the property of the bank in this country was consequently not subject to the charge, & that they & not defts. were entitled to administer that property:—Held: there was no inconsistency between the two articles, which dealt with different subject matters, the only effect of art. 249 upon the liquidation under art. 206 being to replace the assets of Austrian nationals in this country by assets of equal value in Austria if the Austrian Govt. carried out its undertaking, & the action must be dismissed.—*LUXARDO v. 215m. ——— Policy money—Payable in England.]—Pltf. co. was incorporated by special Act of the Legislature of New York, & had its central office & the bulk of its assets in New York. The co. had a branch in London, & in most of the capitals of Europe, the branch in Paris being its head office for Europe. The general manager of the London branch had no general authority to issue policies in this country. Certain life policies signed by the president & secretary of the co. & countersigned by the general manager for Europe were issued in London to German nationals before the outbreak of the war. The policies were not under seal. The policy moneys were expressed to be payable in London, but all premiums were payable either at the central office in New York or at the office where the insurance was payable & proofs of death were to be furnished at the New York office. An indorsement on the policy provided that it should be construed according to English law. In an action to determine whether the policy moneys payable under the policies in question, which had matured on or before Jan. 10, 1920, the date when the Treaty of Peace with Germany came into force, were "property, rights & interests within His Majesty's Dominions" belonging to German nationals, & as such were subject to the charge created by Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, s. 1 (xvi):—Held: (1) there was nothing in art. 299 of s. V. of the Peace Treaty, or in par. 11 of the annex thereto, to indicate that the property, rights, & interests of the assured under such contracts were to be excluded from the general charge under par. 4 of the annex to s. IV.; (2) inasmuch as a corpn. might have a dual residence, & there was evidence that pltfs. were resident both in New York & in London carrying on business in both places & in both places being subject to the jurisdiction of the cts., it was permissible & necessary to look at the terms of the contracts & to determine from them at what place the debts would be recoverable. Applying that test in the present case, the debts were recoverable in London where they were expressed to be payable, & that being so, they were situate within His Majesty's Dominions & became subject to the charge.—*NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE CO. v. 215o. — Joint decisions of Clearing Offices—Effect.]—In 1913 defts. had entered into contracts with German sellers for the purchase of a quantity of nitrate, delivery of which was to be made to defts.' agent alongside the vessel at Iquique, & payment for which was to be made in London after presentation of bills of lading. Several cargoes were shipped, but war broke out before the vessels arrived at their destination & before the bills of lading, which were made out to order, could be presented. In these circumstances defts. procured delivery to their sub-purchasers by giving an indemnity to the ships, & presumably received payment for the nitrate from their sub-purchasers. After an interval the German sellers duly notified their claim for the price of the nitrate & for interest to the German clearing office, which in turn passed it on to the British clearing office. Defts. were prepared to pay what the Germans claimed as the price of the goods, though they disputed the existence of any debt, either in the strict legal sense or in the sense in which the expression is used in Treaty of Peace, art. 296, & they disputed the claim for interest. As the Treaty only contemplated the admission of debts, & defts. were prepared to pay the amount claimed as the price of the goods, the British clearing office admitted the debt, & the principal money was cleared in 1923. At a later period the claim for interest was again put forward. This claim defts. still disputed, but the two clearing offices arrived at a joint decision that interest was payable upon the principal sum admitted by the British clearing office. Notice of the decision was conveyed to defts. in a letter dated Sept. 13, 1923. The decision took the form of an intimation that the British & German clearing offices had jointly agreed that interest in accordance with par. 22 of the annex to sect. III. of Part X. of the Treaty was payable upon the admitted debt at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum calculated from dates specified. The notice then continued as follows: "In default of a notice of appeal under r. 22 of the Rules of Procedure of the Anglo-German Mixed Arbitral Tribunal, the interest on the said sum of . . . at the rate of 5 per cent. from (the date named) to the date of crediting & advice to the German clearing office will be credited by the British clearing office to the German clearing office." No appeal was brought, & after the expiry of the time for appealing, pltf., the controller of the British clearing office, sought to enforce this joint decision by action on the ground that a joint decision unappealed from should, on a true construction of the Peace Treaty, be regarded in the same light as if it was a foreign judgment, or the award of an arbitrator, & should, therefore, be enforced by the

cts. of this country on the same principle as either a foreign judgment or an award is enforced:—Held: under Treaty of Peace, art. 296, as carried out by Treaty of Peace Act, 1919, & Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, the joint decisions of the clearing offices were not in the nature of judgments or of awards under an arbitr., so as themselves to be enforceable by action, & therefore the action failed.—*CLEARING OFFICE CONTROLLER v. The Dresdner Bank accepted the bills at their London branch & received as security Russian promissory notes. By 1917 the Dresdner Bank in London had repaid the sum due for principal & interest to the Bank of England. In 1918 the Board of Trade, under the above Act, ordered the business carried on by the Dresdner Bank in London to be wound up, & appointed a controller to wind up the business, with power to collect all moneys owing to the bank & to bring actions in the name of the bank. —Held: (1) the transaction was part of the "business" of the London branch of the Dresdner Bank; debts' liability to put the Dresdner Bank in funds to meet the bills was an asset of the London branch within the above sect., even if the London branch accepted the bills on the instructions of the head office in Berlin & debited the current account of the head office with the amount paid on the bills, & debts, were liable to repay plffs. the money paid by them to the Bank of England in respect of the bills with simple interest at 5 per cent. on each instalment from the date of payment; (2) the action by the controller in the name of the Dresdner Bank (London Agency) was not an action in the name of a branch of that bank but an action in the name of the Dresdner Bank, & the addition of the words "London Agency," being merely descriptive, did not change plffs. from being the Dresdner Bank into something unknown to the law as a legal person.—*DRESDNER BANK v. His daughter was married to a German national, & was residing in Germany at the time of her father's death. W.'s widow was a citizen of the United States. Early in 1917, an agreement was made by the trustee & the wife & daughter, pursuant to clause 11 of the will, by which, in effect, it was agreed that the whole of the assets in Ontario should be allocated to the widow. In May, 1919, an application was made to the ct., by the Secretary of State for Canada, for an order vesting in the custodian appointed under Consolidated Orders respecting Trading with the Enemy, 1916, one-half of the assets situated in Ontario of the estate of W., on the ground that the said half belonged to or was held or managed for or on behalf of W.'s daughter, who was an enemy. The motion was made under Consolidated Order 28, which was passed pursuant to the above Act:—Held: it was appropriate & expedient to make the order asked for.—Re WALKER (1919), 46 O. L. Damages for breach of contract.—At the outbreak of war the majority of the shares in M. Co., carrying on business in the United Kingdom, were held by, & the majority of the directors were, alien enemies. A controller of the co. was appointed. By the appointment of new directors the co. came under British management. In Dec. 1915, M. Co. agreed to sell, & F. Co. to buy, the whole output of M. Co. until six months after the declaration of peace between England & Germany. In 1919 the Board of Trade, under the above Act, ordered the business of M. Co. to be wound up & the controller sold the business:—Held: although at the outbreak of war M. Co. became an alien enemy, yet its business could be lawfully carried on under new non-enemy management even if enemy shareholders might after the war benefit by such trading, & although it was in consequence of the winding-up order that M. Co. was unable to carry out its contract, it was liable in damages to F. Co. for breach of contract.—Re BRITISH INCANDESCENT MANTLE WORKS, LTD. (1923), 129 L. T. 126; 39 T. L. R. 244; 67 Sol. 33. Recovery of enemy debt—Effect of Treaty of Peace & subsequent Orders.—Before the war, F., a German firm, sent to W. Co. in Canada goods on consignment for sale on commission. During the war W. Co. sold the goods & shortly afterwards, sold its assets to C. Co. which assumed W. Co.'s liabilities, including the liability to F. In June, 1920, C. Co., having notice of competing claims by F. & its sequestrator in France, for the amount of said liability, applied for & obtained from the master in chambers, in the Supreme Ct. of Ontario, an order for the payment of the amount into ct. In November, 1925, P., as attorney for F., & the Custodian of Alien Enemy Property each applied for payment to himself of the money in ct.:—Held: the Custodian was entitled to the money; it represented an enemy "debt" owing by a debtor in Canada & recoverable by the Custodian under the regulations of Treaty of Peace (German) Order, 1920, Part I.—CUSTODIAN OF ALIEN ENEMY PROPERTY v. the partners since Dec. 31, 1913. F. died in 1920, & deft. was his legal personal representative. By an order of the Board of Trade it was ordered that all the property, rights, & interests of the three German partners in the assets of the firm in respect of any claim against the English partner, or his estate, should vest in pltf., who should take all necessary proceedings to collect what might be due to the German partners. In an action by pltf. as custodian of enemy property with the object of winding up the partnership he claimed an account against deft. of all dealings between the German partners & the English partner, including all dealings with the partnership assets since the dissolution, payment of what should be found due, & an inquiry of what the partnership property consisted. The German partners were not added as pltf. in the action:—Held: in the absence of the German partners as parties to the action no such relief as was asked could be granted, & the action failed.—PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. Vesting orders were made, under which the property in England of the German bank was vested in the custodian. An order had been made, under which the business of the London agency was wound up & a controller appointed. The controller applied to the ct. to give directions under the powers conferred by sect. 5 (1) or (2) of the above Act that the debt should be paid out of the property vested in the custodian:—Held: even if the power still subsisted under those subjects. to direct such payment to persons who were not British nationals under the Treaty of Peace, such power was discretionary & the ct. would not exercise it, except in very special circumstances, but would leave such debts to be dealt with under the Order in Council to be made at the termination of the war under sect. 5 (1) of the Act.—Re NATIONAL BANK FÜR DEUTSCHLAND, Re ANGLO-AUSTRIAN BANK, [1921] 1 Ch. 284; 90 L. 237a. ———— Release of funds in favour of British creditors—Mode of distribution.—

Funds were released by the custodian of enemy assets in this country from his charge upon them under the Treaty of Peace Orders, the release being expressly limited in favour of creditors of British nationality. There were no German creditors, but there were some foreign creditors. Upon the trustee's application for directions:—Held: the ct. would direct the funds to be distributed according to Bkpcy. Act, 1914 (c. 59), but would give the custodian an opportunity of being heard, if he so wished, before the order was drawn up.—Re WISEMANN, Ex p. TRUSTEE (1923), 92 L. J. Ch. 349; [1923] B. & C. R. 28.

237b. ———— Right to dividends—On shares held by alien enemies.—An English co. had certain alien enemy shareholders & certain assets in Germany. From time to time after the outbreak of the war with Germany, resolutions were passed by the directors & by the co. in general meeting declaring interim & final dividends respectively, subject in each case to a condition that as regards members of the co. resident in Germany, Austria & Turkey, the dividend should be payable only out of assets in Germany, & as regards members resident elsewhere out of assets in England. By an order made on Aug. 24, 1916, under sect. 4 (1) of the above Act, it was ordered that the right to transfer the shares held by alien enemies & to receive any dividends "now due & to accrue due thereon" vested in the custodian, & the shares were transferred into his name in due course:—Held: the resolutions, so far as they provided for payment only out of assets in Germany, were void as against the custodian, & the co. was liable out of any assets in its hands to pay him the amounts of the dividends, whether declared before or after the vesting order.—*ARAMAYO FRANCKE MINES, LTD. v. 237c. ———— Part of trust income—Payable to enemy.—(1) Held: sect. 2 (1) of the above Act related only to moneys payable under contractual obligations arising out of loans, partnership or membership of a co., & not to trust income payable by trustees to an enemy even when the income was derived from dividends on shares.

(2) By his will a testator, who died in 1904, bequeathed his estate upon trusts whereby the residue & the proceeds of sale thereof were to go in equal shares to his children; & he directed his trustees to retain the share of each of his daughters upon trust during the life of the daughter to pay the annual income to her for her separate use without power of anticipation & until she should do or suffer any act or thing whereby the same, if payable to her absolutely or any part thereof, might have become payable or forfeited to or vested in any other person. In the event of a forfeiture under this provision the income was given upon a discretionary trust during the remainder of the life of the daughter, & subject thereto the daughter's share was to be held in trust for her children & issue as therein mentioned.

One of the testator's daughters had intermarried with a German in 1908, & had since resided in Germany. Since the coming into force of the above Act, the trustees had accumulated the income of her share, which amounted on Jan. 10, 1920, the date of the ratification of the Treaty of Peace with Germany, to about £4,000:—Held: the daughter's life interest was not determined on the coming into force of the above Act, but ceased on Jan. 10, 1920, by reason of the Treaty of Peace charge, & the accumulations of income up to that date were subject to the charge.—*Re HALLENSTEIN, HALSTED v. 237d. — Liability of custodian for super tax.—Property belonging to an enemy which is paid to or vested in the custodian under the above Act is, pending its disposition by Order in Council after the termination of the war, removed from the control & beneficial ownership of the enemy. During the interval the beneficial ownership is in statutory suspense or abeyance, the custodian having meanwhile limited powers of dealing with the property.

When war broke out in 1914, M., an enemy within the Act, owned real estate in England & shares & securities in British cos. By orders under sect. 4 of the Act the real estate, shares & securities were vested in the custodian. The Special Comrs. for Income Tax assessed the custodian to super tax as agent or receiver for M. The custodian disputed the legality of the assessment:—Held: (1) M.'s beneficial ownership of the property having ceased on the making of the vesting orders, the profits & gains received by the custodian were received by him in respect of M., but did not in his hands belong to M.; he did not receive or hold them as agent or receiver or trustee for M. within 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, s. 41, & therefore, he was not liable to be assessed to super tax; (2) as M. could not, after the war, ask to receive back the property except on the footing that a sum equal to the amount of super tax which, but for the war, he would have been liable to pay was paid, the custodian must, under the discretion given to the ct. by sect. 5 (1) of the Act of 1914, pay that sum to the Comrs. as analogous to payment of a debt sect. 5 (2).—Re MUNSTER, [1920] 1 Ch. 208; 89 L. On Sept. 25, 1914, the Austrian firm wrote a letter purporting to be an assignment to the London firm of a debt due to them by B. The letter contained an enclosure signed by the Austrian firm addressed to B. amounting to a notice of assignment of the debt. Defts. were a firm of merchants, British subjects, carrying on business in Bombay. On June 24, 1914, A., a German subject, drew a bill of exchange upon defts in favour of pltfs. The bill purported to be drawn upon defts. against fifty bales of goods per a German steamer. The bill was accepted by defts. on July 20, 1914, payable at the office of pltfs. in Bombay. The steamer reached Bombay just before the outbreak of war, & in

At the outbreak of war between Great Britain & Turkey deft. bank, a Turkish subject, was the holder of sight bills for the invoice amount in sterling of goods consigned by pltf. to Beyrout, which had arrived there shortly before the outbreak of war, & were subsequently delivered to the customers by deft. bank against payment in piastres. At the conclusion of the war deft. bank claimed the right to pay to pltf. an amount in sterling representing the then value of the piastres which they had received in payment for the goods. Pltf. claimed to be paid the sterling amount of the bills, or, in the alternative, damages for their conversion:—Held: (1) as the bank in Beyrout accepted the payment in lawful money from the Syrian merchant & handed over the goods, it constituted itself, as in a question with the drawer, debtor for the sterling amount on the face of the bill; (2) it was not every contract that was abrogated by the war; it was only a contract which was still executory & which for its execution required intercourse between the British subject & the enemy, & as the contract had been partially carried out, the bills had been indorsed, & the bank had been handed them together with the indorsed bills of lading, from that a subsidiary contract arose, namely, that on payment of the bills the shipping documents should be handed over, to execute which no intercourse between a British subject & the enemy was necessary; & the bank was entitled to do what it did, & there could be no question of conversion, & having constituted themselves debtors in sterling, in sterling they must pay.—*OTTOMAN BANK v. gress payments were made by the B. co., but none of the machinery was ever delivered. After the commencement of the war, an order was, on Nov. 13, 1914, made under Trading with the Enemy Act, 1914, s. 8, appointing C. controller of the B. co., & on June 13, 1918, under Trading with the Enemy Act, 1914–1916, s. 9h, requiring the B. co. to be wound up, & appointing C. controller. The contract was never completed:—Held: the contract became null & void as from the commencement of the war, & neither the B. co. nor C. was entitled to recover from the A. co. any portion of the sum paid as progress payments.—Re CONTINENTAL (1919), 27 C. The price was payable by instalments, of which £4,620 was paid to account of the whole when war broke out & it became illegal to implement the contract. None of the goods had at that time been delivered. Thereafter the goods were completed & sold in Great Britain at an enhanced price. Third parties having obtained a decree against the purchasers of the goods arrested money in the hands of the sellers of the goods:—Held: (1) the contract was dissolved by the outbreak of war; (2) the sum paid to account of the price of the goods belonged to the buyers & was validly arrested in

After the war on action brought for repetition of the instalment paid:—Held: as the instalment had been paid as part of the price of the engines, & as the engines had not been delivered owing to a cause for which neither of the parties was responsible, defenders were bound to make restitution of the instalment.—*CANTIERE v. 405a. ———.]—For many years there existed in Germany works for the manufacture of dyestuffs (Farbenfabriken), belonging to a German concern which carried on business in England through agents. In 1878 the agents were a partnership firm consisting of A. & two other persons. In 1895 A. was the sole partner. In that year a limited co. was formed & registered in England, & in 1898 its name was changed to B. Co. Its original capital was £5,000, divided into 500 shares of £10 each of which A. held five shares & the German concern 470. In 1905 the capital was increased to £25,000 by the issue of 2,000 new shares fully paid, & in 1909 it was increased to £100,000, by the issue of 7,500 like shares. At the times material the German concern held 9,912 shares & A. twenty shares. By an agreement dated in 1910 between the German concern & B. Co., the district of the German concern was defined as the whole world outside the United Kingdom with the Channel Islands & the Isle of Man, & the district of B. Co. as the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands & the Isle of Man. The German concern bound itself not to import goods into B. Co.'s district except for the purposes of B. Co., & B. Co. bound itself not to import into the German concern's district except for the purposes of the German concern. By an agreement, dated in 1912, between the same parties & operative for seven years, the German concern bound itself to sell to B. Co. & to no one else in the United Kingdom for sale in the United Kingdom anilines & chemicals manufactured by the German concern, & B. Co. bound itself to buy from the German concern & from no other manufacturer such dyestuffs. By unwritten agreement B. Co. was bound from its inception to import only from the German concern. From the time of the registration of B. Co. A.'s firm ceased to act as agents for the German concern. B. Co. sold not in the name of the German concern, but in its own name, & as a principal; but it announced to the world on its office windows, & to its customers on notepaper & other documents & by books, catalogues & samples, that it was the sole importer in England of the manufactures of the German concern. It was thus brought home to the customers that they were buying the produce of the German concern as before. The new régime was in effect a continuation of the agency though legally the agency had ceased. The business of B. Co. was conducted by A. & another director, both resident in England. The German concern supplied them with lists of prices to be charged by the German concern to B. Co., B. Co. making a profit by selling to customers at a price higher than the list. If an English customer offered to buy at a price lower than the list, the German concern would reduce its price to B. Co. accordingly. The overwhelming shareholding of the German concern in B. Co. caused it to be vitally interested, as seller & buyer, in the contract between itself & B. Co. & as seller in the contract between B. Co. & its customer. Down to the outbreak of war between England & Germany on Aug. 4, 1914, the control of B. Co., its business, affairs & acts, were in the hands of the German concern. On Apr. 1, 1914, B. Co. entered into a contract with a British firm for a supply to the firm of dyestuffs, identified by letters & numbers as the manufacture of the German concern or of other German manufacturers, of which samples from Germany were in the possession of the British firm. It was provided that any duties imposed by the British Govt. on the goods should be paid by the British firm or the price should be advanced accordingly. It was further provided that deliveries or orders off the contract might be suspended by either party if any contingency should arise beyond the control of the parties, such as fire, accidents, war, strikes, or the like. The contract covered a period unexpired at the outbreak of war. At that date quantities of dyestuffs remained undelivered & were never afterwards delivered. An order was made by the Board of Trade, under Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1916 (c. 105), s. 1, for the winding up of the business of B. Co., & a controller appointed. In the winding up the British firm claimed damages for breach of contract in the non-fulfilment of deliveries. The controller resisted the claim on the grounds: (a) that the contract was dissolved at the outbreak of war, because B. Co. was an enemy or of enemy character, because the parties contracted on the footing that the goods should come from Germany, & because continued existence or performance of the contract would involve intercourse with, or tend to assist the enemy; (b) that owing to the suspension clause no right to damages had yet arisen; (c) that the object of the contract had been frustrated, because the period of suspension was indefinite & beyond the contemplation of the parties, because performance of the contract was prevented by Govt. action or embargo, & because the basis of the contract was that the importation of the goods to be supplied should continue to be possible & by reason of war it was rendered impossible. On application to the Ct. by the controller for directions whether the claim should be admitted as a debt due from B. Co. :—Held: (1) at the date of the outbreak of war B. Co. assumed enemy character, & accordingly, the contract became dissolved by the outbreak of war as being a current contract entered into with a co. which eo instanti assumed enemy character; (2) the abrogation of the contract by outbreak of war being founded on public policy, the presence of a suspension clause in the event of war did not assist the claimant, & if "war" in the clause included war between England & Germany the clause was void as against public policy, & the claim must be rejected; (3) assuming that B. Co. had not assumed enemy character at the outbreak of war, the claim must fail on the following grounds: that, the contract being for the supply of goods to be obtained from Germany, further performance on the outbreak of war involved intercourse with the enemy & became illegal accordingly; that, the contracts having been made on the basis that the existing commercial conditions would continue & that the basis having ceased to exist by outbreak of war between England & Germany, the commercial object of the contract had been frustrated, & the contract was dissolved at the outbreak of war; (4) the suspension clause was not intended by the parties to apply to war between England & Germany; (5) the doctrine of frustration applied to contracts for the sale of unascertained goods.—*Re BADISCHE CO. Apart from the laundry business resp. continued to be known as Karel Kollross, & he was registered in that name as the proprietor of the Widmore Laundry under Registration of Business Names Act, 1916 (c. 58). An information having been preferred against resp. for using the name Widmore Laundry, being a name other than that by which he was ordinarily known on Aug. 4, 1914, contrary to sect. 7 of the Act of 1919, the justices dismissed the information:—Held: the justices were right, as resp. had committed no offence against sect. 7 (1), by taking over an old-established business with a pre-war name & continuing to carry it on under that name.—*BRUNNING v. (2) In cases under the Act of 1914, s. 1 (4), & the Act of 1919, s. 13, when any question arises whether the person charged is an alien or not the onus lies upon him to prove that he is not an alien.

(3) Offences against the Act of 1914 & the Act of 1919 are punishable only in the manner prescribed by the statutes, namely on summary conviction, unless the person charged with the offence claims the right under Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (c. 49), s. 17, to be tried with a jury. Where, therefore, an offence under those Acts was treated by the magistrate as an indictable one & the case sent for trial before quarter sessions without any claim for trial with a jury having been put forward by prisoner, the conviction at the sessions was quashed.—*R. v. When before the magistrate he was asked “Are you an Egyptian?” to which he answered “Yes.” He was then asked “Did you tell the registration officer that you intended to change your residence, & tell him when & where you were going?” to which he answered “No.” Thereupon the magistrate entered a plea of guilty & sentenced appct. to imprisonment for one month & recommended the making of a deportation order against him:—Held: appct. had not pleaded guilty or admitted the truth of the charge within Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (c. 49), s. 19, or Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914 (c. 58), s. 37, & therefore, he had a right of appeal to quarter sessions by virtue of those sections.—*R. v. In 1919 he was convicted under reg. 14h of the above regulations, for that, not being a natural-born British subject, he used a name other than that by which he was ordinarily known at the beginning of the war. He contended that reg. 14h was ultra vires, on the ground that it was not competent by Order in Council, issued under Defence of the Realm Act, 1914 (c. 8), to deprive him of any rights, powers, or privileges which were not at the same time taken away from all British subjects; & that the regulations purported to override an Act of Parliament, although there was no power under the Act of 1914 to do so:—Held: reg. 14h was not ultra vires because it discriminated between naturalised & natural-born British subjects.

k iii. ———. Granary reasonably fit for grain.—Held: def'ts. were not liable for damages for injury to pltf's. horses while lawfully running at large, caused by eating wheat which had run from a granary on def'ts. premises, in view of the jury's finding that the granary was reasonably fit for storing the wheat as against animals running at large.—GLENN & BABB v. SCHOFIELD, [1928] 2 D. L. R. 319; [1928] S. C. R. 208.—CAN.

k iv. ———. Animal trespassing.—If grain be left in such an unguarded condition as to permit of horses being attracted by it & eating it to their injury, the owner of the grain will be liable for the resulting damage, even though the horses are trespassers.—FULTON v. RANDALL, GEE & MITCHELL, LTD., [1918] 3 W. W. R. 331.—CAN.

k v. ———. ———. —A person who allows threshed grain to be accessible to stock, is liable in damages for the death of an animal resulting therefrom, even though the animal was unlawfully at large, unless the owner of the animal when turning it at large knew that such grain was accessible to stock.—HAWORTH v. WEBB (1922), 65 D. L. R. 174; 15 Sask. L. R. 276; [1922] 1 W. W. R. 1070.—CAN.

k vi. ———. ———. —Pltf. alleged that def't. while engaged in seeding left out in his unfenced ploughed field an unprotected wagon box which contained wheat & that pltf.'s horse while lawfully running at large gorged itself with the wheat & died.—Held:

def't. was not liable.—MUSSELMAN v. ZIMMERMAN (1922), 66 D. L. R. 350; [1922] 2 W. W. R. 640.—CAN.

k vii. ———. ———. —The result of an action under Open Wells Act, R. S. S., 1920 (c. 160), does not depend upon whether or not the animals injured were unlawfully at large under Stray Animals Act, R. S. S., 1920 (c. 124).—WENTZALL v. PERKS [1924] 3 W. W. R. 876.—CAN.

k viii. ———. Grain mixed with poisonous substance.—No liability attaches to a railway co. for damages for the loss of cattle which die from eating grain which has become mixed with lead ore, where the grain was dropped upon the ground among the particles of lead ore by a customer of the railway co. while unloading grain from the company's cars.—DAWSON v. PARADISE MINE & CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. CO., [1919] 1 W. W. R. 499.—CAN.

k ix. ———. —The obligation imposed by Open Wells, etc., Act, R. S. S., 1920 (c. 160), s. 4, is an absolute one, & where another's animals have been injured as the result of threshed grain being accessible to them, the fact that the granary in question was reasonably fit for the storage of grain as against animals running at large is no defence.—SCHOFIELD v. GLENN & BABB, [1927] 3 D. L. R. 188; [1927] 2 W. W. R. 183; 21 Sask. L. R. 494.—CAN.

ni. ———. Running into animal using highway.—Def't., while driving his automobile at dusk at twenty-five miles an hour with his lights on, ran into pltf.'s cow which he had not seen until very close to it. He was held liable in damages.—JOHNSON v. GIFFEN (1921), 62 D. L. R. 635; [1921] 3 W. W. R. 596.—CAN.

w i. ———. Liability of boatowner for act of repairer.—A boatowner employed a joiner to repair his boats. The paint scrapings were left lying on the ground, & poisoned a cow that was grazing on the pasture.—Held: it was the boatowner's duty to see that the paint scrapings were removed, & he was liable in damages for the cow's death.—STEWART v. ADAMS, [1920] S. C. 129; 57 Sc. L. R. 83.—SCOT.

w ii. ———. Animals lawfully at large—Whether poison hidden trap.—Poison which def't. had put in bags on his unfenced land & carefully covered with manure, & which, without his knowledge, became exposed & caused the death of pltf.'s cattle lawfully at large, which entered on the land.—Held: not to constitute a hidden trap.—WINMILL & THOMAS v. COLLINS (Sask.), [1927] 3 W. W. R. 325; revid., [1928] 2 D. L. R. 353; 1 W. W. R. 705; 22 S. L. R. 422.—CAN.

141 i. Wrong quantity in poisonous dip—Animals poisoned.—Pltf. alleged that the death of his sheep was due to the presence of an excess of arsenic in powder manufactured & sold by def'ts. which he had added, together with more than the quantity of water specified in def'ts. printed instructions, to a solution through which the sheep had already been passed without injury.—Held: pltf. had not proved that the death of the sheep was due to an excess of arsenic in the powder.—COOPER v. VISEER, [1920] App. D. 111.—S. AF.

145a. Animal killed—Meaning of “external & visible injury.”—A policy of insurance provided that an insurance co. should indemnify the insured against death solely attributable to accidental external & visible injury to any horse the property of the insured, duly certified by a veterinary surgeon, & further provided that the due observance & fulfilment of the conditions of the policy should be a condition precedent to any liability of the co. under the policy. The insured's horse, drawing a loaded van, got out of the driver's control, bolted, & fell into a ditch with the van on top of it, & died in consequence of the pressure of a shaft upon its windpipe. There was no mark visible on the skin of the horse, & no certificate of a veterinary surgeon was obtained:—Held: (1) it was not necessary that there should have been any mark visible on the skin of the horse, & the injury was external & visible; & (2) it was a condition precedent to the insured's right to recover that the death of the horse should be duly certified by a veterinary surgeon, but, on the facts of the case, the co. had waived compliance with such condition.—*BURRIDGE & SON v. sg. Stray Animals Act, 1920 (c. 124).—Meaning of animal—Turkey.—Since turkeys are not included under the words “animal” or “animals” in above Act an owner of a turkey, who enters upon another's land to get the turkey after it has strayed thereon commits a trespass.—SORLIE v. MCKEE, [1927] 1 D. L. R. 249; [1927] 1 W. W. R. 56; 21 Sask. L. R. 330.—CAN.

PART III. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 1.—A.

154 ix. ———.—The owner of an animal in which by law the rule of property can exist is bound to take care that it does not stray into the land of his neighbour, & he is liable for any trespass it may commit, & for the ordinary consequences of that trespass. Whether or not the escape of the animal is due to the owner's negligence is immaterial.—WHALLEY v. VANDERGRAND [1919] 1 W. W. R. 87; 44 D. L. R. 319.—CAN.

154 x. ———.—To remove cattle—Under Domestic Animals Act, R. S. A., 1922 (c. 67), s. 64.—If lands of A. adjoin lands of B. without a fence between them, & the lands are within an extra-municipal area which has not been closed under s. 8 of the above Act, & none of the lands have ever been within a municipal or pound district, & if A.'s cattle stray on to B.'s lands & B. gives notice to remove them, A. sufficiently complies with s. 64 of the above Act by removing them a reasonable distance on to his own land, even though this does not effect a permanent removal.—R. (GAGAN) v. HILLMER, [1923] 3 W. W. R. 660.—CAN.

176 iii. ———.—Where a fence erected by one of two adjoining owners becomes by agreement, express or implied, the line fence & the other adjoining owner fences three sides of his land & joins on to the line fence, he must pay a just proportion of the then value thereof & thereafter bear an equal share of the costs of maintenance n i. —.—.—[—]—Where a municipal bye-law is passed pursuant to Stray Animals Act, R. S. S. 1920 (c. 124), to prohibit the permitting of horses to run at large, the duty imposed thereby is one towards the proprietors of cultivated land as defined in s. 2 (14) of the Act, & not towards the public at large.—OSADCHUK v. RUSSNAIK (1922), 63 D. L. R. 323; 15 Sask. L. R. 286; [1922] 1 W. W. R. 829.—CAN.

n ii. —.—.—[—]—A municipality passed a bye-law providing that all animals should be allowed to run at large in the municipality with certain exceptions & except between certain dates. Another bye-law prescribed what should constitute a lawful fence. Nothing was said as to what should be the effect of a lawful fence, & no bye-law was passed for the purposes of Municipal Act, Man., s. 602 (d).—Held: the effect of the first-mentioned bye-law was to permit cattle, other than those excepted in it, to run at large between certain dates, & in this it ousted the common law liability of the owner of the cattle for damages caused by them when so running at large, & such damages were not recoverable even if the land where the damage was done was surrounded by a lawful fence.

(2) The bye-law also provided that nothing therein contained should prevent the owner of any lands trespassed upon or of any property destroyed from waiving rights created by that bye-law & bringing his action in any competent ct. in consequence of any trespass.—Held: that provision gave no right of action taken away by the other bye-law provision.—JUKES v. MISKELLY, [1923] 2 D. L. R. 561; 33 Man. L. R. 67; [1923] 1 W. W. R. 1057.—CAN.

194 i. —.—.—[—]—Remoteness of damage.—Damages for personal injuries suffered by the rider of a horse from a kick by a neighbour's trespassing horse are not too remote where the trespassing horse's owner knows that the neighbour frequently rides on horseback, & where it is customary in the country to ride horses when bringing home horses or cattle.—WHALLEY v. VANDERGRAND, [1919] 1 W. W. R. 87; 44 D. L. R. 319.—CAN.

194 ii. —.—.—[—]—Where a heifer was thoroughbred & registered & its owner intended to breed it to a certain thoroughbred registered bull, the owner of the heifer was given damages for the difference in value between the calf anticipated as the result of such breeding & the calf that was born as the result of a bull's trespass. Damage by reason of the possible influence upon the strain of subsequent offspring was held too remote & uncertain to be considered.—MCLEAN v. BRETT, [1919] 3 W. W. R. 521; 49 D. L. R. 162.—CAN.

194 iii. —.—.—[—]—Deft.'s trespassing “scrub” bull served pltf.'s young purebred heifer.—Held: pltf. was entitled to damages for the decreased value of the heifer caused by her growth being stunted & shape being affected by being bred at an early age, but not to damages based on a consideration of the effects on the minds of others of an erroneous theory that the heifer was liable to “throw back” to the first bull in future breeding.—COUSINS v. 195 iii. —.—.—[—]—The owner of a bull at large contrary to law must be held to have known that he would naturally seek to cover any heifer or cow which he can reach, & his covering the heifer of another owner on that owner's property & against his will is a trespass for which the owner of the bull is liable.—MCLEAN v. BRETT, [1919] 3 W. W. R. 521; 49 D. L. R. 162.—CAN.

195 iv. —.—.—[—]—Deft.'s cattle trespassed on pltf.'s land which was not enclosed by a lawful fence. Pltf.'s son on horseback was chasing the cattle out when pltf. proceeded on foot to drive a steer through a gateway & was charged by the steer & injured. Deft. had no knowledge that the steer was of a vicious nature or liable to attack persons.—Held: pltf. could not recover damages, as the injury was not an ordinary consequence of the trespass; the damages claimed were too remote, & the proximate cause of the injury was pltf.'s action in approaching the animal on foot which he should not have done.—HATTON v. MORRISON, [1921] 3 W. W. R. 803.—CAN.

w i. ———. ———.]—It is negligence for a man mounted on a bicycle to drive loose horses at 6.15 a.m. along the streets of a populated district, urging them round corners at a fast trot. BARKETT v. HARRIE & THOMPSON, LTD., [1924] N. Z. L. R. 228.—N.Z.

y i. Restive horse—Negligence.—Pltf. was driving a motor car when he was held up by the traffic police. Def't's driver pulled up his horse & cart between the car & the footpath, & the horse became restive & backed into the motor car, occasioning damage to it. The horse had not previously been known to be restive, & was usually quiet, & the driver was unable to say what had frightened the horse. The driver was not in any way negligent in the manner in which he looked after the horse.—Held: there was no evidence of negligence on the part of the driver of the horse or of def't.—SARTORI v. REYNOLDS, LTD. (1927), 29 W. A. L. R. 32.—AUS.

215 iii. ———. Liability of dog owner.—Def't's dog, to his knowledge, had for long had a habit of running after & barking at horses & carriages travelling upon highways.—Held: def't. was liable in damages for injury caused by the running away of horses frightened by the dog so acting.—BIRDSALL v. MERRITT (1917), 38 O. L. R. 587; 35 D. L. R. 260.—CAN.

215 iv. ———. Scienter.—Def't's dog jumped from an automobile & ran at pltf.'s horses & barked causing the horses to jump sideways, the pole strap to break, & the team to run away, causing loss & bodily injuries. The ct. found that the dog had, to def't's knowledge, the mischievous propensity of doing such acts, & def't. was held liable in damages.—SPIT v. HOGSON, [1919] 3 W. W. R. 210.—CAN.

225 iii. ———. ———.]—Pltf.'s motor car collided with a dark brown heifer belonging to def't. which had strayed from def't.'s unfenced land & came suddenly out on to the highway from the land of an adjoining owner; the car was overturned & pltf. sustained injury. There was no negligence in the driving or management of the car.—Held: def't. was not liable to pltf.—HALL v. WIGHTMAN, [1926] N. 92.—IR.

226 i. ———. Sheep—Defective fence—Natural propensity.—A motor cyclist was injured by a collision in daylight with a sheep upon a public road. Pursuer averred that defender was negligent in knowingly failing to keep his fences in such repair as would prevent his sheep from straying on to the road, & in any event, in allowing his sheep to graze upon the road.—Held: the accident was not the natural & probable result of the negligence alleged.—FRAZER v. PATE, [1923] S. C. 748; 60 Sc. L. R. 470.—SCOT.

sk. Animals running "at large."—Dog—Biting pedestrian.—The owner is liable in damages only if he knew that the dog was viciously disposed.—BOWEN v. LIGHTFOOT, [1920] 2 W. W. R. 153; 32 D. L. R. 305; 30 Man. L. R. 337.—CAN.

sl. ———. Horses—Collision with motor car.—The owner is prima facie liable only for such damages as a horse is likely to commit if allowed to stray. The doctrine of scienter applies, & the case is in the same class as that of a horse biting or kicking a person on the highway.—OSADCHUK v. RUSSNAK (1922), 63 D. L. R. 323; 15 Sask. L. sp. Steer.—The rule that an owner of an animal of an ordinarily quiet nature is liable for the vicious acts thereof only if he knew that the animal was accustomed or likely to commit such acts, applies to an action for damages for personal injuries caused by an attack by a steer.—ROSENTHAL v. HESS (Sask.), [1927] 1 D. L. R. 493; [1927] 1 W. W. R. 15.—CAN.

- 246a. Bull attacking cow—Bull in auction yard.—In an action for damages arising out of an attack on a cow in an auction yard by a bull which was in charge of deft.'s servants, but otherwise unsecured:—Held: there was no presumption in law that a bull would attack a cow in such circumstances, & for pltf. to succeed it was necessary for him to prove negligence in not having anticipated a probable danger; further, if such negligence were proved, it would be no answer for deft. to set up absence of scienter.—HINCKES v. HARRIS (1921), 65 Sol. Jo. 781.
- 258a. Mare attacking horse—Strange mare turned into field with horse.—Trespass to person or goods by an animal in which there is at common law a valuable property, such as horses & cattle, does not generally render its owner liable.
- Deft. put a mare into a field in which there was a horse belonging to pltf. without notifying pltf. The mare kicked the horse, which had to be destroyed. No scienter was proved in deft., but it was found by the deputy county ct. judge that the propensity of horses running loose to injure one another in sport or quarrel was common knowledge:—Held: (1) the mare was not within the class of dangerous animals which the owner must keep at his peril according to the rule in Fletcher v. Rylands (see No. 195); (2) deft. was entitled to assume that the mare, being mansuetæ naturæ, was an innocent animal, & having no notice of any fact indicating the contrary, was not under any duty towards pltf. to give notice of his intention to place the mare in the field, or to have a person on the watch or in charge of her, & on the whole deft. was not liable either for breach of an absolute duty or for negligence.—*MANTON v. At the trial of an action for damages for her injury, the jury found that deft. knew that the dog was of a vicious disposition & assessed damages to pltf. — Held: there was evidence to sustain the jury's finding, deft.'s wife, who was in control of the dog, having knowledge of its propensity to rush out & jump at persons passing.—*NORTON v. benefit of the doctrine of the prima facie harmlessness of domestic animals as frequenters of the highway, & the duty of controlling it as though it belonged to the class of animals feræ naturæ had fallen on deft. & his servants.—HOWARD v. BERGIN, O'CONNOR & Co., [1925] 2 I. R. 110, 118.—IR.

If, having failed to use such diligence, he is sued for loss of the cattle, he must prove, in order to discharge himself, that such diligence would have been unavailing; it is not for the bailor to prove that it would have retrieved the loss.

A farmer accepted certain cattle for agistment. Some of them were stolen without his default. After learning that they were missing he made no effort, whether by informing the owner or the police, or otherwise, to recover them. It was doubtful whether any reasonable attempt on his part would have led to their recovery:—Held: he was liable for their loss.—COLDMAN v. HILL, [1919] 1 K. B. 443; 88 L. J. K. 369 xv. — ————If a hired horse is in a sound condition when taken out, & it is brought back injured, the onus of proof in a claim for damages for negligence is on deft. The hirer is bound to treat the horse with the degree of care which a person of ordinary discretion would use towards his own, but if the horse is so treated & nevertheless receives an injury the hirer is not liable in damages for such injury.—REINSETH v. CAMPBELL (1920), 52 D. L. R. 357.—CAN.

369 xvi. — ————Where a person hires an animal & it dies while in his custody, the onus is upon him to establish that he took care of it. 369 xvii. — ————Def. hired a horse from pltf. to drive from T. to L. & return. At a distance of between six & eight miles from S., the horse fell lame in the right hind leg. Deft. drove it to S., put it in a livery stable & gave instructions to have the hoof of the right hind leg re-shod. Deft. hired another horse & continued his journey to L., a distance of over eight miles. He returned next day, took the horse out, & finding that it was not then lame, started with it on the return journey. After travelling about three miles, the horse again fell lame & kept getting a little lammer all the way to T. The journey from S. to T., a distance of twenty-two miles, took seven & one-half hours. There was no evidence as to what caused the horse's lameness. There was no evidence that there was, between the place where the horse fell lame & T. any suitable place in which the horse could have been placed & cared for, or where deft. could have hired another horse to continue the return journey.—Held: as the lameness when it first developed on the return journey was not shown to have been of a more serious nature than often happens to a horse which may nevertheless walk, or even trot slowly, fifteen to twenty miles without serious distress, deft. could not be held guilty of negligence until he had travelled a sufficient distance to satisfy himself that the lameness was increasing so as to make it dangerous to the welfare of the horse to continue the journey.—GAGNON v. LANGIS (1920), 48 N. B. R. 76.—CAN.

374 ii. — Bill of sale granted by bailor—Rights of grantee.—A., the owner of twenty-seven cows depasturing on his farm, agreed to lease his farm & cows to G. for a term of years, & it was agreed that G. should have the right to purchase the farm & stock at any time during the term. G. was given possession of the stock & farm. G. gave to applt. a bill of sale over the cows. A. recovered possession of his farm & cows from G., & shortly thereafter applt. seized & sold the cows under his bill of sale. Thirty-four cows were seized & sold, only nine of which were of the original herd, the balance having been bought by G. during the time he had possession of the farm. A. claimed damages for the seizure.—Held: it had not been shown that the cattle substituted by G. for those originally bailed to him had become the property of A., who was entitled to damages only in respect of the cows originally bailed.—NORFOLK CO-OPERATIVE DAIRY CO., LTD. v. ALLEN, [1924] N. Z. L. R. 136.—N.Z.

374 iii. — Loss by bailor—Negligence.—In an action for the value of a horse which was lost after it had been hired to deft. under an agreement whereby the latter undertook to take "good care in every way" thereof, it appeared that the horse, which was unbroken, was received by deft. & put into a pasture belonging to a neighbour of deft., & deft. went to see it every other day. The pasture was surrounded by a fence of two strands of wire, & the horse got out twice during the winter but was put back. It disappeared about the end of the following April. The fence was down in one place, & the evidence showed a custom among the farmers in the neighbourhood to allow horses not in use to run at large during the winter. While deft. was given the right to work the horse, it was shown that it was not customary in that locality to break horses until the spring.—Held: deft. had taken sufficiently good care of the horse & was not liable for its loss.—ZIMMERMAN v. ARCHER (1922), 63 D. L. R. 399; [1922] 2 W. W. R. 524.—CAN.

380 i. Contract—Covering mare—Damages for breach.—Breach of a contract to breed mares to a stallion is not a ground for damages, in the absence of evidence upon which such damages may be estimated with reasonable certainty.—SINCLAIR v. WALKER, [1917] 2 W. W. R. 321.—CAN.

The warranty was fulfilled, but the purchaser wrongfully refused delivery, & returned the horse. The vendor then put it up at auction as “in dispute,” & without a warranty, when it was sold for about £40 less than the contract price. In an action for the difference between the price realised at the auction & the contract price:—Held: (1) this was not the proper form of action; (2) the action must be for damages; (3) the conditions of the auction sale were not a test of the value of the horse, the auction being of a horse “in dispute,” & without warranty, & quite different from the original contract conditions; (4) pltf. was not entitled to more than nominal damages, as he had failed to prove his damages to be the difference between the contract price & the price realised at the auction.—*MACKLIN v. A race horse, exceeding £50 in value, was delivered to the co. for transit by the sender's groom, who informed the booking clerk that he had got “a very valuable ‘chaser, worth about £1,000,” a figure arrived at by the groom himself from casual gossip. The magistrate found that the charge was proved & dismissed it under the Probation of Offenders Act, 1907 (c. 17), ordering applt. to pay the costs. The birds were lawfully caught in Ireland on or immediately before Dec. 3, 1918, & after being kept there for upwards of a month to enable them to recover their condition, & travel safely, were sent to applt. in London by post.

They were found in applt.'s possession in a wild & terrified state on Jan. 15, 1919:—Held: the magistrate was justified in taking into consideration all the circumstances of the case, including the condition of the birds when exposed for sale & the fact that they had to be kept in Ireland for some time in order to endure the journey & arrive alive, & also the length of the journey, in order to arrive at the conclusion that the birds were recently taken.—*HARRIS v. 587a. ——— Liberation in exhausted condition.—On a prosecution of A. & G. for cruelly ill-treating a live wild rabbit contrary to Protection of Animals Act, 1911 (c. 27), s. 1, it appeared that A. had dangled the rabbit by its hind legs three or four yards away from two greyhounds, held in leash by G., & that the greyhounds having been taken thirty or forty yards away, the rabbit had been thrown on the ground, where it had remained, only hopping a couple of yards when flicked by a hat. The magistrate held that there was no cruel ill-treatment within the sect.; that what had been done by resps. was ordinary coursing & so protected by sect. 1 (3) (b), & that there was no evidence of the rabbit having been liberated in an injured, mutilated, or exhausted condition. On appeal:—Held: all the evidence showed that there had been cruel ill-treatment of the of the live stock by reason of injury except such as might arise from a collision, & should in no case be responsible for any amount exceeding certain small sums named. Pltf. accompanied his goods, & the train was lawfully proceeding on a Sunday, notwithstanding the Lord's Day Act, when a collision occurred with one of defts.' trains, which was being run unlawfully because in contravention of that Act, & some of the horses & other goods of pltf. were destroyed or damaged. Pltf. sued in tort for the amount of his loss, claiming much more than the limited amounts stated in the special contract. Defts. set up the special contract:—Held: the provision of the contract limiting the liability of defts. in the case of a collision to a stated sum did not sustain the defence, because that provision must be taken not to have contemplated a collision occurring by reason of the breach of a statute distinctly prohibiting & making unlawful the act which caused the collision.—RISE v.

574 ii. ——— Failure to remove from animal broken pieces of instrument.—Resp. undertook to treat a horse, & inserted into the animal's urethra a catheter, which broke, & the horse was returned to its owner with the broken pieces left in the urethra:—Held: (1) If resp. allowed the broken pieces of the catheter to remain in the urethra for an unreasonable time, without taking any steps to alleviate the pain or without taking any steps to secure their removal, he unreasonably caused unnecessary pain; (2) resp. was under a duty to inform the owner of the horse within a reasonable time that the fragments were in the animal's urethra.—*MARTIN v. - 26a. — Verbal agreement to grant royalties—Amount to be settled by arbitration—Refusal of grantee to arbitrate.—In 1913 a patent was granted for “Improvements in winches for operating the rope of a duplex derrick.” Between the times of the filing of the provisional & complete specifications, the patentee, under a verbal agreement, entered the service of a co. engaged in making windlasses as technical adviser & engineer draughtsman; & the co., while the patentee was in their employment, made & sold the patented windlasses. In 1919 the patentee commenced an action against the co., alleging that it was a term of the verbal agreement that, during pltf.’s service, the co. should have pltf.’s licence to make & sell windlasses under the patent, at a reasonable royalty, & failing agreement between the parties, at such royalty as might be settled by arbn. He contended that he would have received at least 5 per cent. on the selling price of the windlasses. Defts. denied that they had agreed to accept a licence from pltf.:—Held: pltf. had proved that the agreement for a licence had been made; he was entitled to a reasonable royalty; & as the agreement was verbal, & defts. refused to refer the matter to arbn., the matter could not go to arbn. It was directed that the matter should be referred to an official referee for inquiry & report under sect. 13 of the above Act.—FLEMING v. DOIG (J. S.) (GRUMSBY), LTD. (1921), 38 R. P. C. 57.
- 36a. Reference under National Health Insurance Regulations of Insurance Commissioners.—By an agreement between a medical practitioner on the panel & the insurance committee of a county, the practitioner agreed to give medical treatment to insured persons, & by clause 1 the National Health Insurance (Medical Benefit) Regulations (England), 1913, were incorporated. By clause 14, “any dispute or question arising between the committee & the practitioner . . . relating to the construction of this agreement or the rights & liabilities of the committee or the practitioner . . . hereunder shall be referred to the Comrs.” By reg. 51 of the regulations, “Where under the provision of these regulations or of any agreement made between the committee & a practitioner . . . is referred, or any appeal from a decision of the committee is made to the Comrs. the Comrs. shall determine such questions or appeal in such manner as they think fit, & if in the opinion of the Comrs. a hearing is required they may authorise any two or more of the Comrs. to hear & determine such question or appeal, & any decision of the Comrs. or any of them made under this article shall be final & conclusive.” A dispute having arisen under the agreement, the practitioner brought an action against the committee in respect thereof, & the committee applied under the Act of 1889, s. 4, to stay the action:—Held: the action must be stayed (PICKFORD, L.J. & SARGANT, J.) upon the ground that there was a “submission” to arbn. within the Act of 1889, s. 27 (BANKES, L.J.), upon the ground that under reg. 51 a special tribunal was constituted with special powers for determining disputes between practitioners & the committee.—*CLEMENTS v. d. i. — Informal extension of written submission amounting to new parol submission.—An award was not made within the time fixed by the written submission to arbn. nor was the time extended. The arbitrators proceeded after the expiry of the time, both parties appearing before them & taking part in the proceedings, & the award was made & not appealed from or moved against, & had ever since been acted upon:—Held: a parol submission must be taken to have been made & to include the terms contained in the written one, & the award to have been made pursuant to the parol submission.—*HARRISON v. 147a. ———.]—In a proposal for insurance against accident the intending assured stated his occupation & signed a declaration that the answers to the questions therein were true, & that he agreed that the declaration should be the basis of the contract between him & the insurance co. whose policy, subject to the terms & conditions thereof, he agreed to accept. The policy recited the proposal & declaration "which proposal & declaration warranted to be true it is agreed shall be the basis of this contract . . . & be considered as incorporated herein, & any suppression, misrepresentation, or misstatement of fact in such written proposal & declaration shall ipso facto render this policy null & void"; & it provided that it was a condition precedent to the recovery of any sum under the policy that the conditions indorsed thereon should be strictly observed. Condition 8 provided that the policy might be renewed from year to year but only upon condition that nothing had happened to increase the risk, & if the risk was increased by (inter alia) the assured engaging in some other occupation, then "unless notice in writing of such increased risk is given to the co. . . & any extra premium that may be required paid . . . the policy is void & no claim can be made." By condition 11, "If any question shall arise touching this policy or the liability of the co. thereunder or the extent or nature of such liability or otherwise howsoever in connection herewith then the assured & all persons claiming through the assured may refer & shall be bound, if the co. shall so require, to refer the same to arbn. by one arbitrator to be agreed on or in default of agreement by two arbitrators & their umpire under the Act of 1889 . . . & no person shall be entitled to bring or to maintain any action or proceeding on this policy except for the sum awarded under such arbn." During the currency of the policy the assured was killed by an accident. The co. denied liability on the policy on the ground that the assured either had misstated his occupation in the proposal, or, if not, had changed his occupation for one involving increased risk of which notice as required by condition 8 had not been given to the co., & contended that the policy was therefore void, & they required the dispute to be referred to arbn. under condition 11. In an action on the policy:—Held: (1) upon the co. requiring arbn. condition 11 made the obtaining of an award a condition precedent to a right of action; (2) the co. by relying on the terms of the policy which rendered it void in certain events did not thereby repudiate the policy as a binding contract between the parties, & were entitled to rely upon the arbn. clause as a defence to the action.—*WOODALL v. • iii. ———.]—Where a contract contains an arbn. clause, & one of the parties seeks to avoid the contract, the dispute is referable to arbn. if the avoidance of the contract arises out of the terms of the contract itself. Where, however, a party seeks to avoid the contract for reasons dehors it, the arbn. clause cannot be resorted to as it, together with the other terms of the contract, is set aside. In other words, a party cannot rely on a term of the contract to repudiate it, & still say the arbn. clause should not apply. prevented by Government.]—A firm agreed to sell & to ship from Calcutta to Buenos Ayres bales of jute goods. The contracts contained provisions exempting the sellers from liability for late & short shipment attributable (inter alia) to Govt. commandeering of ships, war, "or any other unforeseen circumstances" & included provisions for the shipment of delayed cargoes as soon as possible, subject to a right of refusal on the part of the purchasers. Each contract contained an arbn. clause in these terms: "Any dispute that may arise under this contract to be settled by arbn." Before all the bales had been shipped, the further export of jute from India to the Argentine was prohibited. A controversy having arisen between the parties as to whether, in the circumstances, the contracts had been rendered void & unenforceable quoad the shipment of the remainder of the bales:—Held: on a construction of the contracts, the controversy was a dispute arising under the contracts, & accordingly, fell to be determined by arbn.—*SCOTT & SONS v. 153 iv. ——— Lease in dispute.]—A lease contained a clause referring to arbn. certain specific matters & "any other questions in reference to this lease which may arise between the parties." In arbn. proceedings the issue between the parties was not the validity of a notice to quit but the question whether the tenant was possessing under the lease or under a new bargain:—Held: as the lease itself was in dispute, the arbn. clause in the lease did not apply.—*HOTII v. 164a. —.—By two contracts made in 1919, applt. bought from resps. a large quantity of "American Fresh Eggs." The contracts provided that in case of any dispute as to the quality or condition of the goods, the question should be referred to arbn., provided that, "such reference shall be claimed in writing within three days after the goods have been landed." It was also provided that the award in writing of any two arbitrators should be conclusive & binding on all parties, subject to the right of appeal. The goods arrived in England, & were not examined at the port of landing, but were sold by applt. to sub-purchasers. More than three days after the goods had been landed applt. wrote to resps. complaining that the goods were of inferior quality, & some time later he wrote a letter claiming a reference to arbn. Resps. did not then take the objection that the claim was out of time, but signed a submission to arbn. in respect of each contract. At the reference resps. took the points that applt.'s claim was out of time, & that the goods should have been examined at the port of landing. The arbitrators awarded "that the buyer was out of time in examining & making claim on the goods, & also in claiming arbn., that therefore his case fails." The buyer took no steps to set aside the awards, but nearly two years later brought an action claiming damages for breach of contract:—Held: the awards were a bar to the action.—AYSCOUGH v. SHEED THOMSON & CO. (1924), 93 L. J. K. B. 924; 131 L. T. 610; 40 T. L. R. 707; 30 Com. Cas. 23, H. L.; affg. (1923), 92 L. J. K. B. 878, C. A.

165a. Arbitrator to be appointed within limited time.—A ship was chartered for a voyage from R. to H. with a full cargo of linseed. The charterparty provided for the reference of all disputes to the final arbitrament of two arbitrators, one to be appointed by each of the parties, with power to appoint an umpire, & the clause continued: "Any claim must be made in writing & claimants' arbitrator appointed within three months of final discharge, & where this provision is not complied with the claim shall be deemed to be waived & absolutely barred." After the arrival of the ship at H. the charterers brought an action against the shipowners in respect of damage alleged to have been occasioned to a part of the linseed during the voyage by reason of the unseaworthiness of the ship at the commencement of the voyage. The shipowners pleaded that the charterers failed to appoint their arbitrator within three months of the discharge of the ship & that by reason thereof the action was not maintainable, & by order of the Ct., the question whether the claim in the action was barred by the arbn. clause was tried as a preliminary question of law:—Held: (1) the ground that it ousted the jurisdiction of the Ct., (2) inasmuch as the claim in the action was founded upon a breach of the implied condition of seaworthiness, there being in the charterparty no express provision relating to unseaworthiness, the shipowners were not entitled to the benefit of the term in the clause restricting the time within which the action could be brought, & consequently the claim was not barred by the arbn. clause.—*ATLANTIC SHIPPING & TRADING CO. v. 165b. —.—A charterparty contained a clause providing that all disputes arising out of the contract should be referred to arbn., the claimants' arbitrator to be appointed within a time therein limited, & if he was not so appointed the claim was to be deemed to be waived & absolutely barred. Loss to cargo was suffered owing to the ship's unseaworthiness. The cargo owners claimed damages & went to arbn., but did not appoint their arbitrator within the time limited. An award was made in their favour, the shipowners not appearing:—Held: although the loss was caused by unseaworthiness, & consequently, the above clause could not have been set up by the shipowners, the cargo owners were entitled in virtue of the clause to go to arbn., but only in accordance with its terms, & as they had not complied with those terms the arbitrator had no jurisdiction to make the award.—FORD (H.) & CO. v. COMPAGNIE FURNESS (FRANCE), [1922] 2 K. B. 797; 92 L. J. K. B. 88; 128 L. T. 286; 16 Asp. M. L. C. 102, D. C.

165c. —.—Pltfs. bought from defts. a quantity of East African copra cake to be of fair average quality, sound delivered. The contract provided that "the goods are not warranted free from defect rendering same unmerchantable, which would not be apparent on reasonable examination"; that any disputes arising out of the contract should be settled by arbn.; & that notice of arbn. should be given & the arbitrator nominated in writing not later than fourteen days after the final discharge of the vessel. Pltfs. resold the copra cake to B. & Co., who resold it to dealers, & they in turn resold it to farmers, who used it for feeding cattle. The cattle fed on the cake became ill, & it was then found on analysis that the cake contained an admixture of castor beans in so large a proportion as to make it poisonous. Claims were then made by the various buyers against their sellers & by pltfs. against defts. as soon as the mischief was discovered, but this was after the expiration of fourteen days from the final discharge of the vessel. Pltfs. claimed arbn., but the arbitrator before whom the matter came held that he had no jurisdiction, as notice of arbn. was not given nor the arbitrator nominated in time. In an action by pltfs. claiming damages, it was found that it was within the contemplation of the parties that the copra cake would be used for cattle food & nothing else:—Held: the presence of the arbn. clause was not in itself a bar to the action, nor was the award, which dealt merely with the arbitrator's jurisdiction & not with the claim.—PINNOCK BROTHERS v. LEWIS & PEAT, LTD., [1923] 1 K. B. 690; 92 L. J. K. B. 695; 129 L. T. 320; 39 T. L. R. 212; 67 Sol. Jo. 501; 28 Com. Cas. 210.

Before completion of discharge defts. made various payments to pltfs. on account of freight, & on final discharge pltfs. claimed that £568 was still owing for freight. Defts. admitted that £416 was still owing for freight, but they set up a counterclaim for £581 for short delivery & refused to pay the £416 until their counterclaim was met. Neither party referred the matter to arbn., & more than three months after final discharge pltfs. brought an action for £568 balance of freight & defts. counterclaimed £581 for short delivery:—Held: though pltfs. could not recover the £568, as the claim for it ought to have been taken to arbn., yet they could recover the £416 about which there had never been any dispute, but the counterclaim, as it was always in dispute, was barred by the arbn. clause.—*BEDD STEAM SHIPPING CO., LTD. v. "If any dispute as to the agreement or any matter or thing therein or intention or construction thereof."—Where a dispute arose on a contract as to the meaning of a clause therein which dealt with tests that the purchaser was making, the purchaser contending that the tests were unsatisfactory, & the vendor that they signed the contract on the faith of an assurance by the purchaser that the tests were proving satisfactory, & the contract contained a clause that if any dispute should arise between the parties as to the agreement or any clause, matter or thing therein contained, or the intention or construction thereof, or in anywise relating thereto, the same should be referred to arbn.:—Held: such dispute came within the clause, & was not a dispute dehors the contract.—*DE LA GARDE v. 238a. "All loss."—In an action in Manitoba against building contractors to recover sums improperly paid to them under a contract, & for damages, a judgment by consent was entered whereby it was provided (inter alia) that pltf. should recover, among other sums, "all loss to pltf. by reason of defective workmanship & materials," & that there should be set off against the sums recovered by pltf. the fair value of the work done & materials provided at fair contractor's prices. The judgment provided further that the sums to be debited & credited were to be determined by two appraisers, & that any matter upon which they differed was to be referred to a named umpire whose decision thereon was to be final; & that the Manitoba Arbn. Act should not apply. Defts. moved to set aside or vary an award made:—Held: (1) under the words "all loss" there was jurisdiction to award to pltf. not only sums actually expended at the date of the award, but also a sum estimated as being necessary to make good the defects; (2) the award being within the jurisdiction conferred by the submission, & there being no error apparent on its face, it could not be questioned either on the facts or on the law.—*A.-G. The contract provided for the payment by monthly instalments on the certificate of defts.' engineer at the rate of 90 per cent. of the value of the work actually executed, the remaining 10 per cent. to be treated as a retention fund, & further provided that any question arising between the parties in connection with the contract, or as to the construction or meaning of the contract, should be referred to the decision of an engineer to be agreed upon, or, failing agreement, to be nominated by the 373 i. Questions of law inter alia.—An agreement for the supply of electric energy by plff. co. to deft. co. provided that the adjustment of all disputes should be submitted to three arbitrators. Disputes having arisen,

President for the time being of the Institute of Civil Engineers, & such submission should be deemed a submission to arbn. within the Act of 1889. An originating summons having been taken out by plffs. for the determination of the question whether upon the true construction of the contract, for the purpose of the monthly payments to be made to plffs. thereunder, the value of the work executed was to be ascertained by adding to the prices contained in the schedules a proportionate amount of the sum therein provided for "general contingencies," defts. moved for a stay of proceedings under the summons:—Held: there was a clear & definite contract between the parties that the matter in dispute should be referred to an arbitrator as being a person who possessed the necessary technical knowledge for dealing with the subject-matter of the contract; if the ct. allowed the action to proceed evidence would be necessary in order to put the ct. in a position to determine the technical meaning of the expression "general contingencies" & a number of other expressions used in the contract; the meaning of those expressions in an engineering contract would be perfectly familiar & would present no difficulty to the engineer to whom the parties had agreed to refer the decision of their disputes; the case was not one which involved a simple question of law, & plffs. had not discharged the onus of showing that the dispute was one which ought not to be referred to arbn., & the arbn. ought to proceed.—*METROPOLITAN TUNNEL & PUBLIC WORKS v. A contract between British shipbuilders & foreign shipowners for the building & purchase of certain ships contained a clause referring disputes & differences to the decision of a single arbitrator in accordance with the Arbn. Act. Disputes having arisen the foreign firm duly gave notice to the British shipbuilders to appoint an arbitrator, & on their refusal to do so, applied to the ct. under sect. 5 of the Act to appoint an arbitrator:—Held: in the case of an application for arbn. by a foreigner residing out of the jurisdiction the ct. had an absolute discretion in assenting to or refusing the application, & in the former case the ct. could attach any reasonable condition, such as making an order for security for the costs of the proceedings, to the granting of the application.—Re BJORNSTAD & OUSE SHIPPING CO., [1924] 2 K. - 630a. — — — — —]—A contract for the sale of goods was entered into between B., the seller, & R., who, so far as appeared from the contract, were the buyers. The contract contained an arbn. clause. The goods delivered in pursuance of the contract were despatched to a foreign firm, who complained of their quality. Thereupon the foreign firm & R., who said they had merely acted as agents for that firm, claimed to have the dispute as to the quality of the goods submitted to arbn. B., while willing to go to arbn. as between himself & R., refused to assent to an arbn. to which the foreign firm were parties, maintaining that he had sold to R. as principals. R. & the foreign firm then took out a summons for the appointment of an arbitrator pursuant to the Act of 1889, s. 5:—Held: it being in dispute whether there was a submission between B. on the one hand & R. & the foreign firm on the other, there was no "matter" pending in the High Ct. as between those parties; therefore an appeal from an order for the appointment of an arbitrator was not in a matter of practice & procedure within R. S. O. Ord. 54, r. 23, & consequently, it lay not to the Ct. of Appeal, but to the Div. Ct.—RICHARDSONS & BRADLEY & CO. v. BERNHARD, [1925] 2 K. B. 121; 94 L. J. K. B. 691; 133 L. T. 234, D. C.

- 949a. —.—.]—An arbitrator appointed under Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (c. 28), for the purpose of determining claims & compensation payable in respect of (inter alia) certain fixtures, hay & straw left by the tenant on his farms, & hay & straw removed by him after the determination of the tenancy, held two sittings & then gave notice that he had been waiting to be supplied with information as to the hay & straw sold off & warned the parties that if it was not supplied promptly he would have to hold another sitting. After an interval of less than a fortnight he gave further notice that he would go to the farms on a specified date "to value the hay & straw & to receive an account of the hay & straw removed." The tenant not having such an account ready & thinking that the only question to be dealt with was a valuation of the stacks of hay & straw remaining on the farm did not attend by himself or his representative, but his foreman was present to point out & give information about the stacks on the farms. While there the arbitrator, besides valuing the stacks, questioned the foreman as to the hay & straw removed. Immediately afterwards he closed the hearing & made an award in which he dealt with the claim for hay & straw removed on the basis of the foreman's evidence, which had not been tendered by either party, & was taken in the presence only of the landlord's representative. He did not deal with the question of the fixtures, but purported to reserve power to deal with them, if required :—Held : the award must be set aside as the arbitrator had been guilty of legal misconduct in taking evidence in the absence of, & without previous notice to, the tenant.—Re O'CONOR & WHITLAW'S ARBITRATION (1919), 88 L. 1036a. — — — — —]—A contract for the sale of sugar provided that the contract was subject to the rules of the Refined Sugar Asscn. The rules required that all members of the asscn. making contracts subject to those rules should refer any disputes arising out of such contracts, including any questions of law, to the arbn. of the council of the asscn.; & by r. 19: "Neither buyer, seller, trustee in bkpcy., nor any other person as aforesaid shall require, nor shall they apply to the ct. to require, any arbitrators to state in the form of a special case for the opinion of the ct. any question of law arising in the reference, but such question of law shall be determined in the arbn. in manner herein directed." A dispute between the buyers & sellers was referred to the arbn. of the council. The buyers requested the arbitrators either to state their award in the form of a special case under the Act of 1889, s. 7, or alternatively to state a case for the opinion of the ct. under sect. 19 upon certain points of law arising in the reference, or to give them an opportunity of applying to the ct. for an order directing them to state a case. The arbitrators, thinking themselves precluded by r. 19, refused to comply with that request, & made their award without giving the buyers an opportunity of applying to the ct. for an order. The buyers move to set aside the award on the ground of misconduct of the arbitrators in so refusing:—Held: r. 19 & the agreement embodying it were contrary to public policy & invalid, as involving an 1051a. — — — — — Application to stay proceedings—Until security for costs given.—The Govt. of an independent State made with a co. a contract containing an arbn. clause. An arbn. took place & was divided into two parts, the first being as to whether the Govt. had committed a breach of contract. The result of this part of the arbn. was that an award was given in favour of the co. & the Govt. was ordered to pay costs. The second part of the arbn. as to the amount of damage then began, & when the evidence had been closed the Govt. asked the arbitrator to state an advisory case for the opinion of the ct., but the arbitrator refused to do so. The Govt. then issued a summons asking that the arbitrator might be ordered to state a case, & thereupon the co., applied that all further proceedings might be stayed until the Govt. (1) had paid the costs which it had been ordered to pay, & (2) had given security to answer the costs of the matter & of the arbn.:—Held: so far as concerned the summons for a case to be stated the Govt. was in the position of a plff., & it could not rely on its foreign sovereignty, & being out of the jurisdiction must give security for the costs of the summons, but the rest of the co.'s application must stand over to be dealt with on the hearing of the summons.—*DUFF DEVELOPMENT CO., LTD. v. 1058a. —————J—A special case stated by an arbitrator for the opinion of the ct. is stated under the Act of 1889, s. 19, or s. 7, according as the arbitrator does or does not retain jurisdiction in the reference. If he retains jurisdiction the case is stated under sect. 19, & no appeal lies to the Ct. of Appeal from the decision of the High Ct. upon the special case; but if he makes his award finally, & retains no further jurisdiction in the reference, the case is stated under sect. 7 & an appeal lies from the decision of the ct.

By a submission contained in a charterparty disputes were referred to two arbitrators &, if they could not agree, to an umpire. The umpire stated for the opinion of the High Ct. a special case in which he set out the facts, decided that there had been a breach of the charterparty, & assessed damages for the breach. The award concluded with these words: "The question for the opinion of the ct. is whether upon the true construction of the charterparty & the facts stated by me the decisions at which I have arrived are correct in law. If they be correct my award is to stand, but if incorrect in any particulars I desire that the award may be referred back to me for reassessment of the damages due in accordance with the decision of the ct."—Held: this was not a final award; the case was, therefore, stated under sect. 19 & no appeal lay to the Ct. of Appeal.—*COGSTAD (C. 1067a. Finality—Request to court to vary if award wrong in law.—Disputes which had arisen under a charterparty were referred to arbn. & the arbitrator made his award in the form of a special case in which, after setting out the facts, & holding that the owners had committed a breach of the charterparty, he made an award in favour of the charterers & assessed the damages & costs payable by the owners to the charterers. The case proceeded as follows: "The question for the opinion of the ct. is whether upon the facts as stated by me my award is right in law. If my award be correct then it shall stand; but should the ct. find that it be wrong in law then I request that the ct. shall vary my award as in their discretion they may think fit, both as to the damages & as to the costs . . . except that if the ct. shall only vary my award on the subject of the amount of the damages, my discretion as to the costs of the reference & the costs of my award shall stand"—Held: the award was a complete & final award under sect. 7 of the Act of 1889.—*LARRINAGA & Co. v. To save their vessels from destruction by enemy submarine, the owners cut away the trawls, which were not insured, & claimed a general average contribution against the co., of which the owners were members. The rules provided that all disputes should be settled in the first instance by a general meeting of the co., or, on appeal, by two arbitrators & an umpire, none of whom should be lawyers. The general meeting having refused the claim, the owners proceeded to arbn. under a submission which provided that "all matters in difference in reference to the said claim for a general average contribution are referred," etc. The umpire by his award ignored the claim for general average. On a motion to set aside the award:—Held: it was bad as disclosing an error in law on the face of it; &, having regard to the general terms of the submission, it was not open to resps. to say that a definite point of law had been submitted to arbn., as to which the decision of the arbitrator was final, & the award must be set aside.—

1701a. — Liability to cross-examination.]—In June, 1913, claimants, R. & Co., effected an insurance with resps., an insurance co., whereby the insurance co. agreed that, if at any time during the period covered by the policy the premises of claimants should be destroyed by fire, & their business should be thereby interfered with or interrupted, they would pay to claimants monthly until such time as the reduction in turnover in consequence of the fire should have ceased, but not exceeding in all nine months, on account of annual net profit & charges as therein set forth, the same percentage on the amount by which the turnover in each month should in consequence of the fire be less than the turnover for the corresponding month of the year preceding the fire as the sum or sums thereby insured should bear to the total of the turnover for the last financial year. It was provided that the amount of the losses under the policy should be assessed by claimants' auditors, L. & G. A condition on the back of the policy provided for reference to arbn. of all differences arising out of the policy. The premises of claimants were destroyed by fire on July 22, 1913, a date within the period covered by the policy. J., a member of the firm of L. & G., duly assessed the amount of the loss suffered by claimants in respect of profits for the period of nine months succeeding the fire. Differences having arisen in regard to the payments under the policy, the parties went to arbn. G. was called as a witness by claimants at the arbn. proceedings, & stated that although it did not so appear on the face of the assessments he was at the time of signing the same satisfied that the losses of the turnover respectively therein stated were in fact sustained in consequence of the fire. There was no suggestion of any fraud on the part of the assessor :—Held : as G., whether regarded as an arbitrator or an assessor, had been called to give oral testimony he could be cross-examined on all relevant issues & consequently could be cross-examined to show that he had failed to take into account certain considerations necessary for Disregarding statute passed after hearing but before issue of award.]—(1) Resps. to an arbn. had hired of claimant, for a certain period, a number of horses which, on the outbreak of war & before the expiry of the period, were commandeered by the War Office. He then refused to pay the hire for the full period on the ground of frustration of the adventure. At the hearing of the arbn. on June 19, 1917, claimant did not press for hire after the seizure of the horses, & on July 31, 1917, the arbitrator issued his award, giving claimant the amount due up to the date of the seizure, but not afterwards. On July 10, 1917, Courts Emergency Powers Act, 1917 (c. 25), had come into operation, but there was nothing to show whether the arbitrator was or was not aware of the Act. On a motion to set aside the award on the ground of the technical misconduct of the arbitrator in not taking the statute into consideration:—Held: whether or not the arbitrator was aware of the Act, he had applied its principles, & consequently, there was no misconduct; the parties were not taken by surprise, & the award was good.

(2) It has been contended that the fact that the arbitrator did not know or take cognisance of the Act, which was passed after the hearing of the arbn. & before the issue of the award, constituted misconduct. I doubt very much whether that would amount to misconduct, although possibly it might amount to surprise (A. T. LAWRENCE, J.).—OSMOND v. WOOLLEY (1917), 87 L. J. K. B. 822; 118 L. T. 29; 34 T. L. Subsequently by policies effected in his own name with several insurance cos. he insured this timber against fire. The greater part of the timber having been destroyed by fire, he sued the insurance cos. to recover the loss, but the actions were stayed & the matter was referred to arbn. in pursuance of the conditions contained in the policies. Claimant was the sole shareholder in the co. & was also a creditor of the co. to a large extent. The contract was signed by pltfs. in Norway & by defts. in London & was stamped with an English six-penny stamp, but not in accordance with the English law as to contracts of marine insurance, but it was valid by the law of Norway. An arbn. under the contract was held in Norway & an award was issued in favour of pltfs. In an action on the award defts. submitted that the law applicable to the whole contract must be the law of England, & that, since the contract neither was a policy as required by English law nor was properly stamped as such a policy, pltfs. could not recover on the award :—Held : as the action was brought on the award, & as the proper inference from the provision as to the arbn. being held in Norway was that the parties intended the law of Norway to govern the contract, pltfs. were entitled to recover the sum awarded.—*NORSKE ATLAS INSURANCE Co., LTD. v. 15a. Use of Initials “A.A.I.”—Pltf. Bowler & his co-pltf. Blake carried on in partnership the business of auctioneers & estate agents at P. & G., & in May, 1920, deft. entered their employment as an outside canvassing & negotiating clerk under a written agreement of service which provided (inter alia) that either party could terminate the employment on giving seven days' notice in writing & (clause 5) “after the termination from any cause of the employment aforesaid the clerk shall not for the term of one year carry on or be interested in carrying on the business of auctioneers & estate agents after such termination directly or indirectly assist as clerk manager or in any other capacity in the carrying on of such business within the borough of P. or in the town of G.” In Sept. 1920, pltf.s. duly terminated deft.'s employment, & on leaving their service he at once commenced business on his own account as an estate agent within the prohibited area, describing himself as “O. Lovegrove, A.A.I., Estate Agent,” the initials A.A.I. meaning Associate of the Auctioneers' Institute, but he did not take out an auctioneer's licence nor do any business as an auctioneer :—Held : deft. had not by the use of the initials A.A.I. held himself out to be an auctioneer.—*BOWLER v. 63a. ————]—A freehold house was knocked down to deft. as the highest bidder, but he afterwards refused to sign the contract because one of the conditions of sale required the purchaser to pay certain road-making charges. On the same day the auctioneer, as soon as he was informed of deft.'s refusal, signed the contract as deft.'s agent. In an action by the vendor for specific performance, the judge held in the circumstances the auctioneer's signature could fairly be said to be part of the transaction of sale, & there was a memorandum in writing sufficient to satisfy Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 40 :—Held : an auctioneer had authority to sign a memorandum sufficient to satisfy the Act, provided he signed it at such a time & in such circumstances that the signature could fairly be said to be part of the transaction of sale, & as the question whether this condition was satisfied was a question of fact, the judge's decision that there was a valid memorandum must be affirmed.—CHANNEY v. The lot was included in the printed catalogue, the whole of which was pasted into the auctioneer's book, & after the lot in question was knocked down to pltf. deft. wrote against its description in the book the price & pltf.'s trade name. Deft.'s name was nowhere written by him in the book, but his printed name appeared on the front page of the catalogue pasted in the book. Deft. refused to hand over the goods on the ground that the lot in question had been the subject of a "knock-out" to which pltf. had been a party. In an action for breach of contract deft. pleaded that there was no memorandum signed by him within Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (c. 71), s. 4 (1):—Held: (1) the existence of a "knock-out" did not afford any defence to the action; (2) deft.'s printed name, having been authenticated by his writing down the price & the purchaser's name, was a sufficient signature, & there was a sufficient note or memorandum of the contract, & pltf. was entitled to recover.—*COHEN v. - 280a. — Option to resell on purchaser's default.—Goods were put up for sale by auction, the conditions of sale printed on the auctioneers' catalogue providing: "The lot to be taken away & paid for the day after sale," & "upon failure of complying with the above conditions all lots uncleared within the time aforesaid shall be resold." A purchaser, through his own negligence, bid for a lot for which he had not intended to bid, & the lot was knocked down to him. He afterwards endeavoured to persuade the auctioneers to put up the lot for sale again, but they declined. Upon his refusing to pay, an action for the purchase price was brought by the auctioneers, & the purchaser contended that under the conditions of sale it was obligatory upon the auctioneers to resell the lot in question, & that he could be charged only with any deficiency upon resale :—Held : the words "all lots uncleared shall be resold" did not impose any obligation upon the auctioneers, but merely conferred upon them an option of reselling at their discretion, & the auctioneers were entitled to recover the full price at which the lot was knocked down to the purchaser.—*ROBINSON, FISHER & HARDING v. - 301a. Non-delivery—Goods included in lot by mistake.]—In the catalogue of a sale by auction a lot marked 103 to 109* was included, being various bundles of paper. Item 109* was a bundle which the auctioneer did not intend to be in the catalogue, & he purposed to sell it separately. It was, however, knocked down to plff., & he paid for it, but the auctioneer refused to deliver it to him. The catalogue announced the sale as being "By order of J. S. & others." The buyer brought an action for damages against the auctioneer :—Held : the various owners of the lots not being disclosed as the principals, & there being no disclaimer by the auctioneer of personal liability, the auctioneer was personally liable for non-delivery; & the fact that the buyer accidentally learned of the ownership of lot 109* was not material.—PAGE v. SULLY (1918), 63 Sol. Jo. 55, D. C.

PART I. SECT. 1.

sk. Person obtaining possession & control of goods without owner's consent.—To constitute a bailment it is sufficient if the bailee, having obtained possession & control of the bailor's goods without the latter's knowledge or consent, afterwards acknowledges to the bailor that he holds them for him, & thereupon retains possession & control for him with his consent.—MAKOWER, McBEATH & Co., PROPRIETARY, LTD. v. DALGETY & Co., LTD., [1921] V. L. R. 365.—AUS.

131. — Licence to occupy floor space.—Deft. was owner of a private garage, & rented to pltf. the right to store his motor car therein. The garage had no dividing partitions or stalls, & no particular space was assigned to pltf. Pltf. was given a key of this garage & was able to enter at any time he saw fit to do so & remove & return his car as he chose.—Held: deft. was not bailee of pltf.'s car.—LESSER v. JONES, [1920] 47 N. B. R. 318.—CAN.

141. — Goods left at cloak-room—Ball organised by committee.—The committee hired a hall, & tickets were sold. A room was provided for a cloak-room, & a caretaker of this room hired at a remuneration paid by the committee. When resp. presented his numbered ticket corresponding to the number placed on his coat it was found that another coat had been substituted for his.—Held: as regards the caretaker, there was no implied contract between him & resp. As regards the members of the committee, any contract they might make was a contract on behalf of the whole body, including resp.—CORBETT v. JAMIESON, [1923] N. Z. L. R. 374.—N.Z.

51. — Delivery of mineral-water bottles—Charge for detention of empties.—Pltfs. sold mineral-water in bottles branded with their name. The course of dealing with customers was to invoice the bottles at a deposit rate of two shillings per dozen & when bottles were returned the customers were credited in full. Where bottles were not returned the customers were debited with a charge for them, pltfs. usually accepting half the deposit rate for missing bottles where a deficiency was found to exist.—Held: the transaction was in law a bailment in which bare possession of the bottles vested in the borrower, the true ownership remaining in the lender.—CANTRELL & COCHRANE v. NEESON, [1926] N. 107.—IR.

sm. Timber sold remaining in mill yards—Warehouse receipt given to buyer.—Held: seller gratuitous bailee for buyer.—FERGUSON v. EYER (1918), 43 O. L. R. 190.—CAN.

40 in. — Valuables of bathers left with caretaker of bathing-shed.—Appls. were sued by resp. for the value of a gold watch & other articles left by resp. in the custody of the caretaker of a bathing-shed conducted by applts. & which were lost, presumably stolen.—Held: the fact by undertaking the care of valuables belonging to bathers the use of the bathing-shed was rendered more attractive would constitute a consideration.—TIMARU BOROUGH COUNCIL v. BOULTON, [1924] N. Z. L. R. 365.—N.Z.

40 iv. — Pltf. hired a locker at deft.'s bathing sheds in which to place his clothes & effects & which was securely locked before he proceeded to bathe. Subsequently on opening the locker it was found to be empty. In an action based upon a contract of bailment the judge expressly found that there was no one continuously employed on duty in the locker room during the absence of pltf. & returned a verdict for pltf. for the value of the articles placed in the locker.—Held:
